AN ALLIANCE WANTED

Western Peanut Men Make Overtures to the Virginia Dealers.

EFFORT TO CREATE A GIGANTIC TRUST.

A Committee From the Western Peanut Association Visits Norfolk and Holds a Conference with the Dealers in This State-The Effort is a Failure

An important meeting of the Virginia Peanut Association-known as the Peanut Men-was held yesterday, for it had for its object an effort to control the peanut market of the world. It was an effort to bring about an alliance of the two powerful corporations which now virtually control the market-bringing them so close together that there could be no clashing of interests in the effort to increase the price of the nut.

Every large firm in the country was represented at the meeting-those of Virginia and the West, for by it remembered, there is also a Peanut Trust in the West, embracing in its membership every cleaner in that section of the country. The Western men came on to Norfolk yesterday morning to secure the cooperation of the Virginia Peanut Association in forming the desired alliance. The Virginia cleaners had been notified. The Virginia cleaners had been notified to be present and when the meeting was called to order in the office of the company, on Plum street, every member of the Virginia Association was present.

Those present from the West were: Messrs. J. Weller, of the J. Weller Co., Cincinnati, O.; Mr. Skants of Skants, Edwards & Co., Cincinnati; Mr. George B. Spear, of the Edible Nut Meat Co., St. Louis, and Mr. Britt, of the Anchor Peanut Co., of St. Louis. These gentlemen came on as a committee from the Western Association to form an alliance, as has been stated, with the Virginia Association. They desired that the two organizations should work in harmony under the same rules. The Western dealers handle the Tennessee and Texas nuts almost exclusively. They have recently formed the association. All day long the matter was discussed from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m.-those present only taking time to go to the St. James Hotel for dinner. Here the visitors dined as the guests of the local dealers. Nineteen of them sat down to dinner and enjoyed themselves hugely for an hour.

After dinner they resumed the meeting, but, finding it impossible to come to an agreement, adjourned. The members of the Virginia Association did not see the advantage of an alliance at this time. Consequently, there will be two Peanut Trusts in existence-one in the East and one in the West.

WILL NOT ENDORSE.

The John S. Barbour Club Goes on Record Concerning Candidates.

The John S. Barbour Club last night placed on record its attitude towards candidates in the coming Democratic election, by the adoption of the following resolution: Resolved, That a course of strict impartiality shall be preserved on the part of this club towards the various candidates for the Democratic nominations, and that this club will endorse no aspirant for office, either for the salaried positions or for the City Council, but will leave its members free to vote in the primary elections on their individual sense of public duty, but the club pledges itself to give its individual and enthusiastic support in the election to the nominees of the Democratic party.

The resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote. The club-house was crowded with members when the vote was taken and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. Besides adopting the resolution the club decided to hold nightly meetings during the two weeks previous to the primary election. Several candidates in the approaching primary made addresses.

The East End Democratic Club met at its rooms, on East Main street, last night and adopted a constitution and by-laws. Mr. J. T. Prince was elected a member of the Board of Directors and several new members were taken in.

FUKINO'S JAPANESE TROUPE.-One of the most unique and pleasing performances that has ever been seen in the Academy of Music will be given there to-morrow (Thursday) night by Fukino's Imperial Japanese Troupe of acrobats, balancers, tight rope walkers, etc., and will afford a very pleasant evening's entertainment to old and young alike. Among the most marvelous feats performed by this troupe is the balancing of seven ladders, the aggregate weight of which is 400 pounds, with a boy doing contortion act in mid-air, and the remarkable slide for life, which is concluded to be one of the most thrilling acts. Those who fail to see this wonderful and novel performance will never know what they have missed. Reserved seats only 75 cents; admission 25 and 50 cents. Seats now on sale. "FAUST."-Lewis Morrison repeated "Faust" at the Academy last evening before a well pleased audience. The audience was not as large as it should have been owing to the weather, but it was an enthusiastic one throughout the performance.

Ocean View Hotel.

Mr. Edward R. Thornton, the new proprietor, announces in an advertisement elsewhere in "The Virginian," that the restaurant is now open and that luncheons and suppers can be had upon short notice at popular prices; that beginning to-day trains will run at frequent intervals and gives other information of great general interest.

The hotel, enlarged, newly and handsomely furnished throughout, will open on May 1st for the reception of guests. Already many requests for accommodations have been received, some from as far West as St. Louis. It is clear that the phenomenal success of last season will be as great or greater the present one. Mr. Thompson is a most courteous gentleman, who thoroughly understands how to run a hotel, and the Ocean View under his management may be expected to be among the foremost. The fame of this sea-shore resort is national-in time will be world wide, as it grows every year. The fishing, the boating, the bathing at Ocean View are famous. One can wade out for hundreds of yards on the white sands through the rolling waves. No life lines are needed-no angling there. The delirious of the wind-swept shore are known to every one in Norfolk. Thousands of Norfolk people visit Ocean View daily. Special trains run every Sunday from Richmond direct to the shore, and from other cities in Virginia and North Carolina come frequent excursionists. The new law is the Coney Island of Virginia and the Ocean View hotel is its "Oriental."

On and after April 1st the Norfolk and Ocean View Railroad Company will run frequent trains, the last one leaving Ocean View at 8 p. m.

For Re-election.

The approaching municipal election will be the most important of the year for every resident of Norfolk. But without respect to party the candidate to whose popularity consists of integrity, true business ability, straight-forwardness and non-partisanship, is apt to be the victor. About two years ago there was started the manufacturing of an article that worked its way into popularity in a wonderfully short length of time solely on its merits. A new company has been organized, and on the strength of its previous meritorious popularity, solicits the vote of the entire community. Secretary Lamont yesterday sent to the House the report of Captain Casey, of the Corps of Engineers, on the examination for the channel from Hampton Roads to the Norfolk Navy-Yard. The cost of a channel 150 yards wide and 28 feet deep from the Roads to the Yard is estimated at $360,000, and a channel 200 feet wide and 20 feet deep in the Western Branch of the Elizabeth river is placed at $45,000.

Her remains arrived here over the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad last night.

APIG IRON TRUST.

Four Companies Agree to Establish a Joint Agency.

New York, March 31.-The four large iron producing concerns forming what is known as the "Birmingham district," in Alabama, whose representatives met here last week to establish a joint selling agency, intend to raise prices on pig iron as soon as the overstock is disposed of. All are controlled in a great measure by Northern men. John H. Inman, of Tennessee, said to-day that the combination did not affect the Northern concerns, as they manufactured Bessemer iron. The meaning of the agreement, he said, is simply that these four concerns, instead of cutting each other's throats through their agents in different cities, will all stick to the same price fixed as the demand for iron varies. The price of pig iron last September was $9.50 a ton. It is our intention after the old stock is out of the way, to run up the price, probably to $9.50 again.

JAMES RINGOLD INSANE.

Over Work and Worriement Over His Wife's Illness the Cause.

Baltimore, March 31.-James Ringold, a well known member of the Baltimore bar, was committed to jail to-day charged with striking his sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Reed, over the head with a knife. On several occasions recently Ringold has become violent. Last night he attempted to enter his wife's sick chamber. He carried a large knife and Mrs. Reed refused to admit him. He then, it is said, drove the servants from the house with the knife, and when Mrs. Reed tried to quiet him, struck her a violent blow in the face. It is thought that overwork and worriement over the long illness of his wife have unbalanced Ringold's mind. An examination as to his sanity will be made and steps taken to have him confined in an asylum.

The State Prohibitionist Convention

Roanoke, Va., March 31.-The State Prohibition Convention met in the Opera House this afternoon with a small attendance. B. Lacey Hoge was elected permanent chairman. The convention elected twenty-seven delegates to the National Convention, to be held at Pittsburg, put up an electoral ticket and elected an Executive Committee. The platform is confined exclusively to Prohibition, a silver resolution was tabled. Ex-Governor S. J. John spoke at the Opera House to-night.

SUCCULENT OYSTERS

How the Bivalve May Be Transported Long Distances in These Days.

THEIR LIPS ARE RIVETED TOGETHER.

And When Ready to Be Eaten the Oyster Shucker Smashes the Shell in the Ordinary Way-A Company Organized at Cape Charles to Close Their Mouths for Shipment.

All lovers of that most succulent bivalve, the oyster, will welcome any improvements in methods of transportation, by means of which it can be supplied in nature to districts far removed from the regions of production. The citizens of the Interior States have hitherto had little opportunity of gratifying their taste for oysters owing to the difficulties which shippers have met in handling oysters in shell. The problem appears at last to have been solved, and oyster growers may confidently look forward to a greatly increased demand as a result of a method which has recently been perfected, by means of which shell oysters may be kept in perfect condition for weeks without the use of ice or chemical preservatives.

A corporation controlled by Philadelphia capitalists has established headquarters at Cape Charles, where they have secured extensive wharfage, warehouse and railroad facilities and a complete plant for the preparation of oysters under recent United States letters patent. The process, which is so simple that it is surprising that it has not been put into operation long ago, consists in drilling the shell near the edge and by means of a soft, non-corrodible rivet locking the two valves of the shells so firmly together as to prevent all possibility of any leakage of the contained juices. The oyster, like most invertebrates, is capable of sustaining life without food for considerable length of time. Professor A. E. Verrill of Yale College, in the bulletin of the United States Fish Commission for 1895, called attention to this, citing as an illustration an experiment in which he had kept oysters alive for over ten weeks hanging up in a dry room. This being the case, it seems not unlikely that the method there described is any difficulty in shipping oysters, and little excuse for depriving the people of the great West of their "half dozen salts on the shell."

Practical experience, however, proves that, while the oyster will remain alive and fresh almost indefinitely if kept in the front edge somewhat in a moderately cool and moist atmosphere, it will not remain closed for any length of time if subjected to the constant jarring of a moving train or boat. The nervous control over the adductor muscles which close the shell seems to be lost as the result of shock or jarring. If the shell opens but for an instant the animal, by some means, escapes the salty liquor means rapid asphyxiation and death. As a consequence the loss to the dealer who attempts to ship unlocked shell oysters from the Chesapeake to Chicago, for example, is very great, so great, indeed, as to be practically prohibitory to the consumption of oysters on the half shell by any considerable class of people.

Under the best circumstances, of fast express trains and abundance of ice, the loss is such as to increase the price to a startling degree. The inhabitants of the great Mississippi Valley must perforce accustom their palates to the "shucked" or "bulk" variety of dead mollusks, which are kept from absolute putrefaction by the use of "preservatives" and other noxious compounds, the employment of which in Europe would meet with the prompt punishment it deserves. Germany, France, Austria, Holland, Italy and even Spain, long ago prohibited the use of salicylic acid, boric acid and other antiseptics in food, but the American public is so ignorant of the value of a good drink of cider, etc. but worst of all in the oyster of which it is so justly proud. The incredulous reader has but to visit any shucking house on the shores of Maryland or Virginia to see the patent nostrums, like "preservative," in use by the barrel. Mr. Hehner, the President of the Society of Public Analysts at Park Avenue, New York, in a paper on "Food Preservatives," in which he forcibly sums up the question in the following paragraph: "We should work for the entire prohibition of all kinds of preservatives. It is time that we went back to natural food. I object to being physicked indiscriminately by persons not qualified to administer the medicine which I am in health. I object still more when I am ill, to be object still more strongly to have my children physicked in their milk or their bread and butter. It is no consolation to me to know that the physic is not immediately fatal or not even violently injurious. The practice is utterly unjustifiable, except from the point of view of a dealer who wants to make an extra profit or who wants to palm off a stale or prepared article upon the public." Every thoughtful reader must coincide with this opinion and welcome a process by which at least one great food product can be delivered fresh and natural to the consumer. The locking of the shell of the oyster is by no means a new idea. But the correct method of doing it is the result of long experiment by practical men and biological experts. Clamps and wires have good results but were frowned on by the operators, who found difficulty in removing the fastenings; but at last, by a simple and inexpensive device, the shell is drilled and riveted, the small rivet offering no annoyance to the opener, who knows of it, and the same blow by which he makes an opening for the insertion of the blade of the oyster knife. Consignments shipped to various parts of the United States and Europe have reached their destination without deterioration or material loss, all others hitherto in use. This process will be welcomed by railroad men as well as distant dealers and consumers, when it is understood what an increase in freight receipts will be attendant upon it.

The total output for Chesapeake Bay for 1891 was very nearly 10,000,000 bushels; the great bulk of the oysters were shucked and shipped as solid meats, requiring comparatively little car space, whereas, if the same quantity had been shipped in the shell, allowing 240 bushels to the carload, over 40,000 cars would have been required for their transportation.
