EIGHT PAGES.

An inquisitive correspondent has discovered that Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt owns 126 diamond rings.

It is said that of 3,000 visitors to Yellowstone Park in the last three years not over 100 were Americans.

It seems to be the impression among politicians that the defeat of the Republicans in the Indianapolis election has injured ex-President Harrison's chances as a candidate.

The Boston Journal claims that an excellent and never-failing cure for nervous headache is the "simple" act of walking backward for about ten minutes.

Pension money was distributed yesterday week as follows: In Chicago, $2,700,000; Des Moines, Ia., $2,150,000; Milwaukee, $1,800,000; Buffalo, $1,750,000; Pittsburg, $1,675,000; Concord, N. H., $725,000.

A record kept by the Railway Agency shows that sixteen railroads went into the hands of receivers in the United States from January 1st to October 1st of the present year, a much better record than for 1894.

The French will establish a strong protectorate in Madagascar and will allow the queen to retain her throne. Her husband, the prime minister, who is regarded as the cause of the war, will be sent into exile.

The Washington Star remarks that Atlanta is fortunate in having so far secured more compliments than complaints concerning the Cotton States' Exposition. An enterprise of that kind is always the kicker's golden opportunity.

Some idea of the work required of modern marine engineers on war vessels may be obtained from the fact that in H. M. S. Terrible there are eighty-nine steam engines, large and small, all of which have to be kept in order by the engineer corps.

THE DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY.

The legalized ward primaries of the Democratic party to nominate candidates for the House of Delegates to represent this city in the Legislature will take place Monday evening, and will be conducted from 7 o'clock till 11 o'clock, and if necessary up to 12 o'clock, to afford every Democrat an opportunity to express his choice. It is hoped that there will be a full turn out of the party. There can be no good reason for complaint, with the result as every facility under the primary regulations is guaranteed to secure a fair and honest election, and ample time to vote. Let, therefore, every Democrat possible avail of this opportunity presented. A large turn out will be a stepping stone to a restoration of thorough harmony in the party ranks.

THE GOOD ROADS CONVENTION.

The question of good roads for Virginia is one which interests the cities and towns alike, and it is hoped that the convention called at Richmond a few days since will be the means of bringing about the end so much needed. The Lynchburg Advance, writing on this subject, says, and very properly says that: -

"Here in Virginia the value of good roads can be illustrated practically. In those sections where the country is traversed by thoroughfares improved in modern style, farms can be sold without effort. Intending purchasers know that a rich farm would be of little value if there were no way to reach a market with the products. For this reason many fine farms, with riches in the soil, are uncultivated and unsought. Good roads double and triple the value of such property. Let the good work of the Good Roads Association go on."

HARD ON THE LEGISLATURE.

"A striking illustration of political indifference," says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "is presented in the recent election in Rhode Island." The question to be decided was the important one of so changing the constitution as to substitute biennial for annual sessions of the Legislature, and yet the whole number of votes cast, says our contemporary, was only about one-half of that usually cast in State elections. There were no candidates in the field to whom up things, and so a large proportion of the voters did not go to the polls.

Now the Charleston News and Courier is cruel enough to say that "the moral of the incident appears to be that the people are of the opinion that it does not matter much whether the Legislature meets or not." This is hard on the Legislature of Rhode Island, but no less so upon the people of the State.

A NARROW VIEW.

The Lewistown (Me.) Evening Journal, which is owned by Congressman Dingley, makes the following surprising comments on ex-Confederate leaders: "That the people of Northern cities are contending with one another for the privilege of dining and wining the ex-Confederates shows that the war is over; but the recent speeches of ex-Confederate officers in the South show that although the war is over, ex-Confederate leaders believe they fought for what they ought to have had. The fatted calf was killed to banquet the prodigal, but killing veal to feed impudent sinners is one step ahead of the parable. In getting away from the Elder Brother it is to be hoped we shall not prolong the younger brother's sojourn."

The Washington Post takes up the question and makes the following manly reply to the Journal, which, happily for the country, is quite alone in its position:

"We do not know of any ex-Confederate who does not fully, and with every evidence of sincerity, accept the decision of the tribunal to which the dispute between the sections was referred in 1865. The question at issue was the alleged right of secession. It was an open question from the adoption of the Constitution until the end of our great war. The Confederates gave abundant proof of their sincerity in staking their all on the issue. Nothing could have sustained them through that devastating conflict. We suspect that if pressed for an opinion, the editor of the Journal would concede that General Longstreet was as honest in his views and purposes, from the beginning to the end of the struggle, as General Miles was. We suspect, too, that the Journal would be filled with content for the ex-Confederates if they were to pose as penitent sinners. In so doing, they would confess themselves to have been the greatest criminals of modern times. The thing, then, to be done, if sincere—and any other belief seems impossible—all the people of the North can respect them; but if they came as whining penitents who had sinned against their convictions they would disgrace American manhood."

Maine is a great State, about as large as all the rest of New England, but it sometimes shows a hospitality toward small and mean pretenses that is inconsistent with its ample physical proportions. We are glad, however, that even in Maine the impression is getting abroad that "the war is over." The Maine soldiers who attended the G. A. R. encampment at Louisville last month will not be particularly delighted with newspapers that talk about "filling veal to feed impudent sinners" in connection with the proposed reunion in the North."

The South has done nothing for which it wishes to be forgiven, and as for being penitent, why her people are not built that way. The South fought for what it believed was right. It cast its all in the great struggle, and lost, and when her people laid down their arms at Appomattox they concluded that the war was over, but it seems that there are yet a few on the other side, of the Journal's stripe, who wish to continue the fight on paper. Of course, no one believes that the Journal writes in ignorance of this matter, and the conclusion is that it is done in sheer malice. The Journal should, at least, be fair.

Colonel Bob Ingersoll favors a law that will exempt from taxation, as well as from levy and sale, a homestead worth $1,000 or $2,000. He says that every family should have a home which cannot be taken away for debt or taxes.

THE BEST DRESSED MEN are by no means those who spend the most extravagant prices for the clothes they wear. With the approval of the people we've established new and very much lower prices for Clothing. You can't go anywhere within a hundred miles of us without hearing people talking about our goods and prices. Better still--the strongest talkers are buyers. They've been here. They know the clothes they talk about. There's no exaggeration when people tell you they used to pay $10, $15 and $20 for Suits which they can now buy at the CROWN BALL CLOTHING COMPANY for $5, $8 and $10. Of course we've disturbed somebody's calculations in lowering prices so greatly. Can't help that. Buyers like it, and we are serving the people. Your attention is directed to
