"PENTACOSTAL" SCENES.

Strange things are seen, strange words are heard this week at Beulah Park, Cleveland, Ohio where the annual sessions of the Christian Missionary Alliance are being held. The gift of tongues has been received, delegates proclaim; the pentecost has again been evidenced.

The great tent in which the sessions are held was hurriedly emptied Wednesday afternoon when the strange gift was believed to have fallen to the lot of one of their number. Prayer meeting was in progress. The reverent intentions of the speaker of the meeting suddenly were interrupted by a piercing scream. A man, sitting well toward the back of the audience sprang to his feet, one arm upraised, his index finger pointing towards the sky. It was he who had uttered the cry.

The assemblage was stilled. Then the man, possessed by a religious frenzy, broke the silence, speaking rapidly, excitedly, his arm still pointing heavenward.

Every eye was turned in his direction. No one understood what the man was saying. He spoke in a strange tongue, if tongue it was, unintelligible syllables finding vent in a flow of incoherent utterance.

"It's the gift of tongues," the people whispered, one to another, their gaze fixed on the speaker. "It has come again. It's the gift of tongues!"

The speaker, his gaze intently fixed apparently on space, took no heed of his neighbor. He talked rapidly, fiercely, but of what he talked and to whom he talked none knew nor understood.

The side wall of the tent was hurriedly lowered. The assembled congregation, awe-stricken, quieted, fled out from the place, glancing uneasily over their shoulders as they went. One woman was left with the figure standing in the tent, motionless save for the movements of her lips. He had received the "gift of tongues," they said. He must not be interrupted.

For 15 minutes the man talked in a tongue which none before had heard. Then he collapsed, overcome by the frenzy which had seized him.

But the "gift" is not the only significant feature of the daily programme, for people are healed, the delegates believe, of all disease, no matter what. At the close of the stirring addresses Wednesday afternoon by Rev. J. Hudson Ballard, an invitation was extended to all who wished to be anointed with oil and healed of the tabernacle. About 25 remained.

This service was conducted by Rev. John Salmon, of Toronto, Canada.

About 20 knelt and received the anointing. It was an impressive sight. One man carried the bottle of oil and two others took turns in offering prayer. They assured the patients that no matter what the disease, whether it were "tuberculosis, tumor, nerves or any other ailment," they could all be healed.

One woman, a cripple and unable to walk, was duly anointed, and prayers were said for her recovery, but it was a noticeable fact that she did not get up and walk.

Sample Shoes, worth $5.00, $6.00 and $7.00; your choice, $2.24. See our windows, J. A. Marshall & Bro., 192 King street.

RIOTOUS STRIKERS.

One woman seriously shot, three strikebreakers badly beaten, a number of minor assaults perpetrated and the arrest upon the charge of felonious assault of Henry D. Morgan, the high-salaried refinery cashier, were incidents in the sugar strike in New York yesterday.

The shooting of the woman was an unintentional episode in an attack upon Russo Dogo by a band of strikers shortly after he had started home from the Williamsburg refinery.

Dogo has been working for six weeks since 2,000 men were walked out. He was escorted by two special policemen for several blocks, but as soon as they left his strikers sprang from around.

Dogo was down on his knees taking a terrible beating from the men, who used clubs and sticks, when suddenly a revolver was drawn—by Dogo, it is alleged—and Mrs. Ray Gewitz fell with a bullet in her left leg.

Police put both Mrs. Gewitz and Dogo in the patrol wagon and took them to a hospital.

Louis Deimer and Frank Benner, strikebreakers, later started home and got as far as the park under the Williamsburg bridge, when they were attacked by a band of strikers lying in wait behind a pier.

The men were badly beaten before policemen dispersed the band and arrested the assailants.
