BIG PAY ROLL.
Mr. Fred G. Wells, who is the general manager of the Peavy Elevator Co., and Mr. R. E. Evans, superintendent of the Minnesota division of that company, arrived at Worthington Tuesday afternoon on their tour of inspection of the property of their company, and remained here until Friday.
It is sufficient to say that they found everything here in connection with their business in ship-shape order, as Mr. Wood, the agent of the company at this place, is one of the most reliable and trusted men.
In conversation with these men we glean the fact that this company which has only been in existence a few years, and started by Mr. Frank Peavy, whose first grain buying experience was in a flat house, with blind horse elevator power, and where he did all of the work of buying, loading, etc., connected with this little business, has grown to the immense proportion of over 500 elevators, located all through the productive sections of the great Northwest, and employing at a conservative estimate, an average of 200 men a day, with a pay roll that requires no less than $10,000 to satisfy it each 24 hrs.
These officials stated that the crop prospect in Southwestern Minnesota was the very best, being far ahead of that of last year, and they looked for a "bumper" crop to be marketed as the season's product.

Bought Entire Crop.
W. W. Loveless has made a big berry purchase, in contracting for the entire Sundberg strawberry crop, whatever it is large or small. The Sundberg berry is always sought after by people putting up fruit. It is the best berry that comes into the market, always being solid and of a fine flavor. Should there be a large crop he will find no trouble in disposing of them, or in sweetening them with that $200 pounds of sugar recently put in stock.

Whooping Cough.
A woman who has had experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest little girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops.—Jessie Pinkley Hall, Springville, Ala. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

All were allowed except Mr. Johnson's, referred to board of health, and Mr. Crandall's, reduced to $14.
When Mr. Bracken was here a few days ago, the claims against the state for expense incurred by non-residents having smallpox and being quarantined here, were gone over. They amounted to $157.15 which it is expected the state will refund after the claims are acted upon by the state board of health.
P. O'Connor was appointed a member of the board of health to succeed B. F. Thurber.
Resolution was passed to furnish the Omaha road with lake water at eight cents per thousand gallons, the city providing the machinery and mains.
The council will meet and go over the highway south of town where improvements are proposed.
Mr. Swanberg was present and outlined the plan of the county commissioners in regard to putting in a cement walk around the court house ground, on 10th street and 3rd avenue. The county will put down a six foot walk if the city will provide proper drainage on 3rd avenue. To do this will necessitate the removal of the large trees in the street in front of the sheriff's residence. The county will also probably put in a curb thus putting these streets in the best possible condition and appearance. The city can certainly afford to do their part.
Burlington section foreman given permission to put in tile across street to drain Mr. Ronan's yard.
Decided to move arc light from Omaha freight house and locate at Mitchell's corner, putting in an incandescent at the freight house, also put in an arc light at E. C. Paunell's corner. Decided to put in crossing to reach south side of 2nd avenue between 10th and 11th street.
Change of charter was informally discussed.
Fire Chief Mackay was present and asked for fire protection for the extended residence district in Clary addition and north part of town stating that there was not sufficient hose on hand to reach some localities. He suggested a chemical engine or extension of water main. Deliberations of the council indicated that they were favorable to extending the mains, this would enable residents to secure a water supply and bring in a revenue to the village, besides doing away with the necessity of digging wells which are disease breeding places of a more or less degree to families using water from wells. The council are started in the right direction on this question.

Roses and Orange Blossoms.
(C. W. MERRILL.)
Orville, Cal., May 9th.
"Wealth of roses." We had heard of it but, like a large bank account, it was till this spring only a vague story with us. The bank account, as we are concerned, is as much a fanciful theory as ever, but the practical illustration of the wealth of roses we have been privileged to see with our own eyes, and smell with our own noses and handle with our own hands. It has been roses to the right of us, and roses to the left of us, and roses in front of us, and roses all around us. White roses and yellow roses, pink roses and red roses, roses of almost every color and of every shade of each color; and roses of all sizes, from the tiny baby rose to the great, not simply double or quadruple, but multiple rose with material enough in one flower, seemingly, for a large bouquet. If I think that there would have been, if not "millions in it," at least a small fortune, if I could have taken up and transported bodily to one of our northern cities the side and roof of a house I saw here covered with thousands of Gold of Ophir roses. Walking down the street one day we saw a great pile of white flowers, coming nearer we found that it was a cottage virtually buried out of sight under a mass of white roses. But what is the use of trying to tell the untellable. Last fall as I was visiting a friend he took me out to see, among other things, a large pear tree that was literally breaking down under its burden of fruit. "Talk about California lies," said he, "there is one of them right there before you growing on that tree!" And so in the roses this spring we have seen spread out out before us one of the "California lies" that we used to read with so much incredulity.
And talk of orange blossoms! Surely this must be the land of nature's nuptials. It is a strange sight to see the orange tree with its dark green foliage, the boughs laden with the ripe golden fruit of last year's crops, and at the same time almost white with blossoms for this year's harvest. But remember that this is the summerland where winter never comes. The orange blossoms are beautiful to look upon but even a blind person is not deprived of the greatest charm of the orange blossoms, for its greatest charm is in its fragrance. Day after day the air is loaded with its fragrance, and especially in the evening it seems sometimes as if one would almost become intoxicated with the sweet smell. And lately we have had another new experience, we have been feasting on orange blossom honey. Talk of delicate flavors. I am afraid if we should

SENATOR SHOOTS
Mr. Ryder's Pistol, Sends the Crowds Scouring.
State Senator J. J. Ryder, of Polk county, created a panic at Fourth and Wabasha streets at six o'clock last evening by discharging a pistol. The streets were thronged and there was a general stampede of men and women into the stores and other places of safety.
The Senator resisted arrest, and it took two patrolmen, a captain of the fire department and a police sergeant twenty minutes to disarm him and place him in the patrol wagon. He was given the best ventilated room in the central police station and his name was not recorded on the station book.
Senator Ryder first showed his pistol in a saloon at Third and Cedar streets, and the bartender hustled him out. Then he sat down on the doorstep of a commission house near the saloon and fired two shots through the wire door of R. E. Cobb & Co., across the street. H. Heger, a merchant at Third and Wabasha street, got in Senator Ryder's way, but he dodged back into the store when the senator pointed the pistol at his head. Mr. Ryder caused excitement in other places and directly in front of the city hall he fired two shots into the street. Women screamed and two ran into the tailor shop of Samuel Kaufman, 343 Wabasha street, and swooned.—Pioneer Press. Mr. Ryder is well known here.

Amusements.
Last evening Madame Elsie de Tournay and an excellent company appeared at Arie's opera house, giving a splendid presentation of the historic play, "Mary Stuart, Queen of Scots." The play is the masterpiece of Frederick von Schiller, the great German poet. Madame de Tournay is an accomplished and talented actress, possessing those emotional powers so necessary to the interpretation of a strong or heroic part. Her good taste and excellent training do not permit her to overdo a scene or to fall short of its effective portrayal. In the leading role of the great play, Madame de Tournay has a part admirably suited to her splendid talents, and to the character she gives a very vivid, intelligent and splendid interpretation. In her supporting company, one member especially should not be overlooked, and that is Mr. Richard Monceif, who is an actor of the old school and one whose admirable powers, advancing years do not appear to impare. The costuming was historically correct and was rich and beautiful. The play, although with a strictly along the sombre lines and with not a flash of humor to enliven the intensity of the scenes, formed a pleasing study and those who gave it the attention necessary to the proper appreciation could not be other than benefited.—Ex.
