A Boston preacher says: "No woman who wears a sea gull or a song bird in her hat can ever get to heaven. If you need an Easter bonnet get it. Wear it, to church, for what better place to wear it than church? It is an honor to God and a benediction to the soul to have and see Easter bonnets. Get the bonnets, however, without robbing and killing. Those who rob the lives of the song bird and the bird of beautiful plumage cannot hope for heaven."

The proposition of a national convention to discuss the enforcement of the civil rights of the colored race in the South is not unworthy of consideration. Such a convention would not only give additional publicity to the various phases of the problem, but would tend to crystallize and concentrate public opinion throughout the United States. Thomas Henry Huxley discussing the slavery issue during our Civil war, said that in his view it was better for a man to go wrong in freedom than to go right in chains—better not only for the man, but also for the race. Tyranny always implies a tyrant—and no man can occupy the position of a tyrant except to his own moral injury. Likewise, no class can oppress another class without resultant moral injury to the class constituting the oppressors. Political justice is the ideal of civilization—the aim of the most enlightened people in all parts of the earth, and the interests of humanity are fast becoming so closely interwoven that political injustice anywhere affects directly or indirectly many at a distance as well as those within the immediate sphere of its influence.
