Five cents will buy an ingenious package of Uneeda Biscuit in exactly the same condition as they left the baker's oven—crisp, tender, delicious. Every housewife should test them, every person should taste them. And the test is in the tasting—the most satisfactory test.

Uneeda Biscuit

are the highest and best development of the baker's skill. Everything that money can buy contributes to make them good—the best materials, the best machinery, the brightest expert biscuit experience. They are as good as good can be. Only sold in 5 cent moisture proof packages—never in bulk. Ask your grocer about them. Test by tasting.

From Camp McKenzie,
CAMP MCKENZIE,
January 27, 1939.

At the ADVANCE—
It has been some time since I have written anything concerning the Worthington company in camp here. The truth of the matter is I am a poor hand at waiting letters and besides there is not much to write about.

The health of the company continues good. The whole company is present except Chas. Peterson, who has been sick, and is now at his home in Jackson on a 30 days' furlough. The company is not nearly as large as it was when we were mustered in. The total strength of company now is 94—we were mustered in with 109. Three have died—Everett Calvert, Jas. Moffit and Geo. Michael. Two have been transferred to other companies, Walter Black and Jas. Walsh. Harry Bronsall has been transferred to the signal corps. Lieut. Bitner resigned, and the following have received discharges, John Tinsnes, Ed. Brooke, Daniel O'Neil, Jno Stearns, Harry Burmeister and Gus Taylor. Wm. May and John Fixemier have been transferred to the hospital corps.

The indications now seem to be mustered out in the spring unless something turned up in the Philippines which makes it necessary for troops to be sent there in a hurry. At least that seems to be the opinion of the officers and men here.

The Third Brigade, of which the Fifteenth Minnesota is a part, are making a practical march today. They left early this morning and will be gone all day, covering sixteen miles. They march the same as an army does in an enemy's country.

People from the north can hardly imagine the poverty of most of the negroes and some of the white people here. I was talking with a street car conductor the other night who had quit farming because of the low price of cotton. He is now working for 10c an hour. He said he had 27 "head" of negroes working for him on his farm. He paid them 37c a day per head and board. His "board" consisted of two pounds of bacon and a peck of meal a week. Out of this money they had to support their families and pay rent to the farmer for their huts. Each meal hour there are negroes at the mess halls of the different companies with their little tin pails to get the scraps that are left over by the soldiers, which would otherwise be thrown away. They take these home with them to their families, so we are, no doubt, the means of keeping a good many people from going hungry. We are not doing a great amount of drilling now, but about half of the drill time is spent in athletic exercise, such as base ball, indoor base ball and other sports. The Fifteenth has one of the best ball clubs in camp and are bending everything in sight.

ARTHUR P. ROSE.

CAMP MCKENZIE,
Feb. 10, 1899.

We have been having pretty exciting times here for the past few days, although everything is quiet again now. You have probably seen accounts of it by this time, although the papers had it pretty badly mixed up. The Chicago papers had it that companies "H" and "L" were among the mutineers and were still at large.

Last Saturday afternoon Denny O'Connell, a private of Co. "H" of this regiment was shot and instantly killed by a saloon keeper down town. I was pretty well acquainted with the man who was shot, having been on guard with him several times. As soon as news of the shooting reached camp the regiment was furious, and several attempts were made by the crowd to get down town and lynch the murderer, but they were stopped Sunday morning, however, they were worse than ever. The officers were unable to do anything with the men. A crowd made a rush for the commissary store house and broke it open, securing about 1600 rounds of ammunition. Seventy-three of them then got their rifles and started for town. The colonel and other officers talked to them for about half an hour before they started, advising them to go to their quarters, and telling the consequences of what they were doing. They would not pay attention to them; however, but started for town on double time. Call to quarters sounded and companies "H" and "L" the two best two companies in the regiments, were detailed to go and bring back the mutineers. We were formed in front of the commissary and each man was supplied with five rounds of ammunition, and then marched to the street car line where four cars were waiting for us. The distance to town is about four miles and we did not make very good time, owing to the fact that the mutineers had blockaded the track in several places with rocks. We reached town without getting sight of the gang, and immediately spread out in line of skirmishers, and went through the whole city, gradually approaching the saloon where the killing was done, and where it was supposed the gang would go first. Four troops of cavalry were also called out and they got there first and captured them, so we did not get the honor after all. There came very near being a fight before they surrendered, however. The cavalry commanded them to surrender, which they refused to do, whereupon both sides commenced to load, and were already taking aim at each other, when Lieut. Halcy, of Co. "D" this regiment, who had followed the mutineers all the way from Camp, stepped out in front of them and begged them not to fire. It was a very plucky piece of business on his part, stepping out in front of their loaded rifles when they were ready to fire, but it worked all right and they finally surrendered without firing a shot. We came up just as they surrendered. We thought at one time we were going to get into a battle, but were disagreeably disappointed. (?) The ringleaders and non-commissioned officers who took part are in irons. The others are in a stockade built near the regiment and are very heavily guarded. The officers seem to think that three or four of the men will be shot. I don't think that any of them will get off with less than two years imprisonment. Lionel Vought was the only Co. "H" man in the deal. His home is in Windom. He is a semi-idiot and may get out of it light on that account. The whole regiment was immediately placed under arrest and our rifles taken away from us. The next day Companies "H" and "L" were taken over to division headquarters and our arms were restored to us. Major-General Sumner made us quite a speech in which he complimented us on our prompt response to the call to arms and our efficient work in helping to capture the mob. Since then some of other companies have received the arms, and all of them will in time, except companies "E" and "D" who had most of the men in the mob. They will never get them back. There has been a great stir brought about by it, and it is understood that Gen. Sumner has recommended to the war department that we be mustered out at once. The saloon keeper who did the shooting has been captured and is now in jail at Atlanta. The shooting was brought out at the coroner's inquest was unjustifiable. The boys are afraid he won't get his just deserts in a Southern court, and that is what made them so hostile.

For the past three days we have been having very cold weather. The thermometer went down to 17 degrees above zero and we are very nearly frozen to death. We feel it more than we would 17 degrees below zero in Minnesota.

We all keep well here and are enjoying ourselves.
