Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Raspberries naturally belong in any scheme of mixed farming or gardening. They return large acreage earnings and can be made to fill up odd corners around the premises. If there is a bit of rough land on the place it can be made profitable by covering it with raspberry bushes at the rate of 800 to 1,000 per acre.
Where growers have good market facilities raspberries ought to pay $300 an acre above the cost of picking. A fair estimate of the average value is $200 to $300 an acre, allowing for unfavorable market conditions. The crop is reasonably sure and is easily handled by amateurs.
The conditions of berry growing have changed somewhat in recent years.

available yields. These are given a preservative, usually "one-tenth of 1 per cent of benzoate of soda," and shipped in pails, half barrels and barrels to the large cities, there likely to find a "last analysis" in jam and pie stock.
It would seem that at 10 to 12 cents a quart paid by the canneries for Cutberts there should be a reasonably good profit to the grower in disposing of his crop directly in this way.
After the raspberry has yielded its fruit all old canes and all superfluous new ones should be cut out to let in the sun and to allow the few strong new ones all the vitality in the root for next season's bearing. Five strong new shoots are considered sufficient among expert growers, and there is an adage among all great fruit growers that a dead branch saps as much life from the parent stalk as does a live one.
If every twig, dead or living, that is not necessary to the production of fruit be dumped in a heap rods away and burned the vines will be improved and insect pests and diseases galore will be avoided. Then cultivate between the rows.
A New Use For the Manure Spreader.
A simple adjustment, according to the United States department of agriculture, will enable the farmer to use his manure spreader when desirable as a wagon for bringing in root crops intended for stock feed. The cylinder or spreader is first removed from the end of the box and a suitable end board set in place and held by an iron bar or rod. At the door of the root cellar the end board can be readily lifted out and the crank which connects with the apron shift put on. The roots can then be readily rolled through the door by turning the crank by hand. In this way the load can be delivered in a few moments.
The advantages of this scheme are obvious, for under ordinary circumstances the manure spreader is idle while the harvest is in progress.
Director Quisenberry of the national egg laying contest, Mountain Grove, Mo., gives these rules for breeding poultry:
Breed only from stock of high vitality, which has never been seriously sick with any disease.
Breed from mature males and females.
Breed from birds as near ideal in shape and color as possible. A good all round bird is better to use as a breeder than a bird exceptionally good in one point and exceptionally poor in others.
Let the male be exceptionally strong in points where the female is weakest, and vice versa.
Instead of buying ten males at $1 each and thus getting very ordinary males to head your flock, it is much better to get one good male at $10 and mate him in a separate pen to ten or twelve of your very choicest females.
The condition of the parent stock is largely, in fact almost wholly, responsible for the condition of the baby chicks. A chick well born is half raised.
Good strong, vigorous males and females, properly mated, will store so much vitality in the eggs that the embryo can stand a lot of abuse in incubation, and the baby chick will overcome and outlive many of our mistakes in faulty breeding and subsequent feeding.

100 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Yes, waiting for every farmer or farmer's son--any industrious American who is anxious to establish for himself a happy home and prosperity. Canada's hearty invitation this year is more attractive than ever. Wheat is higher but her farm land just as cheap and in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta the excellent grasses full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent. Military service is not compulsory in Canada but there is an excellent demand for farm labor to replace the heavy losses of our own countrymen in the war. Write for literature and particulars to the nearest Canadian agent.

100 Acre Homesteads are Actually Free to Settlers and
Other Land at From $15 to $25 per Acre

The people of European countries as well as the American continent must be fed--thus an even greater demand for Canadian Wheat will meet up the price. Any farmer who can buy land at $15.00 to $20.00 per acre--get a dollar for wheat and raise 20 to 45 bushels to the acre is bound to make money--that's what you can expect in Western Canada. Wonderful fields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Indeed, Canada is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent. Military service is not compulsory in Canada but there is an excellent demand for farm labor to replace the heavy losses of our own countrymen in the war. Write for literature and particulars to the nearest Canadian agent.
