BURGLARS AT ROSE CREEK. Chas. R. Varco and his son, Edward, had a nocturnal visitor early Thursday morning. They slept in their store at Rose Creek Wednesday night and about 2 o'clock they heard a noise at the front door. They saw a man outside watching at the door and kept watch of him until the marshal discovered him when Mr. Varco opened the door and ordered his arrest. It transpired that the man outside was patiently waiting for his pard whom he had boosted into the store through the transom over the doors. As soon as Mr. Varco made a stir the man inside hid to await developments. As Ed was going to the rear of the store to get a lantern to assist the marshal he stumbled over the hiding burglar and caught him. Both burglars were taken before Justice Rettrath and bound over to the grand jury. They were lodged in the county jail. It seems that before visiting Varco's they had been in Schartz's saloon where they took both cigars and liquor. They were recognized by the Austin police as part of the bunch of hoboes who were in trouble in Austin Wednesday morning. One of them hails from Hopkins, Minn. TRAMPS ARE PLENTY HERE. Monday morning six of them were sent to the county jail for thirty days. The hobo nuisance is a condition and not a theory and they ought to be dealt with in a summary manner. SAM LANGUM WAS DESPERATE. There may have been a good deal of sameness in the deadly stuff which Tawney's cuckoos were paid to circulate in the First district. Indeed, something might very well be said about the reproach brought upon Minnesota journalism by the readiness of newspapers heretofore considered independent when properly approached to join the cuckoo chorus. But about the work of one newspaper man at least there was nothing half-hearted. Sam Langum was desperately in earnest. In every pose he assumed it was transparent that his heart was in the cause. Whether as Chanticleer he greeted Tawney's rise as heralding the dawn of the First district millennium; whether going frantically up and down Fillmore county pleading with tears streaming down his face that his patron be retained, or whether from the exalted position he has attained he pointed the finger of scorn at lesser journalistic lights, Sam always gave incontrovertible evidence that in choosing him to lead the cuckoo chorus Tawney had made no mistake. So long as that postoffice job was in sight Sam would move heaven and earth to keep hold of it. Tawney's defeat meant his dismissal, and thrifty Sam knew it. No labor was too great if by any means the latter catastrophe could be prevented. Northfield News. One of the Sewer Diggers Killed. Last Saturday just before noon, Aaron Fox, aged about 25, was killed in the big sewer trench running south on West street past the fair grounds. He was at the bottom of the trench digging under the ends of the planks as they were driven down when, without warning, the sand on one side caved in and the other side also gave way so that Fox was caught in the plank and the life was crushed out of him. He was buried in the sand nearly up to his shoulders. Workmen got to work quickly to get the lifeless body out. Coroner Lewis was called and viewed the scene of the accident and the body was taken to Donovan & Goslee's undertaking rooms. It was shipped in the evening to Fox's home at West Salem, Wis. The ditch was about twelve feet deep where the accident occurred. The planks were driven down each side of the trench and are held by heavy plank running horizontally kept apart with jack screws. Fox was in the employ of Thill & Lapitz of La Crosse, contractors, who are putting in a 24-inch sewer for surface drainage from the vicinity of the S. M. Normal college west and south to Turtle creek. Oldest Club in Minnesota. The Floral club of Austin, which is said to be the oldest woman's club in the state, has joined the Minnesota federation.
