LOLA MONTEZ ON "JOHN BULL AT HOME."

LOLA MONTEZ ON "JOHN BULL AT HOME." The notorious Lola, the darlin' daughter of Limerick, lectured, an evening or two since, in New York, before a crowded audience, very few of whom were ladies. She is thus reported in one of the Eastern papers:

She admitted the sterling worth of the English character, and professed a hearty affection for "Blitz," honest John Bull, but, like everybody else, she had her weaknesses, and she claimed the privilege of taking a peep at the comic side of his character. America still reverentially calls England "Mother," and each may be proud of the relationship. The two nations are too much alike to allow a traveler in either to make a book regarding the differences between the people; hence tourists are forced to look about them for recent peculiarities. Taking these for their illustrations, English people have formed some queer ideas of Americans. Dickens found a sharp-nosed pig or a piteous fish subjects for philosophical contemplation.

The English are an active, energetic, business people, and it is no inaptitude for any that "England is the workshop of the world." An Englishman's walk and general bearing all indicate that he is going somewhere, and that he is going to do something when he gets there. For trading, trafficking, scheming, and energetic enterprise, Englishmen have never been surpassed, and never equalled, except by Americans. Our "isms" and our "notions," she said, are not original Yankee institutions, but are improvements upon English characteristics. The English called us a nation of quacks, but in all her travels and experience she never saw so much quackery as is to be found in England.

She had seen London placarded with quick advertisements of "Love Powders," of preparations for making all sorts of people beautiful, and of "Anodyne Necklaces" for children cutting teeth, the use of which would bring the teeth through without trouble or pain.

The speaker continued in a lively and slightly sarcastic strain, to touch upon the many follies to be found in John Bull's character, laughing at his gallantries, his philandering, his hobby, and concluding by saying that, with all his faults, John was a good-hearted, jolly, jovial fellow, fond of his roast beef and his joke, and exceedingly sociable when he had a mind to be so. The lecture was well received, and heartily applauded in the right places.

COMMEMORATIVE MOVEMENT IN PRUSSIA.

COMMEMORATIVE MOVEMENT IN PRUSSIA.—A letter from Berlin says that all parts of Prussia are working hard at forming themselves into societies which pay professors to give them lectures and instruction, and which also give concerts and get up parties of pleasure. The society of Berlin consists of 4,000 members. Some timid persons regard these societies as an organization of the Democratic party, but the minister of the interior has directed the Governor of Romsberg, who wanted to put them down in his province, to allow them to exist as long as they shall only occupy themselves with affairs relative to their own trades, and in obtaining instruction. He, however, adds that if they meddle with politics they must be treated as political societies according to law.

A PARTY SHOP GIRL FASCINATES AND BECOMES

A PARTY SHOP GIRL FASCINATES AND BECOMES THE WIFE OF A MILLIONAIRE.—The London Court Journal of late date says: Last week a millionaire named Scott, purchased a small pocket-book at a stationer's in Brompton. He was served by a young lady of great personal attractions. A search of Mr. Scott with her beauty, that understanding she was single, he then and there made his fair enslaver an offer of his hand and his heart. The sequel is to be found in the marriage announced as having taken place at a church of some Puseyite notoriety in the neighborhood, last Wednesday, when the pretty shop-woman stepped into a carriage and £30,000 a year, after a courtship of only one day.

EXTENSIVE ROBBERY OF MERCHANTS BY A

EXTENSIVE ROBBERY OF MERCHANTS BY A FORMER CLERK.—Vernon Jarboe, until recently a clerk in the hat-finisher establishment of Roberts & Cathol, New York, but at present a shop keeper, was arrested recently on a charge of having stolen goods from his late employer. The merchants' alliance, £84, within a few years, they have lost from $2,000 to $4,000 worth of stock. A search of the premises occupied by one Tobin, to whom J. had sold the goods, resulted in the recovery of a large amount of the stolen property, and both he and Jarboe were committed for examination.

ACCIDENTAL MATRIMONY.—RECENTLY

ACCIDENTAL MATRIMONY.—RECENTLY three sons of Mrs. Clarissa Venable, residing at Orleans Parish, La., went into the field for the purpose of picking cotton, when the oldest sold his younger brother to run for the house and get the gun for him to shoot game. The boy asked his mother for the gun, when the old lady got a chair to enable her to get the gun, which was suspended above the door. Having handed it to her son, he started back to his brothers, when the gun went off, and the contents of one of the barrels entered the thigh of the old lady, cutting the main artery and causing her death in less than two hours.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY IN THE SOUTH.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY IN THE SOUTH.—The Charleston (S. C.) Mercury announces the formation of a Committee of Safety in that city, and says that the object will be to aid in the detection, arrest and proper disposal of all abolition sympathizers and emissaries, whose presence may be prejudicial to the peace of our community. Its influence will be exerted to protect the innocent, but at the same time its efforts will be directed to ferret out and hand over all guilty and suspected persons to the proper authorities for examination and punishment.

REMARKABLE HUNTING ADVENTURE.—MR. ANON IRE, while hunting near the town of Edwards, U. C., came upon two fine bucks, the one was apparently engaged in a playful trial of strength. He shot them both, and found that their horns were so firmly interlocked that it was necessary to cut their heads before they could be separated. He judged that they had been in the condition in which he found them for at least a day.

PHILADELPHIA SEEKING EMPLOYMENT.—CITIZENS

PHILADELPHIA SEEKING EMPLOYMENT.—CITIZENS of Philadelphia have asked the President to send some of the large ships of the navy to the yard in that city for repairs, in order that the workmen may not be discharged. The Secretary of the Navy replies, that the steamer "Zephaniah" and sloop-of-war "Janestown," both of which will require repairs, have been ordered to Philadelphia, and adds that the navy yard at that place has had an unusually large share of work recently.

A COUNTY TREASURY CLOSED BEHIND AN INDIVIDUAL.—Last week the treasury of Washington County, Penn., was closed by an execution issued at the instance of Mr. McCoy, who holds a judgment against the county for interest on its bonds amounting to about $3,300. The treasurer is not, therefore, permitted to apply the funds of the county to ordinary purposes until the judgment is satisfied.

SEVERE STORM AT CAPS GOD.—THE STORM on the Cape, Wednesday night, was the most severe experienced for many years, causing much damage to the telegraph connecting Boston with Highland Light, and intermediate stations on the Cape. Several hundred poles were blown down and the wire broken in numerous places by the accumulated weight of frozen sleet and snow.

LETTER FROM FRED. DOUGLASS—GIVES

LETTER FROM FRED. DOUGLASS—GIVES HIS FLIGHT—HIS OPINION OF THE HARPER'S FERRY AFFAIR.—The last number of Frederick Douglass's Paper contains a letter from the fugitive editor, who has arrived safely in England. Douglass confesses that his sudden journey was undertaken in fear of arrest:

"It is probably quite well known that I sailed, not from Boston, where I had intended to take passage, but from Quebec. Nor is it necessary to state that the Harper's Ferry troubles, and the evident purpose of Messrs. Bennett and Buchanan to involve me in them, caused me to take my present route, though not my present journey, for that was already determined upon more than a year ago, and the arrangement partly made for it."

Of John Brown, he says: "To fail is madness. To succeed is the highest wisdom. Had John Brown pursued his original plan—availing a light altogether, keeping himself and his men scattered abroad in the ravines, caves, and the thousand Sevenastopol to be found among the Alleghany range of mountains—adding to his number all such as desired to be free, and were willing to suffer hardships and peril to gain it—the insurrection would not have seemed the mad and fruitless thing it now seems. But John Brown has not failed. He has dropped an idea, equal to a thousand bombshells into the very Bastille of Slavery. That idea will live and grow, and one day will, unless slavery is otherwise abolished, cover Virginia with sorrow and blood."

ANOTHER SPIRITUAL COMMUNICATION FROM

ANOTHER SPIRITUAL COMMUNICATION FROM JOHN BROWN.—At a recent spiritual meeting in Pittsburg, the spirit of John Brown was summoned, and thus delivered himself through a medium:

As they drew the lines between me and the citizens at Charlestown, so is the dividing line being drawn between the North and the South. I am not able to say much now. I am almost a novice in communicating in this way, having given it but little thought while in the form. My mind and soul were absorbed in that which concerned emancipation from the thralldom of American slavery—by which I met my untimely fate. But now I see it to have been so. Could you see those things as I now do, you would not ask me what you do.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE AT SNOW HILL, MD.—AT Snow Hill, Worcester County, Md., the storehouse of J. B. Roberts, occupied by Wm. H. Richardson and others, was consumed by fire on Wednesday night, the 14th inst., with an entire stock of merchandise and general store of dollars' worth. The effect of the fire on the Customs, held by Mr. R., was in the same house, and all the official receipts, books, papers and property belonging to the General Government were burnt. It is believed to be the work of an incendiary. On the day before Mr. Richardson had sold to a trader several slaves, and suspicious attaches to some of his friends on that account. None of the property in the building was saved, owing to a quantity of a keg of powder was in the store, the danger from it deterring approach.

A NEW STATUE.—IN THE Dusseldorf Gallery there is now on exhibition a new marble by Akros, called the "Pearl Diver," and represents, with startling naturalness, a young man, stark and cold in death, whose life has gone out while pursuing his dangerous calling at the bottom of the sea. The drowned man is stretched upon a piece of rock, having dropped from his hand the shell which he had just secured at the cost of his life. There is grace about the figure's position, and a display of anatomical skill in the carrying of a limb and muscle, which few statues present.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, December 20.—According to the conversation among the Democratic members of the House, they will seize upon the first favorable occasion to reinitiate their forces which were scattered yesterday after the withdrawal of Mr. Beckock for the contest for Speaker.

The bestowal of their votes on various gentlemen was their experiment to ascertain of whom the largest number of the House might ultimately be secured.

The Democratic Senators having in caucus completed the list of Committee, it has been thought to these of the Opposition to fill up the blanks.

Mr. Mason remains as Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs; Mr. Clay as Chairman of the Committee on Commerce; Mr. Yulee, Chairman of the Committee of Post-offices; Mr. Green, Chairman of Committee on Territories; Mr. Mallory, Chairman of Committee on Navy Affairs; Mr. Bayard, Chairman of Committee on Judiciary; and Mr. Brown, Chairman of Committee on District of Columbia.

The information brought by the steamer Tennessee, received here to-day, is that Minister McLean remains at Vera Cruz with the expectation of making a satisfactory treaty. The understanding in the best informed circles there was that the point on which the treaty failed had been substantially concluded by the Constitutional Government.

From New York.

NEW YORK, December 20.—A dispatch from Washington states that Mr. Conway, Congressman elect from Kansas, had arrived there with the official copy of the Kansas Wyandotte Constitution, and will ask for the immediate admission of that Territory into the Union.

A police sergeant, named Abraham Brown, fell dead last night while ascending the steps of the Academy of Music.
