

THURSDAY EVENING, APRIL 21, 1910

REPRESENTATIVES of evening newspapers in Richmond have incurred the displeasure of the police authorities, as the following notice with show:

We have decided to give out news to the morning papers at a certain hour in the afternoon and once again in the afternoon. Newspaper reporters will be given a bulletin at three hours containing the items which we care to give you. There will be no use coming around for it at other hours, or asking questions.

Afternoon newspaper reporters in future are to be denied free access to the chief's or the detectives' offices. Heretofore it has been the custom at police headquarters for reporters to mingle with and converse freely, and as often as they liked, with the various tabs of the department. They will be denied this privilege in future and as an evidence that the authorities mean all they say, it may be stated that a representative of an evening paper was ejected from the police headquarters yesterday. It will be useless for reporters, upon securing an outside tip, to depend on the police department for details of a story or crime, but they will be compelled to either accept what the department chooses to give out, and at stated hours, and rest content with only the most meager facts, or work the story on the outside on their own hook.

The restrictions have been placed on afternoon papers only. The Richmond police department fails to give its reasons for this movement against the afternoon papers. Newspaper men have much with which to contend. Some people imagine they have no right any one is bound to respect, while another class often look upon them with about as much patience as they do newspaper boys. Such discourtesies, however, are generally shown by those clothed in a little brief authority. Some one in deciding the offense, "contempt of court," said it depended altogether on the character of the tribunal. It might be regarded as a trivial matter by the United States Supreme Court but a very grave offense if committed before a rural justice in a blacksmith shop at a country cross roads.

SOME of the progressive republicans in Washington are still unconvinced that Senator Aldrich's announcement of retiring is made in good faith and without mental reservation. They believe his retirement will depend on the result of this fall's congressional election. If the democrats capture the House, Mr. Aldrich, these progressives figure, will refuse re-election, as democratic control of the House would make it impossible to carry out his central bank plan or to serve further in a legislative way the interests he represents. But in the unlikely event that the republicans retain their majority in the House, then the progressives believe Mr. Aldrich will claim this is a vindication for him, and will yield to the demands of his friends that he take one more term in the Senate. It will be also observed that Senator Hale's announcement that he will not be a candidate for re-election has a string to it.

HOLDING that the church and politics should be entirely separate and distinct, the membership of the Second Baptist Church, of Richmond, at its regular monthly meeting Monday night, refused the request of the Anti-Saloon League to conduct field day services in May and to take up a collection for its work. The meeting was largely attended by male members of the church, and it took less than three minutes to vote down the request which was the sensible thing to have done. The bringing of churches into politics is what is lessening their influence.

AN ABLE article on the validity of the act by which Alexandria was retroceded to Virginia, written by former Judge J. K. M. Norton, of this city, will be found on the first page of today's Gazette. The article will be read with interest. The judge's summary of the constitutionality of the act forming the last six paragraphs of the article, is incontrovertible. "Congress," he says, "was left entirely free to fix and change the seat of government at pleasure, which fact was admitted in the debates on that question."

From Washington.

Washington, April 21—Confessions of the reported preparations in Cuba to forestall a negro uprising have been received at the State Department in dispatches from the American Minister at Havana, John B. Jackson. The government, however, has assured the minister that no serious trouble is anticipated. As a precautionary measure Santiago de Cuba has been garrisoned with permanent force. Troops have been also sent to Santa Clara, the white people being in fear of a negro uprising.

The reductions announced by the wholesale trade reached the retail grocer and produce dealers today. Washington commission men attribute the drop to the vast quantities of fresh vegetables from the southern farmers arriving on every train. The markets are flooded with green stuffs of all sorts forcing the price of canned goods down and making the housekeeper's lot easier than for a long time past. Receipts by commission merchants, of butter, eggs and poultry have jumped, due to the early spring and drop in the price of feed, which means a material cut. Altogether the housewife will find great joy in the market from now on, and the "honest farmer," it whose door the blame has been laid, will be lauded by her for his part in forcing values down to the housekeeping pocket-book.

The Department of the Interior, at the head of which is Secretary Ballinger, Gifford Pinchot's political enemy, today gave authority for the naming of a tree after Mr. Pinchot in the Muir Woods Monument grove in California, upon the request of the Sierra Club of San Francisco. The tree to be named after the former chief forester is said to be one of the finest specimens of the giant redwoods in California.

That the Department of Justice intends to prosecute what it believes to be wrong doing, no matter who may be hurt, is indicated by the statement of Attorney General Wickham today, when, in answer to the question as to whether he had noticed that it was charged that his investigation into the cotton pool had been started at the instance of some "beast" operators who found themselves unable to deliver the goods, he said: "Yes, I have seen that intimation; but I guess I can bear under the imputation. This is the Department of Justice and while I am at its head I shall endeavor to see that justice is administered whether it happens to hit the bulls or the bears in the stock market."

Commissioner of Labor Neill, who has been in Chicago endeavoring to select a third arbitrator in the dispute between the 48 railroads running west of that city and their firemen and engineers, is expected to return here today ready to announce his selection. Some time in the course of the day he will have a conference with Chairman Knapp, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the other government mediator, and, if the latter approve, the name of the third arbitrator will be made public. Today the arbitrators in the controversy between the Southern Railway Company and its telegraphers met for the purpose of choosing an umpire or third arbitrator. J. J. Dermody, vice-president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, represented the employees and J. S. B. Thompson, of Atlanta, assistant to the president of the Southern Railway, represented the railroad. They have five days, beginning today, in which to reach an agreement and in the event of failure they will request the government mediators to find the third man. The latter have already settled satisfactorily most of the grievances of the men and the only questions now outstanding in this case are those of wages and hours of labor of certain classes of employees.

Thomas Walsh, an inmate of the insane asylum, wandered away from there last night and jumped into the river. He found the water too cold and swam to the shore. They took him back.

Eight cadets expelled from West Point are finding friends in the Senate. The committee on military affairs today recommended the passage of the bill to reinstate the cadets so that they may have the benefit of a law recently passed which gives the cadet charged with hazing the benefit of a trial by court martial.

President Flinders of the Dairywomen's Union today for two hours fought the battle of the dairymen against the Burlington bill removing the tax on oleomargarine before the House committee on agriculture.

Flinders finally admitted that a law preventing or effectually minimizing the fraud in the sale or use of oleomargarine as butter whether or not that bill included a tax on oleomargarine would be satisfactory to him. He refused, however to answer for other than himself.

California wine manufacturers won a victory before the War Food and Drug Board of the Department of Agriculture today. That body decided that port and sherry manufactured in California need not be labeled only as "California port or sherry," and not "port or sherry."

Out of 72 candidates who took the recent examination for positions as cadets of the line in the revenue cutter service only 19 passed. They will all receive appointments. Among the names are E. F. Stone, of Norfolk, Va., and H. S. Dodd, of Portsmouth, Va.

Mrs. Jane Fagg, widow of a Mexican war veteran and a cousin of Senator Bob Taylor, was found dead in bed this morning at 1501 Eleventh at east northwest.

Prices Declining.
New York, April 21.—To the farmer, who just now is being blamed for the high cost of most products, the wholesale grocery is today giving credit for the downward march of prices of other food products. Sample reductions reported were: Flour, one and one-half cents; beans, fifteen cents bushel; potatoes, 35 cents a barrel.

Philadelphia, Penn., April 21.—Nearly all foodstuffs are getting cheaper and are likely to remain so for some time, according to wholesale grocers here today. Canned goods have been reduced an average of two cents a can. Dried fruits are selling from 30 to 35 cents a bushel cheaper, and the price of flour has been reduced 30 cents a barrel. While there has been a slight drop in the price of pork, there has been no appreciable reduction in beef, which still remains high.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 21.—The present material decrease in the cost of food stuffs will be followed by a further slump according to the prediction of local market men, grocers and butchers today.

A Demoted Engineer
Wilmington, Del., April 21.—Because he said the Lord told him to, William C. Moore, an engineer on the New York division of the Pennsylvania Railroad sent his engine and train of freight cars into another freight train north of Elgin, another station yesterday afternoon. The engine and one of the cars on the latter train were smashed and caught fire. The particulars were not made known until today. Moore jumped from his engine which was badly damaged and fought with the yardmen. He was finally overpowered and manacled.

Miss Emma Hume Cawood, daughter of W. H. B. Cawood, died at her home in King George county, on Tuesday. She is survived by two sisters and two brothers.

Mr. Roosevelt in Paris.

Paris, April 21.—Half-past seven in the morning is awfully early in Paris, but nevertheless there was a big crowd at the Eastern depot at that hour today to welcome Mr. Roosevelt on his arrival from Budapest.

The ex-president was whisked away in the automobile to Ambassador Bacon's house in the Rue Fracaso quarter where he and Kermit met Mrs. Roosevelt and Ethel. Mr. Roosevelt remained at the Bacon home until time to go to an informal luncheon at the American Embassy.

The ex-president called upon President Fallieres at the Elysee Palace and upon Foreign Minister Pichon at the latter's office. Both Fallieres and Pichon returned the visits at the Bacon home.

The president has tendered Mr. Roosevelt the use of his box at the Comedie Francaise for tonight, the bill being "Ua Caprice" and "Ondine Boi."

Tomorrow's big events will be a reception by the American business men in Paris at the embassy and the dinner by the president.

On Saturday Mr. Roosevelt will give the first of his European lectures before the faculty and students of the University of Sorbonne on "Citizenship in a Republic."

Monday the presentation of a gold medal from the city will take place at the city hall. Tuesday Mr. Roosevelt will visit the military academy at Saumur.

The colonel was today shown a copy of the New York Sun, in which he was quoted as saying that the Methodists of Rome were worse than the Catholics and that when he returned to the United States he would take steps to have them driven from Rome. When he had read the story, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The statement is an unqualified falsehood, and the Sun must have known it was a falsehood when it printed it."

D. A. R.

Washington, April 21.—A mysterious woman crook, wearing the insignia of the D. A. R. was the foremost consideration in the minds of the Daughters when today's session of the Continental Congress convened, with a million dollars worth of jewelry on display.

Two rings, one a $3,000 diamond and the other a valuable diamond and sapphire jewel, have been lost by two of the Daughters during the sessions of the Congress. The police have not been able to secure the slightest trace of the gems.

They have reached the conclusion that the thefts are the work of a woman crook who obtains entrance to the hall by means of a fake badge. A man could not venture among the Daughters if bent of nefarious business, while a clever woman could easily pass herself off as a member.

The Alabama Mine Horror.
Birmingham, Ala., April 21.—When the hospital car of the Tennessee Mining Company reached Malaga today, where fifteen white and from ten to twenty-five negro miners were entombed by an explosion last night, plans were completed to send men into the mine. The work of rescue is difficult. The shaft house was destroyed, the cages sprung, and the timbering above the first level blown out.

Attempts to enter the mine to aid those entombed were futile, owing to the gas, and there was an all-night wait until the hospital car, equipped with gas helmets and life-saving apparatus, got to the scene.

There is a chance that some of those entombed are alive although old miners say the possibility is remote, as fire followed the blow out and gas is present in large quantities.

The Pope Severs Diplomatic Relations.
Rome, April 21.—The pope has severed diplomatic relations with the little principality of Monaco on account of the prince of Monaco's proposed conference with the king and queen of Italy on his hobby of oceanography. The prince comes to Rome April 27. Though a Catholic sovereign he will not be received by the pope, having announced his intention of first visiting the king and queen.

Women Clubbed and Arrested.
New York, April 21.—Forty women were severely clubbed and then arrested today following a riot in connection with the strike in the American Cordage Manufacturing Company's plant in the Green Point section of Brooklyn. Yesterday the management had refused to allow the women to work indefinitely because of the strike. Some former employees wanted to return to work and the decision was reconsidered. When the decision was to get back today they were attacked by a mob in which women and girls predominated. Free-for-all fights, with bat pins as the favorite weapons, followed. Police reserves charged the crowd, which fought back. By free use of clubs the police finally got the upper hand.

Quiet Requested.
Pittsburg, April 21.—Quiet was resumed at McKees Rocks today when 2,500 strikers returned to work at the Pressed Steel Car Company's plant. It is estimated that 2,500 are still idle.

Both of the members who resigned yesterday, Mrs. Rachel Foster Avery and Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, were present at the meeting yesterday, taking part in the deliberations of the board.

A matter considered of vital importance by the committee, and on which they spent much time in discussing, was the practical details of the suffrage campaign between now and next fall in the four states—South Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon and Washington—in which the suffrage question will be brought to an issue at the election, and it is likely that the main strength of the organization will be concentrated on these localities during the next few months.

Sixty-first Congress.

Washington, April 21.

SENATE

The resolution appropriating $65,000 for the collection of statistics relating to prices and wages was again taken up in the Senate today.

Opposition was urged by Senator Johnstone, member of the committee now investigating the increased cost of living. He said the present retail prices were well known and wisely fluctuated. Nothing would be accomplished by expending $65,000 and the committee would then be no nearer a conclusion as to the causes for advanced prices than it is at present. He read dispatches from New York indicating that the cost of living is now decreasing.

Senator Johnstone also reads reports showing that beef can be imported and sold at six cents per pound less than the home product and investigating that point.

"The recent elections shows there will be a struggle for existence among our friends on the other side," said Mr. Johnstone.

The resolution was also opposed by Senator Bristow, who said all investigations are more expensive than is necessary.

The resolution went over without action until tomorrow.

The Senate further discussed the administration railroad bill.

HOUSE.

By a neat parliamentary maneuver, Representative Fowler, (rep. N. J.), today gave the republican regulars in the House an uneasy few minutes. The House was apparently set for another such rule fight as abolished the committee on rules on March 17.

Mr. Fowler presented as "a matter of privilege," a resolution for a "committee on committees" to elect all standing committees of the House and which would, in effect, reduce the speaker to a mere presiding officer.

In speaking on his resolution Mr. Fowler said:

"The centralization in the speaker of the right to appoint committees and to control legislation through the committee on rules and the power of recognition made him the most pervasive and anti-republican influence in American political life. To say that the consequence of these powers has made the office a glib machine of political black mail is only to state what everybody now admits. How often have we seen men rolling in the dust of expectation before this throne of political dispensation or groveling in the mire of cowardice and contemptibility before this juggernaut of brutal despotism. What convictions have not been sufficed by a sense of gratitude; what opinions have not been suppressed by an overwhelming hope; what impulses have not been poisoned by a debasing fear of this system. We have seen truculent scoundrels reap the harvest of their subservience, while honest and brave men have been put to the political sword."

Representative Payne, the republican floor leader, raised a point of order against the measure as not being privileged. Meanwhile a call of the House was ordered. The greatest confusion ensued. Mr. Fowler's move evidently being unexpected by everybody.

Mr. Fowler stated that he did not wish to be heard on the point of order. "The resolution itself provides for consideration on May 2. I want to move to refer it to the committee on rules. I simply desired to call the attention of the House to it. But every gentleman who has introduced a bill today might similarly call the attention of the House to it," said the speaker, mad clear through, "and if that were done on the 20,000 bill introduced every year the House would have to be in session ten or twenty years. The usual way is for the members to place their bills in the basket."

"Well that is what I will do," answered Mr. Fowler. "I now withdraw my resolution from present consideration and will place it in the basket." And then the New Jersey member slowly marched down and did so.

The speaker handed his gavel with anger. "The gentleman, having consumed 40 minutes of time of the House at this stage of the session now withdraws the resolution as he has the right to do, and says he puts it in the basket." Bang went the gavel.

The House split into wilds, the republican side because of the relief at there not being another rule fight precipitated, and the democrats and insurgents at the next way in which Mr. Fowler had forced attention to his resolution and scolded the organization.

The House sent the rivers and harbors bill to conference.

D. A. R.

In the D. A. R. Congress in Washington yesterday an echo of the storm of Tuesday was heard when, as the minutes of that troublous session were read, Mrs. M. A. Ballinger, of Washington, made a motion, "in view of the present harmony within the national body," that all reference to the vote of censure directed at the recording secretary-general, Miss Mary R. Wilcox, be expunged from the record. It was not necessary to put this proposition to a vote, because the cries of "No!" "No!" from all parts of the hall made it evident that the supporters of Mrs. Mathew T. Scott, the president-general, were determined to retain all the outward evidences of their victory.

At yesterday's session, after some debate, the report of the magazine committee, as submitted by the chairman, Mrs. Ellen Spencer Mussey, was adopted. This recommended that the position of business manager of the official organ of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the American Monthly, be abolished and be published by contract with some large printing company. The magazine has lost money for the society ever since it was started, the grand total of the loss in 18 years aggregating $64,234.97. And this loss has been greater with each successive year because of the increasing volume of the record of the annual congress, which has been printed, heretofore, in three successive monthly issues following the adjournment of the congress. The loss in 1909-10 was over $6,000. The congress provided for the publication of its minutes in a separately bound and indexed book.

Many social functions were held last night in honor of the Daughters. As a result of two daring thefts committed by pickpockets among the members of the D. A. R. at Continental Hall recently, Maj. Sylvester has detailed a squad of detectives to the hall to guard against another robbery and, if possible, to detect and apprehend the perpetrators of the crimes reported.

Nine vice president-generals were elected today and another ballot will have to be taken to choose the tenth. Among those elected were Mrs. Virginia R. Shackelford of Virginia. No honorary vice president generals were chosen.

Train Derailed.
Bessemer City, N. C., April 21.—The Birmingham sleeper and a tourist car of the Southern Railway passenger train No. 29 were overturned today when the train left track after striking a broken rail near here. Mrs. Jones, whose residence was not far from the scene, was injured to the head and was attended by a physician.

The overturned coaches did not contain many passengers and the railroad officials announced that Mrs. Jones was the only person hurt. The train was traveling at a high rate of speed and the track was badly damaged for three hundred feet. The trainmen, porters and passengers were all slightly bruised and badly jarred.
