DIPSOMANIAC'S FRIEND

"If any man doubts that candy will relieve the drink habit," says the Medical World under recent date, "he can easily test it."

This paper goes on: "The man who puts lots of molasses on his wheat cakes at breakfast will find himself gradually forgetting to stop in for his customary drink on his way to work. If the man who 'goes out' between times for liquid refreshments will go into a candy store instead and get five or ten cents worth of candy and eat it, he will be surprised at the effect. It will not be very long until he will have candy on his desk and carry it in his pockets. Not one man in a hundred knows why he forgot to go out and see a man when attending the theatre, if he had bought a box of candy for his companion and eaten a little of it himself for politeness' sake."

I have known many men who were accustomed to the use of alcoholic stimulants, and among them I have never known a man who cared anything for candy. The reason for this is simple: Sugar taken into the system is acted on by the digestive fluids, fermented and thereby produces a mild alcoholic ferment, which while not in the least harmful, supplies elements absolutely necessary in the human economy in producing bodily warmth and blood vitality. The moderate eating of candy at frequent intervals will absolutely relieve the alcoholic craving as no other thing will do, and this information is of such vital importance that it ought to be given the widest publicity to insure the greatest benefit to those who need it most.

The above is suggestive at the present time in Virginia.
