Position in our city schools are much coveted on account of the liberal salaries the teachers draw from the public treasury.

A few months since a vacancy occurred by the resignation of a principal. Prof. Grehan was one of the applicants to fill the easy place. But Prof. Grehan's claim was rejected, whereupon he paid his compliments to several persons connected with the schools in a manner which caused a lively newspaper fight.

Denominationalism has an undue influence in business matters and the conduct of public affairs in this city. We would not complain of this if the morals of the city were the least improved by this or any other issue. Anything that fails to benefit the people naturally is of little use.

At a business meeting of the Baptist Church, held on Wednesday evening, Brother William H. Tubot was elected Deacon.

A Sunday-school mass meeting will be held next Sunday at Mount Vernon, a number of days from the Franklin Pike. Omnibuses will leave the city at noon to convey persons who wish to attend.

On Tuesday evening two men in a buggy stopped at Henry Dressman's, on the Linnton pike, beyond Lewisburg. From their talk Mr. Dressman suspected them of being thieves, and sent to the city after Marshal Bohan, detaining them by pretending to trade horses. Deputy Marshal Bohan, a well known Lexingtonian, went out, and after a little conversation with the thieves allowed them to drive to the city, following them, intending to capture them when they got here, but one of them, James Bowman by name, escaped. Mr. Haynes, his other, was captured and lodged in jail. The horse and buggy were the property of Mr. Chas. Negley, of Union, Ind., who arrived here Sunday night and left for home this morning with the thief and his property. Both the thieves are well connected in Union, Ind., their home.

NEWPORT.—Council last night ordered the Marshal to collect $5 of Dan Rice for his horse show. We wish him luck. A communication from Senator Hodge and Representative R. W. The Ben Jonson Club give the fourth of their series of entertainments at Odd-fellow's hall this evening. The "Chimney Corner" and the "Kegio Harivar" are to be the productions.

An addition of a book and ladder company to our fire department is becoming more essential every day. Only a few days ago one of our gallant firemen in mounting a roof came very near losing his life. The danger was apparent to him, but bound to duty; he climbed up a door, the only means of ascent, when it gave way and he was precipitated to the ground and severely injured. It would be a shame for a city in so prosperous a condition as Newport to refuse at once to lay out a sufficient sum to procure ladders and organize a ladder company.

A French tailor makes the lower end of Madison street his favorite resort, playing tricks, taking in the "boys," and fast, but not least, drinking "zwei" larger every two minutes. This morning, however, his appetite for "lager" was extremely good. He wagers that he can drink a barrel of beer in one hour and a half, by the fastest watch in the city.

During one of the sessions of the Legislature when Hon. James W. Governor, a bill was passed regulating the size of apple barrels. It was of so trivial a character that he vetoed it. In the following summer a good old farmer from the Mohawk Valley came into the Executive Chamber, and handing him a letter of introduction, said:

"Governor, I've come to ask you to pardon my son out of State prison; he's been there got up two years, and his time'll be up in about two months. Harvest is comin' in in two or three weeks, Governor, and I kind of thought I should like to have him up to the farm; he'd be quite handy. Don't you think you could do it?"

"There was something about him," said the Governor, "that impressed me as if he was a good old fellow, and I told him that I would pardon his boy."

"On rising to depart, he said, 'I thank you, Governor, for pardonin' him now, because hands are scarce; and on behalf of my neighbors, I beg to thank you for the apple-barrel bill.'—Editor's Drawer, in Harper's Magazine for November.

Gas vs. Kerosene.

The editor of the Boston Journal of Chemistry in a recent article states that the cost of the light from kerosene, compared with that of gas at ordinary city prices, is surprising. In examining the bill for light as presented in the seasons of 1874, and 1875 (in the former year gas being used, in the latter kerosene) he finds the difference immensely in favor of kerosene. The large stone mansion at his farm, with eighteen rooms, has been lighted the present summer at an expense of less than one dollar a month. When burning gas in the city, during corresponding months in 1874, the cost averaged over ten dollars a month. On the score of cheapness, therefore, the account stands in favor of kerosene, as one to ten.—Boston Traveller.

Man relies far more than he is aware for comfort and happiness on woman's tact and management. He is so accustomed to have things done in his own way that he is unconscious of the inconvenience and yet so ceaselessly exercised, that he enjoys the light and atmosphere. He seldom thinks how it would be with him were they withdrawn. He fails to appreciate what is so freely given. He may be reminded of the proverb, "The greatest enemy of intrusion or interference; but the iron is smothered away by a gentle hand, the murmuring lips are stopped with a cross, and the management goes on.

Scotland is not likely to send many of its sons and daughters to this country during the last quarter of this century. So many people have left that country that there will remain very probably as well off as they would be in any part of the world. A gentleman of this city who came here many years ago, has just returned from Scotland after an absence of ten years, and reports great changes there. In the rural districts there has been a very large decrease in population. The general reception of machinery, but still help is very scarce, and farm laborers and mechanics are steadily employed at wages that afford as comfortable a living as those of that class enjoy in this country.—Boston Traveller.

Charles Bado expresses his contempt for "this law firm" after the following blunt style: "The greatest asset God has ever made are little lawyers. Your little lawyer is a man who has parted with the good sense of the layman; and who has not advanced one link toward the science of a Mansfield or a Story."

The young woman who lost her scalp in a Connecticut shirt factory a couple of years ago, and had patches of skin cut on her head, can now boast of a pretty fair scalp, but her caput is as bald as a tombstone. Her physicians want to remove the new scalp, and patch it full of little holes, like peeps in a pie. It can come through, but she objects. She says she's hair is too cheap for any such foolishness.

Headache America.

I have heard some most astonishing stories, recently, respecting the paralysis of Mrs. Christine Nilsson. The beautiful diva is said to be as weak as a kitten, which is saying good words, she is not at all popular, persons
