

THE EDITOR HOME AGAIN

Editor C. D. Belden was able to be brought home on a cot from Bethesda hospital St. Paul Saturday afternoon after being there for a little over a month. He was met at the depot here by a large company of friends including a delegation of Masons who conveyed him comfortably in the ambulance to his home where he is now resting and recuperating. He is getting some stronger daily and is able to walk about the room a little but it will take weeks before he will be able to do much. The Transcript has been in charge of the office force for over a month and the editor feels very grateful for their faithful efficient work as well as to correspondents and all others who have helped to make the paper of interest.

To the host of personal friends who have in so many ways shown their sympathy and affection during the editor's illness he feels especially grateful and they may be sure that he has heartily appreciated their innumerable acts and words of kindness. At this writing he hopes that he is on the road to reasonable recovery of health and strength.

Between Love and Duty.
"I want to talk to you about becoming your son-in-law," said the young man. "I can't advise you on the subject of becoming a member of the family," replied the father of the young woman in the case. "As your sincere friend, I ought to speak freely, but as a husband and father I am restrained."

Poor Adam.
"If Adam had lived till now," says Mr. Snowden, "and had worked hard at honest labor the whole time, and had been a thrifty man withal, he would not have had an income like some of those enjoyed today." Mr. Snowden is apparently presuming that Adam's wife would have lived as long as her husband.—Punch.
