STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Conservative estimates of the money paid out for various kinds of live stock on the South St. Paul market the first half of 1914, placed the total sum received by farmers and shippers at $24,000,000, an average of $4,000,000 a month. These figures are based on carefully prepared averages and the statistics showing a total of slightly more than 19,000 car loads of stock received since Jan. 1, by far the largest marketward movement in the Northwest for the first half of any year since the South St. Paul market was established.

Thirty or more of the finest specimens of live stock obtainable in England will be added in October to the already famous herd of cattle at North Oaks, the country home of James J. Hill. Professor Thomas Shaw, agricultural and stock raising expert of St. Paul, who has been the director of Mr. Hill's stock raising experiments for some time, has sailed for England, where he will spend two months in searching the British cattle market for new stock.

The department of agriculture will spend about $20,000 in Renville county, this state, in the work of eradicating hog cholera. The work will begin at once and will be carried on in connection with other selected areas in different states, one county in each of twelve states having been chosen. About $500,000 will be expended, mostly in Western and Northwestern states.

Despondency over being away from his wife is believed to have led to the suicide of Alfred Moore, aged fifty years, chief clerk of the freight department of the Dan Patch line, whose body was found in the Lake of the Isles, Minneapolis. Moore came from England a month ago. His wife was to follow this fall, but it was said she was reluctant to do so.

Marriage license records for Hennepin county were broken with the issuance of 609 for June this year, as compared with the previous high record of 588 for June, 1913. Last month also smashed all previous records for one day, when forty-nine licenses were issued June 1, the largest previous day being forty-four.

Antone Wenzel, seventy-five years old, one of the pioneer residents of Minnesota, is dead at St. Paul as a result of old age. Mr. Wenzel has been a resident of Minnesota since 1841, when his parents moved to Centerville. They were the second white family to settle in that vicinity.

An employment bureau for self supporting students will be conducted by the University of Minnesota beginning this fall. The functions of the bureau, which heretofore have been conducted under the direction of the university Y. M. C. A., have been assumed by the university itself.

Thomas Sheehan, founder of the village of Caledonia, is dead at Minneapolis at the age of ninety-three years. He had been a resident of Minnesota for sixty-six years and lived in Caledonia until two years ago, when he removed to Minneapolis to live with his daughter.

A total of 59,436 automobile licenses have been issued by Julius A. Schmah, secretary of state, since the license law went into effect, Jan. 1, 1912. This represents the number of machines in Minnesota. During the first six months of this year 14,122 licenses were issued.

Three men were injured and damage estimated at $83,100 was wrought by fire which swept through half a block in the Midway district, between the Twin Cities, destroying a lumber shed with its contents, leveling a big horse barn and damaging a three-story hall building.

Candidates of the Progressive party for state offices may have to go through the formality of being nominated by petition, because their candidates in the primary failed to get 10 per cent of the average vote cast for the state candidates of the party two years ago.

Peter Thauwald, aged sixty-four, for forty-four years a resident of St. Paul and a former member of the legislature, is dead. He came to America from Saxony when seventeen years old. He was in the bakery business for many years.

BOMB DESTROYS TENEMENT HOUSE

Terrific Explosion Results in Four Deaths.

POLICE MAKE GHASTLY FIND

Believed Accident Occurred While Bomb Was Being Prepared for Use Against Rockefeller.

New York, July 6.—In the ruins of the Lexington avenue tenement house wrecked by the premature explosion of a powerful bomb which killed Arthur Caron and three other persons the authorities found evidence that Caron's apartment was the center for the distribution of inflammatory literature which was printed there and at the time of the explosion it was apparently a bomb factory, filled with the ingredients of death dealing missiles.

A small printing press, revolutionary pamphlets and circulars, an electric dynamo, two electric batteries, cartridges and bits of steel were among the articles uncovered, which tend, in the opinion of the police, to show an anarchistic plot at assassination. That a demonstration, halted by the bungling of some one who was preparing an infernal machine for its mission, was planned against the Rockefeller family in Tarrytown is the theory upon which the authorities are working.

Faced Trial at Tarrytown.
Two of those killed in the wrecked apartment were prominent agitators, who were to be placed on trial at Tarrytown on charges of disorderly conduct in connection with the campaign of demonstration inaugurated against John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as a protest against his attitude in the Colorado coal mine strike.

The body of the fourth victim of the explosion was found. It was that of Charles Berg, known in I. W. W. circles as "the big Swede," an associate of Caron. The other victims were Charles Hanson and Mary Claston. The woman lived in an apartment next to the one occupied by Caron and his associates.

A gruesome but suggestive piece of evidence was a severed hand which clutched pieces of wire made ready for connections. The authorities believe that the owner of this hand was in the act of making an electric connection for one of the bombs and a battery when the explosion occurred and he was blown to pieces.

SUFFRAGE STATE QUESTION

President Gives Party of Women His Personal Opinion.

Washington, July 1.—Five hundred members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs marched to the White House and drew from President Wilson a final refusal to accede to demands that he support the movement for a woman suffrage amendment to the federal Constitution.

The president reiterated his statement to previous delegations that his party had not embodied this question in its platform and then for the first time announced his personal conviction that the suffrage issue was one for settlement by the states and not by the federal government.

It was the first of a series of talks the president plans to have in the near future with captains of industry and finance, learning their views and giving his own on the industrial and financial situation of the country as well as measures in congress.

White House officials said the conference between the president and Mr. Morgan had been just a friendly discussion of the general subject. Mr. Morgan refused to disclose what had taken place. ## DEATH REMOVES FAMOUS BRITON

Joseph Chamberlain Expires After Long Illness.

STRONG FOR IMPERIALISM

His Policy as Premier Undoubtedly Responsible for Great Britain's War With the Boers.

London, July 4.—Right Honorable Joseph Chamberlain, one of the most commanding figures in British national and international politics, is dead. He succumbed after a protracted illness. The end was peaceful.

Mr. Chamberlain's last public appearance was at a garden party on the grounds of his Birmingham home May 6 last, when, with his wife and son, he received several hundred constituents. Mr. Chamberlain was wheeled out on the lawn in a chair and appeared very emaciated and feeble when he lifted his hat to friends and neighbors in acknowledgment of their salutes.

Mr. Chamberlain's death came as an entire surprise, as the condition of his health was not publicly known to be worse than at any time in the past two or three years.

Mrs. Chamberlain was a daughter of W. C. Endicott, secretary of war under President Cleveland.

"King of Birmingham."
Chamberlain was born in 1836 in Birmingham, which he held politically in the hollow of his hand. He was known as the "king of Birmingham." All the seven parliamentary seats of the great manufacturing city are held by Chamberlain nominees and a politician he opposed was simply wasting time when he made the race.

The dead statesman started political life as a Radical, but left Gladstone's party on the issue of home rule for Ireland, to which he was opposed. He held the highest posts under Conservative administrations and was secretary to the colonies from 1895 to 1902.

He went to great lengths to gain his ends and was the most cordially hated and loved political figure of his time.

His imperialistic policy, which led to the South African war, was the cause of assaults upon his person. None of them were successful.
