Fabulous Cockatrice.

A cockatrice is a fabulous animal of the basilisk species. Its distinguishing characteristic was a crest or comb like a rooster's. Sir Thomas Browne, in his "Vulgar Errors," draws a clear distinction between a cockatrice and a basilisk. He even argues for the existence of such an animal.

Something to Forget.

The man who knows all about women should forget it if he values his own peace of mind.—Atlanta Journal.

the statute books of the state. Under it the mayor appointed and dismissed at will without any attention to law or merit and the so called civil service commission is like a rubber ball on the Atlantic ocean. To my mind there's lots of truth in this remark. Real civil service is one thing and the sham is decidedly another. When merit prevails in spite of changin' administrations and politix and faithful, competent appointees are retained it works right, but when in spite of merit officials are shoved out to make room for political favorites and neophytes without any other claim than standin' in with the powers that be their worth and deservin' work are thru to the winds. I'm not speakin' of lettin' out public servants who get old and incompetent but of protectin' those in positions, who have the promise and legal guarantee of keepin' their positions on good service no matter for shifts and changes in the heads.

When it comes to causin' respectable young men to blush and be ashamed to dance with gals because they are so improperly and scantily dressed it looks like the limit was pretty near reached. They do say that in some of the dancin' parties among the high bloods and the people who call themselves respectable and proper some of the gals wore such attenuated attire with the V almost a foot under the chin, and no undershirts on but dress short and flimsy. It looks like this was goin' too far for anybody. I can't see what gals are thinkin' of to gain by such scanty riggin'. I know our folks were brought up differin'. We were educated to believe that the line of modesty was clearly defined and those who crossed its bounds were not respected so much but were gettin' altogether too public for propriety and the respect of those who believed in the old fashioned doctrines of modest demeanor and dress at all times. I can't say that the new ways are as wise or healthy or refined as the old were.

I see that the State Prison authorities have just published the prices for all kinds of bindin' twine for this year and these run some lower than last year. When I remember what exorbitant rubber prices us farmers used to pay to the twine trust before this prison plant was started I can easily figger the millions the farmers have saved by gettin' out of the trust's clutches. It's one of the best things that the State ever went into. It keeps the prison inmates busy so they don't get morose and despondent in idleness and it doesn't interfere with any industries in the state outside. No wonder the twine trust don't like it and a determined effort is to be made in this present legislatur to repeal the law so as to break up the manufacturer of prison twine by the state. I tell you it will be a sorry day for any legislator who votes in favor of it. There's not one good reason to break up this beneficent and successful manufacturer and every reason agensit it. It looks like n-thin' but boodle could influence anyone to prove traitor to the farmers and state's best interests and boodle taken for traitors' votes would be like a mill stode round their necks all the rest of their lives. Such renegades would have to move to Kamchatka for peace.

Care of the Feet.

The more the feet are bathed and rubbed the more comfort you will have. Rubbing the soles of the feet with a raw lemon is very restful after the bath. Keep the toe nails cut straight across, never cut down on the sides, and the cuticle around the nails should be kept loose. A strong, hot salt bath is very restful for the feet.
