The Rose Creek creamery took in the first cream Monday. Heretofore the stores had been handling the cream, but it was all turned over to the creamery today and it certainly is enough cream to keep a large institution doing business. The amount of cream handled by the merchants of Rose Creek was certainly enormous and will keep our large creamery busy to take care of it. A creamery is the proper place to handle cream and the merchants feel that the farmers will be well satisfied when they become accustomed to the new place of business.
