EXPLOSION ON A GUNBOAT.
A dispatch from Port au Prince, Hayti, says seventy men are dead and the Haytian gunboat La Liberté lies at the bottom of the Atlantic ocean, near Port de Paix as the result of the explosion on board Tuesday. Confirmation of the report of the sinking of the La Liberté reached Port au Prince yesterday. The La Liberté was formerly an American steam yacht, the Erl King.

Of the 90 persons on board the gunboat, only 20 were rescued. The dead were either killed in the explosion or drowned. Port de Paix lies on a promontory jutting into the ocean just south of Tortuga Island.

A storm was raging off the coast at the time of the accident and those who put off from the craft reached shore with the greatest difficulty. The coast at Port de Paix is a desolate stretch and the sea is always rough from a heavy swell that runs off the main-land.

The wind was blowing a gale and the waves were dangerously high. The lifeboats were overcrowded and for a time it looked as though no one would escape.

The gunboat was badly torn by the explosion and was left at the mercy of the battering seas. She was settling when the men deserted her.

Among those who were drowned were 10 Haytian generals who were on their way to take command of several army divisions in the north.

The Haytian government purchased the Erl King from Albert E. Tower, of Tougheepsie, N. Y., about a year ago.

SHOT HIS SWEETHEART.
Hearing four pistol shots from the parlor where their daughter, Miss Bertha Grimstead, was entertaining Richard Norris, her fiance, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grimstead, residing near Virginia Beach, were horrified to find the body of the young man lying in the hallway of their home, blood pouring from his head, while their daughter lay on the parlor floor, shot through the hand and left breast. The young lady's wound is not necessarily fatal, but Norris will probably die, the bullet he fired into his head after shooting Miss Grimstead having penetrated his skull. It is believed that Miss Grimstead threw her hand in front of her to shield her heart, which accounts for that wound. It is stated that Norris objected to Miss Grimstead receiving attention from another suitor.

A TARDY BRIDEGROOM.
Because the bridegroom overslept, the wedding of Miss Minnie Snyder, of North Paterson, N. J., to Albert Gigher, who is employed on the Erie Railroad and lives in Hoboken, took place five hours later Tuesday than the scheduled time.

Rev. Father Van Zile had arranged to perform the ceremony at a nuptial mass at 9 o'clock in St. Anthony's Chapel, Hawthorne. After waiting an hour past the appointed time, Father Van Zile sent a messenger to the home of the bride. Miss Snyder, in her bridal robes, sat in the parlor, weeping.

Gigher arrived at noon, very much perturbed. He explained that he was tired after working all night and lay down for a brief rest. He fell asleep and did not wake up until after 10 o'clock.

The wedding ceremony took place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon without a nuptial mass and with only a few relatives present.

BLOWN TO SEA.
Three men aboard a launch belonging to the Maryland Dredging Company and engaged in dredging operations off Thimble Light, five miles from Old Point, had a terrible experience Tuesday night. While lighting the spars marking the limits of the dredging, they were caught in the 42-mile-an-hour gale that swept the coast at sunset and were driven straight eastward through the capes and out to sea. Their engine was unable to make any headway against the gale, and finally it broke down. All night the men faced death aboard their frail craft. Yesterday morning they were 20 miles off Cape Henry and drifting rapidly to the southeast. Without food or water aboard, their plight was terrible. They were finally able to work in shore near enough for their signals of distress to be seen by the crew of Little Island life saving station, who went to their assistance in the life boat. The men were finally gotten into the quarters of the life saving crew, where they were made as comfortable as possible before being sent to Norfolk.

RACE SUICIDE.
Dr. E. T. Brady, of Abingdon, president of the Virginia Medical Society, Tuesday night startled 200 physicians in Norfolk who heard him with the following sensational remarks:
"Squeamishness is never sincere
