THE VILLAGE ELECTION The election on Tuesday resulted in a sweeping triumph for license and the license ticket. The Prohibition element did not make a straight fight for a ticket this time, but voted "no license." There were two tickets in the field, one nominated by the license element at a license caucus, and the other nominated at a general caucus composed, however, mostly of prohibitioniste. The straight license ticket won.

The result is as follows: President of Council-H. C. Shepard, Peter Thompson. 51 Majority, For Trustees-Frank Glasgow, (no opps.) 243

And now, gentlemen of the village, property owners especially who have something at stake, we recur to the position taken in last week's AD-VANCE, and for which we labored during the past week, viz.: make the liquor question a side issue, or only one issue, and let us all unite for the development of the town.

It may be that the license question is settled by the laws passed last winter and that we have no right to vote on the question. If this should be the interpretation of the laws, the matter will be settled for some time to come and we hope to see one village election on the sole issue of developing the

The Photographic Bulletin, of New York, says of his entertainment.

If the Burlington do not put their scrapers at work on the line soon some Prof. S. M. Spedon lectured before the Photographic section of the American Institute. The vividness with acters with crayon was loudly applauded, and the rapidity with which he drew full length portraits and land-scapes not only demonstrated his natural genius for art but was the evidence of much careful study. The interest and good humor were greatly heightened by his interesting, faceti

UNITED WE GROW. "In essentials unity, in non-essen tials liberty," is an old maxim of the Catholic church. It might apply here in Worthington to advantage.

The ADVANCE is pleased to see that its article on the village election struck the right cord and was endorsed by a large majority of our people. The gist of that article was that we must unite and pull together for the development of the town, and not put men in office simply on the issue of "license" or "no license." The time has come to remand the liquor question to the rear and to bring the making of our town to the front.

HOW TO SECURE SLEEP. R. H. Ross, of Rockford, Ill., writes us the following humorous and certain recipe for securing sleep. If only about 299 of those fellows who are losing sleep and tossing wildly on their beds because they are not paying up would read it and heed it, then we would all sleep soundly, printer and patron alike: I have slept but little of late and when I did sleep, I had troubled dreams; often dreaming that the devil (printer's) was after me. Last night after a terrible tussle with his inky majesty, I managed to awake. I immediately got up, and, sitting down by the cold stove began to ponder over my sins of commission and omission, and among the omissions I discovered that I had not paid the printer. I braced up and passed a resolution that the sun should not again go down on my de-linquency. I then went back to bed and had the sweetest sleep that I have and for six months.

Enclosed you will find -, which ereafter; for I feel relieved (of already.

Salem papers, it would seem, fare extremely bad. The News has been sold at sheriff's sale and the Register is in the hands of the sheriff.
