

THE MASSEY-PILOT SUIT

draw objections. Mr. Byrd said he did not desire to consult with Capt. Wise, and the matter dropped and Mr. Byrd left the stand.

Mr. Thom read his authority on the right of the defence to introduce the witness to impeach Mr. Massey, and Judge Prentiss rendered his opinion holding that the witness could be introduced.

The court took a recess for half an hour to permit counsel to examine certain of Mr. Massey's certificates of deposit. At 1:30 the court reconvened.

THE ALBEMARLE WITNESS.

The witnesses from Albemarle county arrived on the 12 o'clock train. They came at once to court. Mr. W. F. Wood, a farmer of Ivy Depot, near Charlottesville, was called. He testified that he had known Mr. Massey for thirty five years, and that his reputation for truth is bad; that he would not believe him on oath.

To Mr. Thom, he said that Mr. Massey's bad reputation extended back to before the war. In reply to a question, said he voted for Mr. Massey for Lieutenant-Governor, not thinking the position of Lieutenant-Governor amounted to much. He said that the people of Albemarle had always supported Mr. Massey for office; that the voting precinct of Ivy was carried by him.

To Judge Neely—Mr. Wood said in 1866 his father, J. K. Wood, had a difficulty with Mr. Massey and called him an infamous liar; that the trouble between them was the result of false charges brought by Mr. Massey against his father; that the statement of his father and the Rockingham case had something to do with his opinion in regard to Mr. Massey's bad character.

He said he could not get rid of that opinion since witness' father denounced him. The witness admitted that the members of the Virginia Legislature voted for Mr. Massey, but that he did not vote for them, as he did not believe they were the right kind of men to represent the county. To Mr. Neely—Said he was a candidate for County Clerk; that he spoke to Mr. Massey about it, but did not ask him.

Capt. Wise took the witness and asked if he knew that Aaron Burr was vice-president and came near being president. He said he did.

The next witness was Mr. Stevens, of the Ivy Depot section, and he was one of the sharpest and many witnesses.

He said he knew Mr. Massey by reputation; had no speaking acquaintance; that Mr. Massey lived about twelve miles from him; that Mr. Massey's reputation was bad.

Judge Neely asked what is Mr. Massey's reputation for sobriety? The witness thought for awhile and said he did not know. You can't say whether Mr. Massey's reputation is that of a sober man? He then thought awhile and said: He has always been sober when I have seen him. I don't know what he did at other times. [Laughter.]

The witness said, in naming some of the things that went to make up Mr. Massey's bad reputation, that he had treated a Mr. Crosby, of Ivy Depot, badly in a business matter. He did not know any of the particulars in the Crosby matter; said he once voted for Mr. Massey for the Legislature; has been improving since then in his knowledge of right and wrong; did not vote for him for Lieutenant-Governor.

To Mr. Thom—Voted for Gov. Lee, but did not vote for Mr. Massey; had no faith in him; had a high opinion of the members of the Legislature from his county who voted for Mr. Massey.

By Capt. Wise—"Do you know that Benedict Arnold was a Major General in the United States Army before he was guilty of treason?"

Answer—"Yes."

Peter W. Garland, of Albemarle, said he knew Mr. Massey's reputation, which was bad, and would not believe him if he was much interested. Had heard Mr. Massey spoken of as tricky and foxy. He would not be definite as to the things he had heard about Mr. Massey; thought he knew his general reputation, and that his opinions were formed on account of what he had heard; said he was a Democrat; that Mr. Massey had carried his precinct at every election. He had heard of the Rockingham affair and the Crosby affair, both of which influenced him.

Dr. J. B. Taylor said he was a native of Westmoreland county, but for many years had lived in Albemarle, where he was a practicing physician. That Mr. Massey's reputation was bad, would not believe him. He did not think he ever voted for Mr. Massey. Said it has not been a month since he heard three or four people say Mr. Massey is a liar.

To Mr. Thom, witness said he practiced on men, horses, chickens, etc. He acknowledged that Mr. Massey received the support of the people in his section and in the county.

Rev. Ray Temple said that he had the honor to be a Baptist preacher at Free Union, Albemarle; he was sorry to say Mr. Massey's reputation was bad; sorry to say he would not believe him on oath.

To Mr. Neely witness said he was a southern-lawyer of Mr. Crosby, who had the trouble with Mr. Massey; that Mr. Massey was recently the moderator of a Baptist convention, of which he was a member. Did not think he voted for Mr. Massey in that convention, but made no protest; there was no opposition to Mr. Massey; said he once asked Mr. Massey to help his daughter to a position as a school teacher; did not think he ever applied to Mr. Massey to get his child into the Miller school.

To Mr. Thom, said he was not positive about not asking Mr. Massey. Did you sit in a Baptist convention with a man as Moderator who you would not believe on oath without raising your voice to protest?

Yes, sir. I did not vote. Mr. Parsell, of the City Bank of Richmond, verified a number of Massey "certificates of deposit."

Capt. Wise then tried for a second time to get in the Leach, DeLea and Lovell evidence as to Womack, but the Court ruled it out.

Court adjourned at 3:30 p. m.

Mr. Verdier, Detectives and Reporters

The Evening News of yesterday contained the following card, from Mr. C. E. Verdier in regard to the article in THE VIRGINIAN of Thursday, in which a man named Norton was reported to have said that he (Norton) had been employed by Police Commissioner Verdier to dog the steps of certain newspaper men. Mr. Verdier's card which was as follows does not state the facts:

NORFOLK, Va., July 19, 1895. Editor Evening News:

Kindly permit me space in the columns of your valuable paper to state that through the intervention of a friend my attention was called to an article in THE VIRGINIAN of yesterday, wherein it is alleged that I have employed a private detective to shadow the employes of that paper, or some one of them.

I desire to say that such information is erroneous and without fact, as I have not employed or authorized any one for the purpose of shadowing or spying upon the actions of any employes of THE VIRGINIAN, they having no interest for me in the slightest.

C. E. VERDIER.

The article in THE VIRGINIAN contained no such statement as the above, and Commissioner Verdier is either grossly ignorant or intentionally misrepresenting this paper. The article in question closed as follows:

"Up to this writing THE VIRGINIAN has not learned that detectives are on the track of any of its reporters or other employes. But THE VIRGINIAN will invite any who desire to spend their money in this way to employ, if they wish, a half dozen of the very best 'trailers' in the city, and when they catch one of THE VIRGINIAN's staff in any disreputable place or company they can publish the fact from the house top."

GOOD SPIRITS follow good health; while low spirits, melancholia, impaired memory, morose, or irritable temper, fear of impending calamity and a thousand and one demoralizations of body and mind, result from nervous exhaustion, solitary practices, often indulged in by the young, through ignorance of their true nature, cause nervous debility and loss of many powers, not infrequently
