

THE HOUSE OF TORRANCE

Exceptional Bargains in Shoes for the Week

This week's prices are below the market values and should appeal to all buyers. Anticipate your future wants and we can fill them at the lowest prices you were ever offered. Come and look them over.

Women's felt lined vici kid, three styles, sizes 3 1/2 to 6 1/2 $2 quality for only.....$1.29
 Misses felt lined shoes vici kid sizes 11 1/2 to 2, $1.75 value for only.....$1.05
 Womens chromo calf and vici kid shoes patent tip heavy and medium weight soles $2 values at.....$1.45
 Women's vici kid shoes wide toes sizes 3 1/2 to 6 1/2 worth $1.75 good lasts greatest shoe for the money you ever saw at only.....$1.39
 Men's felt shoes extra high, felt sole, leather heel $2.25 kind at.....$1.75

Boys' velvet calf and oudet calf shoes all solid, exceptional wearing qualities, all sizes 3 to 5 1/2 regular $2 kind for.....$1.59
 Boys' Casio Calf and oil grain Creedmon's $1.50 qualities, sizes 3 to 5 1/2, while they last only$1.05
 Boys' oversees, buckle, all sizes except No. 4, $1.25 quality.....98c
 Mens' best rubber slacks (protecting overshoes) $1.25 quality all sizes.....98c
 Womens' patent leather and vici kid sandals, $1.50 sizes 3 to 5 1/2 for only.....$1.10
 Misses vici kid shoes medium width soles, all sizes worth up to $1.50, choice.....98c

8c Hosiery Bargains 10c

Here are two of the biggest hosiery snaps ever offered and you should supply your future needs from these two lots

Mens' 2 thread black fleeced hose, heavy weight 15c quality special price only

Womens' all wool hose and Misses and childrens' hose worth to 25c per pair all in one lot at per pair

8c

10c

Over-Gaiters and Leggings

Ladies' fine felt gaiters special.....48c
 Mens' heavy felt gaiters special.....75c
 Ladies' and Misses' long jersey leggings $1.00 kind while they last.....75c
 Mens' canvas leggings, spring clasp, heavy duck for only.....75c

Mens' Overcoats at $9.75

We place on sale today 20 overcoats worth up to $15.00 heavy all wool kerseys, chevots, scotchies, best fitting garments, all sizes 34 to 40 coat bargain ever offered, choice of the $9.75

Children's Cloaks Now $1.95

1 dozen childrens long coats in $3 and $3.50 values red, blue and brown well trimmed the best coat bargain ever offered at only.....$1.95

Ladies' Winter Coats $7.50

Ladies' long tourist coats and 27 inch kersey and zibiline coats some satin lined, worth up to $18 each choice of our $18 coat stock only.....$7.50

MENS' WOOL UNDERWEAR

Guaranteed pure wool $1.25 quality, special while it lasts only

75c

MENS' MOOL SWEATERS

Best sweater bargain of the season, regular $2 kind, while they last half price

$1.00

CHILDRENS' STOCKING CAPS

All wool in combination of colors, regular 35c kind special only

19c

BUSTER BROWN COLLARS

All colors, neat designs regular 25c kind, 2 doz to close at each

19c

Extra Special Saturday

400 Yards of Fine Embroideries and Insertions Worth 12 1-2c up to 40c per yard, from 2 to 10 inches wide 2 to 20 yard pieces, per yard

9c

A BANQUET TENDERED

The Banquet tendered to the Professional Men and their Wives Met with Success.

The banquet tendered to the professional men of this city by Dr. F. E. Walker on last Friday evening at the Worthington Hotel was a decided success in every respect. The departments of law, medicine, theology pharmacy and dentistry being represented.

Representative Geo. W. Wilson and wife; Hon. C. M. Crandall and wife; Judge C. M. Cory and E. C. Wilson and wife of the legal profession.

Dr. A. H. Clark; Dr. F. M. Manson; Dr. Henry Wiedom; Dr. C. P. Dolan; Dr. F. A. Corral and wives and Dr. F. E. Walker, of medicine. Rev. E. W. Lanham; Rev. G. A. Cahoon and wife and C. F. Bronson and wife, of theology.

Mr. F. M. Hickman and wife and Mr. W. H. Johnson and wife, of pharmacy.

Dr. Dieckhoff; Dr. W. J. Dodge and wife and Dr. L. R. Gholz and wife, of dentistry. The following menu under the supervision of Mr. H. B. Lear was served after which came the toasts.

- Cavair Tartines
- Blue Points
- Consomme Celestine
- Bread Sticks
- Radishes
- Sweet Pickles
- Fried Smelt, Tartar Sauce
- Saratoga Chips
- Roast Goose, Chestnut Filling, Apple Sauce, Mashed Squash
- Chicken Patties, a la Reine
- Parisienne Potatoes
- Orange Sherbet
- Macedoine Salad with Lettuce
- Bavarian Cream
- Bent's Water Crackers
- Cheese
- Coffee

Dr. A. H. Clark responding to the toast "Then and Now," referred to the past in medicine and spoke of the rapid and phenomenal development in medicine and surgery covering the period of the last quarter of a century. He paid the young men of his profession a splendid tribute to their zeal and advanced ideas. "Common Interests of the Profession" was splendidly responded to by Rev. C. F. Bronson. He spoke of the growing tendency of a more fraternal feeling among the men of the different professions as well as those in the same calling and urged that a spirit would become more general. That professional men, because of their superior knowledge were more sought after for advice, were looked up to in a more universal way and should therefore be more united that greater assistance could be given to those in need. His address was full of wisdom and advice and on the broad spirit of professional usefulness. Dr. L. R. Gholz in response to his toast, "Prouds and Pulp" proved himself a second Bill Nye. His speech was more of a supplication, given in a most original and humorous strain and praying that "our pulp may never decay and our prongs never break." Hon. C. M. Crandall as usual was at his best and in his toast, "Progress," he pointed out the need of more study, more adaptability, more energy and more interest in common among professional men. Mrs. F. M. Hickman splendidly responded to "A Pharmaceutical Wife." She said the wife of a druggist knew more about mixing bread and compounding new table dishes than putting up medicine. Her address was full of wit with enough spice and pleasant flavors to establish a reputation as an after dinner speaker. Dr. F. M. Manson in a happy manner discussed "The Medical Future." He spoke of the progress made in preventative medicine for the good of the public which was financially detrimental to the doctor, of the great development in pathology and bacteriology. The use of the microscope, the better method of therapeutics and the brilliant result and progress of surgery. He thought the future was bright and promising for the still greater development of medicine and surgery and that the growing tendency of more unity among medical men and more co-operation from the laity would tend to better the condition of all. As "Seen From a Legal Standpoint" was the subject of the toast by Mr. C. E. Wilson related many numerous anecdotes of the legal profession which was immensely engaged and well received.

Dr. W. J. Dodge responded to "The Dentist and the Doctor." He referred to the time when there was no such a department as dentistry, when the doctor looked at an aching tooth and removed it, not even knowing or caring if it could be saved. He spoke of the progress made in his chosen profession during the past 20 years and pointed out that now the doctor paid no attention to the teeth but sent his toothaching patients to the dentist rather than run the risk of losing his patronage by extracting a tooth when nothing was the matter but a sore tongue. Mr. W. H. Johnson, the Chauncey. M. Depew, of the West responded to the toast, "Pharmacy and Medicine" most creditably. He portrayed how pharmacy had given to the world Lydia Pinkham's compounded and Pink Pills for pale people. He also spoke of the efforts put forth by the druggist state association to limit the sale of cocaine and so assist in the great work of preventing the people from becoming addicted to its use. Rev. E. W. Lanham in speaking of his toast, "Worthington's Oppertunities," said he felt that our city had opportunities within her reach that we could not afford to pass by. He briefly referred to the great need and the splendid opportunity of a young men's club and gymnasium where the young men could go evenings and enjoy a few hours in games, reading, gymnastic, social intercourse, etc. But a greater need and greater opportunity within Worthington's grasp was a first class, well equipped hospital, where the sick and injured could be cared for properly, where the life of the patient would be more safe, where trained nurses, clean beds, etc., could be had. He said Worthington was a beautiful city, with splendid railroad facilities, a scientific corps of physicians, and of good reputation. That other nearby towns would patronize such an institution that patients objected to being taken so far from home, that it was oftentimes dangerous, and always expensive and that the results were no better and perhaps not as well as to remain at home. That a city hospital would be an immense advantage to us in many ways, that every citizen could help to build it, that the various lodges, churches, business houses, etc. would be glad to assist in such a splendid movement and urged that Worthington now should reach out after this opportunity before some of our nearby towns should do so and closed by pledging himself to do all in his power and give as much of his time and money as he could. Following his address Dr. C. P. Dolan was called upon for his views. He said he was very glad the matter of a hospital had been brought up, as the doctors wanted one and would give it their hearty support. We need a general wide open hospital because a private one had objection that could not well be overcome and it would not pay. Since he had been in Worthington he had sent at least $1,000 of work out of the city which he believed should stay right here and it Worthington had had a hospital it would be $1,000 better off. Dr. A. H. Clark discussed the subject saying it met with his hearty approval and that he had always been in favor of a general hospital and if Worthington would push this idea along he would lend it any possible help in his power. Dr. F. M. Manson said he believed it was the right time to consider a hospital that he hoped it would come about and that he would be glad to utilize it. He had been interested in the matter several years ago but because of circumstances over which there was no control the project was dropped. Now if all would work together, put their shoulder to the wheel everyone help, it would be successful and that he would willingly do his part to that end. Dr. F. A. Cahoon, of Rushmore, speaking as an outsider, said he had many cases at the present time who needed hospital care, but on account of expense, being so far from home and friends they suffered on. He would be more than glad if Worthington would build a hospital so he could send his cases there where their family could see them often. He thought it would be a great thing for the city and hoped the citizens would unite in a special effort towards building one. Mrs. Dr. Manson said that the hospital would be a success if the ladies had anything to do with it and as a representative of the Improvement League she was sure all the ladies would be greatly interested in such a movement and make every effort to assist in building one. Mrs. Dr. Clark did not want a hospital provided she had to go there but thought Worthington greatly needed such an institution for those who demanded special treatment. Rev. G. A. Cahoon greatly favored the hospital idea and desired to see a united movement looking toward the establishment of one. Dr. F. E. Walker spoke briefly upon the matter and said he would like to see a general hospital where any physician of the city would have free access to it, where each would have equal rights and where all could and would work in a spirit of fraternity and harmony. That it would assist in placing Worthington at the head of any of the cities of southwestern Minnesota and would be as creditable, if not more so, than any or all of our church organizations. Rev. G. A. Cahoon proposed a toast to Dr. Walker as host, "A Man." Mrs. Dr. Clark also proposed a toast, "A Gentleman." Dr. Walker responded in a few words, thanking them for their toasts, their company and assistance in entertaining.

his toast, "Worthington's Oppertunities," said he felt that our city had opportunities within her reach that we could not afford to pass by. He briefly referred to the great need and the splendid opportunity of a young men's club and gymnasium where the young men could go evenings and enjoy a few hours in games, reading, gymnastic, social intercourse, etc. But a greater need and greater opportunity within Worthington's grasp was a first class, well equipped hospital, where the sick and injured could be cared for properly, where the life of the patient would be more safe, where trained nurses, clean beds, etc., could be had. He said Worthington was a beautiful city, with splendid railroad facilities, a scientific corps of physicians, and of good reputation. That other nearby towns would patronize such an institution that patients objected to being taken so far from home, that it was oftentimes dangerous, and always expensive and that the results were no better and perhaps not as well as to remain at home. That a city hospital would be an immense advantage to us in many ways, that every citizen could help to build it, that the various lodges, churches, business houses, etc. would be glad to assist in such a splendid movement and urged that Worthington now should reach out after this opportunity before some of our nearby towns should do so and closed by pledging himself to do all in his power and give as much of his time and money as he could.

Following his address Dr. C. P. Dolan was called upon for his views. He said he was very glad the matter of a hospital had been brought up, as the doctors wanted one and would give it their hearty support. We need a general wide open hospital because a private one had objection that could not well be overcome and it would not pay. Since he had been in Worthington he had sent at least $1,000 of work out of the city which he believed should stay right here and it Worthington had had a hospital it would be $1,000 better off. Dr. A. H. Clark discussed the subject saying it met with his hearty approval and that he had always been in favor of a general hospital and if Worthington would push this idea along he would lend it any possible help in his power. Dr. F. M. Manson said he believed it was the right time to consider a hospital that he hoped it would come about and that he would be glad to utilize it. He had been interested in the matter several years ago but because of circumstances over which there was no control the project was dropped. Now if all would work together, put their shoulder to the wheel everyone help, it would be successful and that he would willingly do his part to that end.

Dr. F. A. Cahoon, of Rushmore, speaking as an outsider, said he had many cases at the present time who needed hospital care, but on account of expense, being so far from home and friends they suffered on. He would be more than glad if Worthington would build a hospital so he could send his cases there where their family could see them often. He thought it would be a great thing for the city and hoped the citizens would unite in a special effort towards building one.

Mrs. Dr. Manson said that the hospital would be a success if the ladies had anything to do with it and as a representative of the Improvement League she was sure all the ladies would be greatly interested in such a movement and make every effort to assist in building one.

Mrs. Dr. Clark did not want a hospital provided she had to go there but thought Worthington greatly needed such an institution for those who demanded special treatment.

Rev. G. A. Cahoon greatly favored the hospital idea and desired to see a united movement looking toward the establishment of one.

Dr. F. E. Walker spoke briefly upon the matter and said he would like to see a general hospital where any physician of the city would have free access to it, where each would have equal rights and where all could and would work in a spirit of fraternity and harmony. That it would assist in placing Worthington at the head of any of the cities of southwestern Minnesota and would be as creditable, if not more so, than any or all of our church organizations. Rev. G. A. Cahoon proposed a toast to Dr. Walker as host, "A Man." Mrs. Dr. Clark also proposed a toast, "A Gentleman." Dr. Walker responded in a few words, thanking them for their toasts, their company and assistance in entertaining.