Race to Commence at Four O'clock.

The Proprietor of the CINCINNATI TROTTING PARK, in endeavoring to supply the public with citizens that they have so long felt the necessity of, and so often expressed an ardent desire for a pleasant place of resort, and an agreeable drive on the side of the river, having entered an enterprise involving a heavy pecuniary outlay, he confidently relies on the patronage and assistance of the public in aiding in carrying the enterprise to a successful termination. As a beginning he has succeeded in acquiring four maps, well matched, and owned by well-known citizens, and, from their previous performance, and the opinions generally expressed, the Proprietor feels that the race will be a most worthy of an opening day and of public patronage.

N. B. Omnibuses will leave from the Gate House, corner Sixth and Main streets, at two o'clock P. M., carrying passengers to and from the Park.

Hearing a physician remark that a small blow will break the nose, a rustic ex-KOSUTH.—A Paris letter says: "All that we learn of Kosuth is, that he has sold in Genoa the pair of English thorough-bred horses he brought with him to help him out of the campaign he professed a wish to enter upon."

MAKING PREPARATIONS.—An eccentric old gentleman named McEwen, in Chittenden County, Vt., has lately prepared his grave under his own supervision, thus literally complying with the injunction, "while in life prepare for death."

A CHANCE FOR GIBBS.—The agricultural society which holds its fair at Dundee, Michigan, in October, offers a premium of five dollars to the young lady "who will pore a peck of potatoes in the shortest time and do it the best."

The first American woman that ever landed in Japan was Mrs. Bailey, of Philadelphia, master of the ship Mary Ellis. She was surrounded and followed by a large crowd of Japanese, but all their movements were perfectly respectful.

SEATTLE SHIPPED.—The status of Washington in Missouri regalia, ordered from Powers by the Masonic Lodge in Frederickburg, Va., was shipped at Lehigh on the 22d ult., in the ship Linda, bound for New York, where it will arrive next week.

A Berlin letter states that Field-Marshal Wrangell is to proceed to Stockholm with a large military suite, to be present at the coronation of King Charles XV. The Queen of Sweden, daughter of Prince Frederic of the Netherlands, is niece of the Prince Regent of Prussia.

THE WISCONSIN WHEAT CROP.—The Milwaukee Wisconsin has no doubt that the crop of spring wheat now harvested in that State is larger than in any former year. It estimates the amount at 14,000,000 bushels, and allowing 4,000,000 for consumption, there will be 10,000,000 bushels for export.

A WELL-DESERVED SENTENCE.—Orlando B.
Merrill, who was convicted in Boston for an assault with intent to commit an outrage on his daughter, Susan Jane Merrill, on Wednesday sentenced to imprisonment in the State Prison for twenty years, the first five days to be in solitary confinement.

Time wears slippers of list, and his tread is noiseless. The days come softly dawning, one after another; they creep in at the windows; their fresh morning air is grateful to the lips that pant for it; their music is sweet to the ears that listen to it; until, before we know it, a whole life of days has possession of the citadel, and time has taken us for its own.

SNAKES.—Snakes are said to be more abundant in the mountains this season than for many years. The last Uniocton (Penn.) Standard reports several cases of persons being bitten by copperhead and rattlesnakes—among the number, the editor himself, who was struck in the back by a copperhead, while out fishing.
He sustained no injury, however.

A CONDITIONAL PARDON.—Governor Wisner, of Michigan, recently pardoned a convict named Bridget Murray, on condition that she would abstain from intemperance, a vice to which she appears to have been addicted, and the source of her troubles. She, however, failed to make good her promise, and has been returned to prison.

The Rev. Theodore Parker has been heard from as late as July 29, when he was still in Switzerland, and when his distressing cough had nearly disappeared, though a slight cough had retarded his recovery. His friends are encouraged to believe that he will ultimately return to this country a well man.

LARGE TUNNEL.—The "big tunnel" on the Covington and Ohio Railroad, in Greenbrier County, Va., is 4,700 feet long, and 300 feet below the surface of the earth. It is 700 feet longer than the Blue Ridge tunnel. The width is twenty-seven feet, to accommodate a double track, and the height is twenty-three feet.

PUTTING SOLDIERS TO A GOOD USE.—In consequence of the difficulty experienced by many of the agriculturists in Kent, England, in obtaining a sufficient number of hands for reaping operations, orders have been forwarded giving permission for a large number of the troops belonging to the three battalions of infantry to be placed at the disposal of those farmers who may require their services.

EXPIRATION IN BADEN, GERMANY.—The Baden government has recently made some declarations regarding the expiration question. It is declared that the government of Baden does not require American naturalized citizens, who have been subjects in Baden, to perform duty in case they return, even if they have emigrated without consent. It is, if they return merely for a visit. It is presented that the expiration controversy here, and the last letter of General Cass, has had a wholesome influence abroad.

COAL-BURNING LOCOMOTIVES.—The Hudson River Railroad Company has added six more coal-burning locomotives to the road during the last four months. The whole number now in use on this road is thirty-one. The burning of coal reduces the current expense of a locomotive forty-five per cent. This is the reason why the percentage of working engines of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is less than those of competing lines. Nearly all the locomotives on the Baltimore and Ohio Road are coal-burning.

FORTRESS MONROE.—This fortress, in Virginia, mounts 265 guns, which throw at one discharge 13,417 pounds of iron. It has also 10 mortars and 8 siege howitzers. The new fort, commonly known as the Rip Raps, which, when completed, mount 108 eight-inch columbards and 54 forty-two-pound guns, all casemated, and 8 ten-inch columbards, and 46 nine-inch ob., all casemated. These guns are of the heaviest class, and capable of throwing an enormous weight of shot.

SELLING INDIAN SQUAW.—Horsee Greeley wrote from Big Sandy, Oregon, July 6, that "white men with two or three squaws each are quite common throughout this region, and young and relatively comely Indian girls are bought for their fathers by white men as regularly and openly as Circassians at Constantinople. The usual range of prices is from forty to eighty dollars—about that of Indian horses.
I hear it stated that, though all other trade may be dull, that in young squaws is always a brisk on Green River and the North Platte."

LETTERS OF A NOMAD.

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., Aug. 20.

It is related of John Randolph that, at one time, having occasion to visit a lady of Virginia in a neighborhood that had recently been agitated on the subject of missions to Greece, he found her sewing garments, as she told him, "for the poor Greeks." As he left the house he found the yard alive with half-wild negroes, and rubbing back, he exclaimed, "Madam, the Greeks are at your door!" This is an old story, but I intend to give it a novel application.
Why should people who have at their doors such places as Walnut Hills and Yellow Springs, rush off to Saratoga, Bedford, or the Virginia Springs—or even, unless health demands self-severing bathing, to Newport or Iye Beach?

The next time I see folks preparing absolutely for a summer retreat to those fashionable summer resorts, I will be sure to cry, "Miss Madam! Saratoga and Newport are at your door!" Any and every place of resort in New England may be safely challenged to produce spots of such rural beauty and healthful coolness as those around New's Hotel, or of such wild attractions as Clifton and the grounds about the Water Cure House. Every interest represented—geological, antiquarian, aesthetic.
And the time must come when the citizens of our Queen City will take refuge from a thermometer ranging (or raging) from ninety-eight to one hundred and ten degrees, and inferred water, in these pure air and beautiful shades.

On Thursday we went over to New's to see the Grand jeu champetre, which drew together four or five thousand of the fun-seeking youth of the adjacent towns and cities; and really it was a scene which, as my friend Grandifloro would say, "united Eastern splendor with Oriental magnificence." Gay circles of dancers, and of those luxuriating in the newly-revived antique game called "Goyard," the infernal game of chance, known on kissing your girl, if you can catch her, foot-races, and those disposed to cut up what Mr. Swinton respectfully calls the "ancient Henry," made the park alive, and restored the age of fays, nymphs and satyrs. The hospitable trees looked benignly down on the gambols of the children, (whether of six or sixty years), and the day passed off to the satisfaction of all.

The speculation and caucusing affecting the election of a successor to Horace Mann, as President of Antioch College, seem to be as arid in its sphere as that in the country at large, where so many self-sacrificing patriots are so willing to surrender themselves for four or eight years to their country's good.
The Trustees were to have met last Wednesday, but the wires had not been sufficiently pulled, and the meeting has been postponed to September 7. Of those whose names have been mentioned in connection with this important election, I have heard of three—Mr.
A. P. Peabody, D. D., of Portsmouth, N. H.; Rev. Rufus P. Stebbins, of Boston; Rev.
James Freeman Clarke, of Boston. Dr. Bellow was, we believe, addressed on the subject, in accordance with the wish expressed by Horace Mann on his death-bed, that he should be called to the post—but he has, to my knowledge, positively and decidedly declined to be considered in connection with it.

This seems to me much to be regretted. The Doubt just the candidate which would make a fine college president. He has fine manner, and a cheerful, elastic spirit, which always makes him popular with the young; he has the eloquence to subdue and elevate them; he knows how to reform the discipline of an institution where any error may have crept in; he knows more of the history, difficulties, needs and importance of Antioch than any man living; taking all of which into consideration, it is a pity he has refused. The only one of the three others named, who is not possessing the place with honor, is the college and himself, James Freeman Clarke. Mr. Clarke has long been known and loved in the West; in Louisville, the scene of his earliest labors, in St. Louis, in Cincinnati, in Chicago, in Milwaukee, he could go tomorrow and find a large church of loving hearts around him. His friends are not of any sect—they are Christians, Methodists, Quakers, Presbyterians, Unitarians. He has not given to any religious party what was meant for united. He has long been associated with a band of earnest workers and workers in Boston, known as the "Disciples," who have incorporated with their observances some of the practices of Methodists, Quakers, &c.

Though he is an earnest believer in super-naturalism, the rationalists love to listen to him. He has a mind stored with varied and rich learning, much eloquence, and I suppose, never spoke a word of nonsense in his life.
His printed works, his sermons, works on Europe and on Prayer, are widely known and appreciated. He would be a God-send to the West.

Dr. Peabody, the editor of the North American Review, and author of several controversial works in favor of the Unitarian Theology, is a writer of some stiffness but much ability; a man of wide reading but not exactly a scholar; of earnestness but with no address; he would be a valuable assistant to the more serious and elderly students of the college. With the large mass, however, of lively humor-sarcastic young men, we can scarcely imagine that his influence could be strong, and more than we can imagine that to the foresaid young men, for literary enjoyment, could be the old files of the North American Review. Dr. Peabody has also a lack of attractiveness in the pulpit, which unless the young folk of Antioch are such as, like Mr.
Choate, "go to their pew as they do to their bed, for repose," would prove a dreary defect.
Of the other personage spoken of, the less said the better.

HYDROPHOBIA FROM A CAT.—The Troy Times mentions a singular fact regarding young Theon, who was mentioned yesterday as having been drowned near Waterford. Four or five years ago, the deceased and his brother were bitten by a cat, which exhibited symptoms of hydrophobia, and was killed. At a later period the brother was seized with the horrible malady, and died. Ever since, the young man has been subject to convulsive fits, during which he suffered terrible agony, and lost all control of his body for some time.
While fishing on the bank of the Hudson last Wednesday, he was attacked with one of these fits, fell into the water, and was drowned.

EFFECT OF SPIRITUALISM.—An interesting topic of conversation at Newburyport, Mass., at present is the recent development of free love principles in spiritualistic circles there.
"They say" that two couples have already separated, and, if rumor be true, there are others in a fair way to become so. One pair who have dissolved partnership have been united but a few months, and the gentleman is well-known in that vicinity as the former husband of a distinguished literary lady, whose writings are familiar to those acquainted with the current literature of the day.
Who is he?

BOYS.—The boy, said a philosopher, is the least understood of any thing in the animal kingdom. Not long ago the mother of a juvenile acquaintance of ours had occasion to empty the pockets of the youngster, while he was asleep. The following is an invoice of the contents: A broken jack-knife, three nails, one marked postage stamp, several marbles, three or four buttons, dilapidated hooks, a red steel pen, a piece of China ware, and two clear stamps. With such a fortune, the hope of the house did not care who was President of the United States.

THE BEST WAY TO HUMBLE A PROUD FOOL is to take no notice of him.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

REPORTED FOR THE PENNY PRESS.

Additional News by the Hungarian.

QUEBEC, August 21.—The following details of the Hungarian's advices are furnished:
The Conference was fully constituted, as follows:
Austria—Count Coloredo, and Baron Merenberg.
France—Baron Borgneuey, and Marquis Bourville.
Sardinia—Chevalier de Sambers and Chevalier Locatelli.

The government of Zurich had welcomed the Embassadors, and were to give them a public reception on the 11th instant.

The first formal sitting of the Congress took place on the 8th, at which the Sardinian Representatives assisted.

The second sitting was held on the 9th, but nothing transpired as to the proceedings.

GREAT BRITAIN.—On the 8th, the affairs of Italy were debated in both houses of Parliament. In the House of Lords, the Marquis of Normandy inquired if there was any objection to produce the papers relative to the projects of peace, transmitted to Austria before the Treaty of Villa Franca. He denounced the conduct of the Government as one-sided, and evincing no desire to maintain neutrality.

Lord Woodhouse, in reply, reiterated the statement that England sent terms of peace to Austria at the request of France, but without giving any advice or expressing an opinion on the subject. He said it would be most inconvenient to produce the documents, in the present state of the negotiations.

Earl Granville acknowledged the act of Lord John Russell as the united act of the Cabinet.

In the House of Commons, Lord Elcho moved an address to the Queen, declaring that it would be inconsistent with the honor and dignity of England, after having preserved a strict neutrality, to take part in any conference for settling the details of peace, the preliminaries of which had already been arranged between the Emperors of France and Austria.
Lord Elcho praised the neutral course of the late government, and censured the anti-Austrian feeling evinced by the present Cabinet.

Mr. Kinglake moved the previous question, feeling that it would be unwise to bind the government to any line of policy, regardless of changes which might take place at any hour.

Mr. Gladstone said that the elector's motion was not relative to the present position of affairs. The government had no intention of taking part in settling the details of peace on the basis of the Villa Franca treaty. The belligerents themselves would settle those details, and what would remain to be settled, would be the great question of European policy, in which he thought England should play her traditional part. He defended the government, and called for a decisive vote on the resolution.

Fitzgerald said that the object of the resolution was to restrain the government from carrying out its personal sympathies, which were inconsistent with the treaty obligations of the country. Parliament sought not to sanction the Government joining in the Congress without being informed of what the Great Powers had agreed upon in regard to the subject.

Sidney Herbert argued that the neutrality expired with the war, and that he saw no reason why England could not consistently join in the Congress.

Messrs. Horner and Whiteside spoke in favor of the policy of the Government.

Lord John Russell again proclaimed that the Government had not the slightest intention to go into a European Congress to settle the details of the peace of Villa Franca; nobody ever invited them to do so. He admitted that there were difficulties in the way of the Government entering in the Congress, and matters were in such a state that no determination had been arrived at. He appealed to the House to leave the question in the hands of the Ministers, who would decide when the whole facts of the case were before them.

M. D'Israeli warned the Government of the dangers to be incurred by entering the Congress, but stated his objection to the House coming to a decision after a hasty deliberation, and hoped that Lord Elcho would not press his motion to a decision.

After some remarks from Lord Palmerston in defense of the course, and the denunciation of the resolution, Lord Elcho said that he was satisfied with the administration made by the Government, and the result of the debate, and would not press his motion.

In the House of Lords, on the 9th, the subject of the National Defenses was referred to.
Lord Kingsdown contended that the army and navy would never be on a satisfactory footing till the Government had the power of compulsory service. The Earl of Pilton thought it would be most injudicious to resort to compulsory power, and pledged every effort of the Government to make defense secure.

In the House of Commons, the East India Loan Bill was finally passed.

The completion of the steamship Great Eastern was formally celebrated on the 8th, by a banquet given on board, which was attended by many members of both Houses of Parliament, and a number of most distinguished engineers and scientific men. The engines, both screw and paddle, were set in motion for the first time, and the result was satisfactory in the very highest degree, and far beyond expectation.

Lord Stanley proposed the toast of "Success to the Great Eastern," and painted in glowing terms the marvels her success will accomplish. Mr. Brunel, the engineer, and Mr. Scott, the builder, were toasted, but the owner was absent from ill-health. The ship presented a beautiful and finished aspect, being almost ready for sea.

The city article of the Times says in regard to the stipulations of the treaty alleged to have been arranged between Minister McLane and Junca, at Vera Cruz; that Mexico will, from the moment the treaty is ratified, virtually pass under American sway.
It then adds that the result will be advantageous to Mexico and the world, but thinks the extent to which private rights will be respected or jeopardized, are anxious questions. The American Government is urged at every step to protect the interests of foreign stockholders.

The Grand Duke Constantine of Russia, traveling under the private name of Admiral Romanoff, had arrived at Split on the frigate Scotland, and took up his residence at Ryde, Isle of Wight.

The strike among the building trade has assumed formidable dimensions. The estimated value of the building range from twenty thousand to forty thousand men.
The master-builders had sought the intervention of the Government, but the Home Secretary said that he did not see how he could interfere.
