

LIVELY SHAKING UP FOR MR. DONNELLY

Ridiculed Statements Made in a St. Paul Speech by Mr. Horr,

Who Replies with a Terrific Battery of Dignified Argument.

Populist Fallacies Thoroughly Played by Republican Wisdom.

DONNELLY vs. HERR.

When the Minnesota Republican State Convention met in St. Paul July 11, a very earnest address was made by Mr. Horr, of New York, but formerly a Michigan Congressman.

Ignatius Donnelly, in a recent issue of his paper, ridiculed the public statements made by Mr. Horr, who in turn discusses the whole matter in the New York Tribune.

Donnelly vs. Horr.

Mr. Horr says in the Tribune:

I am in receipt of an article published in The Representative, a Populist paper located in Minneapolis. The person who sends it states that it was written by Ignatius Donnelly.

As a rule, I never notice public criticisms of my public work when they are couched in language which shows their author, whoever he may be, to lack ordinary politeness.

I was in St. Paul when the Republican state convention met, and had the honor of addressing the delegates there assembled for the space of 45 minutes.

"Why should we borrow money and pay interest on it, when experience shows that we can make just as good money ourselves and pay no interest?"

That question could be asked only by a person who believes in "flat" money.

Experience shows this and nothing more: That our government can issue a limited amount of notes, payable on demand, and keep such notes in circulation as long as it redeems them when demanded.

This Populist writer doesn't say how much of such money can be issued by a government and be kept good.

The wrath of this Populist writer seems to have been aroused by some things which I said at that state convention.

What Reduced Wages.

I quote from the article in the Representative, signed "I. D."

"Whenever you reduce wages, you stop consumption, and then the markets are ruined."

Well, who in thunder reduced wages? It was your Republican party, when it demonetized silver in 1873, and made the gold dollar the equivalent of twice as much of the workman's muscle and the farmer's toil.

The trouble with this statement is that it is not true. Wages did not begin to decline after the passage of the act of 1873.

There may have been a few isolated instances in which wages were lowered in the United States between those dates; but taken in the aggregate, the wages paid in gold dollars to each laboring man were increased during those 20 years.

THE DROPPING OF WAGES WHICH HAS RUINED OUR HOME MARKETS TOOK PLACE AFTER THE ELECTION OF 1892.—During the years 1890, 1891 and 1892, the people of this country were well employed, and at good wages.

duction in this country will bear me out in this statement. Let us try to be truthful about these matters.

It is the threatened free trade legislation of the Democratic party which has paralyzed business, thrown people out of employment and cut down the wages of laboring men here in the United States.

More Money Now Than Ever.

I quote again from the article in The Representative.

"They tell us that it is overproduction, when the fact is that it is lack of consumption, because there is nothing to buy with."

What do you buy with? Money. Who reduced the money of this country by demonetizing silver? The Republican party.

Again Mr. Horr said:

"The Republican party plants itself upon the position that we should make, as far as possible, everything we need right here at home."

To which "I. D." inquires:

Well, why don't you make your money at home? Why should we borrow money in England, and pay interest on it, when our experience during the war, with the first $40,000,000 of greenbacks, shows that we can make just as good money ourselves and pay no interest on it?

The statement which I actually made was this, that the working people of the United States could not buy articles as they had done in the past because their wages had been recently cut down or entirely stopped, and on that account the workmen had nothing with which to buy.

Nowhere did I intimate that such a state of affairs existed because there was no money in the country with which to buy.

The statement which I did make is absolutely true. The wages paid each day for work all over the United States for many years past have been the greatest distribution of wealth known anywhere on the face of the earth.

The statement which this writer seems to believe, and seeks to make me utter, is not true. The money of this country was not reduced in amount by the law of 1873.

TODAY IT IS NEARLY TWENTY FIVE DOLLARS for each man, woman and child in the United States.

In the face of this well known fact why keep asserting that there is such a lack of currency in this country? What we need is a revival of business, so as to make the money circulate which has all this time existed in the United States.

Because I stated that we should make as nearly as possible everything we need right here at home, this writer asks:

"Well, why don't you make your money at home?"

That question is founded on the assumption that money is a manufactured article like cotton cloth or woolen blankets. It is nothing of the kind.

"Why should we borrow money and pay interest on it, when experience shows that we can make just as good money ourselves and pay no interest?"

That question could be asked only by a person who believes in "flat" money.

Experience shows this and nothing more: That our government can issue a limited amount of notes, payable on demand, and keep such notes in circulation as long as it redeems them when demanded.

What This Fool Meant.

Mr. Donnelly seems to be angry because I attempted to illustrate that money must always be composed of some substance which possesses value in itself.

What this fool meant was that you can't have money without it having intrinsic value. Now everybody knows that a $1,000 United States bond is not only worth its face, but commands a large premium.

Did any one ever find more financial nonsense than is condensed into the brief question above? Mr. Donnelly tells us that a United States bond has no intrinsic value, that it does not cost 5 cents to make.

IN THE PROMISE OF WHICH THE PAPER IS EVIDENCE. That promise is and always must be an agreement TO PAY SOMETHING WHICH HAS INTRINSIC VALUE.

Money is used to facilitate exchanges. People make money by producing the articles out of which money is made or by producing the articles that can be exchanged for money.

obtained for paper money without any kind of redemption. I have tried for years to get some one of them to send me a sample of such wonderful paper money, as an anxious look at it, to examine it, so as to find out what it is like.

A Few Things Are Right.

Why wonder, then, that I should have said to my St. Paul audience:

You've got to meet a new party. A party that believes that everything was wrong and that everything is still wrong; that thinks that wisdom never struck the earth until a few years ago, when the first Populist was born.

"I. D." virtually admits that my claim as to the belief of his party is correct. Hear him:

And the new party, he says, "believes that everything is wrong." Well, isn't it wrong? Will Mr. Horr tell us what is right today? Now, even the money-lenders are not happy, for their securities are turning into chaff.

I assure this Populist writer that the world is full of things which are right. To name for him all such things would require volumes. To enumerate the blessings that I know about myself would be to write a book.

Honest men and women abound all over this nation. Our country is full of people who are striving to make this world better. It is right that such should be the case.

The great majority of the religious people of the world are sincere, are not hypocrites. They are struggling each day to live pure and upright lives. That, too, is quite right.

Mothers, as a rule, still love and care for their children as tenderly and as patiently as they have ever done. It is well.

The majority of our business men are upright and honest in their dealings. Our country is full of men whose word is good as their bond. That is right.

Most men in this country believe in decency, in law and order. Crime is not generally approved of by the masses; and means is not at a premium among our people.

The upward tendencies of civilization are generally recognized by the sensible men and women of the United States. This is all as it should be.

If wisdom struck the earth before the Populist party was born, where did it strike?" asks Ignatius. I answer:

It has been occasionally lighting through all the ages past. Solomon had a touch of it. Socrates and Plato would compare favorably with Donnelly and Weaver.

litigations it will be news to me. The world is full of business men who may be "old fogies" and yet they will hesitate to believe such foolishness as these Populists teach.

Some Fatherly Advice.

One word more I address directly to Mr. Donnelly himself. I am somewhat familiar, Ignatius, with your efforts to abolish snake-ashame, I meet some people who doubt your success in that effort.

Permit me just one suggestion. Whatever you attempt in the future try and let your efforts be governed by rules which are recognized as proper among all gentlemen.

According to the philosophy aptly stated by Gen. Garfield, you are compelled to live and associate with Ignatius Donnelly 365 days of each year of your natural life.

People may have honest differences in this world. They may state such differences in incisive and impressive language. Men of sense never object to clear cut and telling sentences.

That, however, never gives a man the right to indulge in vulgar invectives. Men of genuine culture never demean themselves by descending into the mire.

Considerable Speculation as to What Hawaiian Commissioners Want.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—There is some uncertainty manifested in congressional circles to know the exact purpose of the visit of Messrs. Parker, Cummings and Wideman, the royalist envoys from Hawaii.

While they talked with various members of congress, they have not confided to any one a definite impression of the ends which they hope to accomplish by their missions.

They represent that the present government cannot be considered a republic, and are not satisfied with the attitude of Mr. Willis, who is said to be as friendly to the American element as was his predecessor.

NOVEL BURIAL CASKETS.

An Audacious Innovation and an Entertaining Agent's Successful Campaign.

During the past few weeks Washington has been canvassed by the agent of one of the most peculiar pieces of funeral paraphernalia ever invented.

Despite the many ghastly features in connection with these coffins and the almost blasphemous talk of the enterprising agent, this city has proved to be a lucrative field for him to work, and now a number of citizens are equipped with the strangest burial appliances of the decade.

Primarily the coffin is fire and burglar proof. The case is made out of boiler iron hardened with old bone, spruce bark and leather, which forms an enamel that cannot be penetrated by chisel or drill.

There are two grades of coffins—those for vaults and those to be interred in graves. The coffin to be placed in a vault is equipped with torpedoes that can be exploded from the inside.
