LUDLOW, KY.

That perilous trip of the Minnie, as told with a shudder by a few gentlemen of this city, who were participants in the misadventure, has been the subject of a water-gate while at camp to cross the river during the fierce storm of last Friday evening, is as follows: About 6 o'clock on the evening named and during the stormy weather, the afore mentioned propeller Minnie, a small steam craft hired by Capt. McCoy, while the regular ferry was undergoing repairs, to ferry passengers between here and Fifth street landing, left the Cincinnati side, and when in mid-stream the roughness of the river and weather caused the little cockle-shell to pitch and toss in a mercurial manner, when of a sudden a furious gust of the wind struck the tiny vessel with such violence as to open her over on her beam ends, so much so as to cause her to ship a considerable quantity of water in her engine room. And horror of horrors! when the struggling little craft did right herself, and the forty or fifty souls aboard were about to congratulate themselves on a few more minutes of life from the surging waves, the discovery was made that some part of the machinery was broken, which left the hapless boat in the middle of the river at the mercy of the wind and waves.

While in this crippled condition the craft received another shock that sent the coal-oil lamps in pieces, throwing a sheet of flame over the small cabin floor, which started a scene among the women and children passengers, and that for the moment beggared description. However, owing to the coolness of the officers of the boat and some of the gentlemen passengers, the flames were extinguished and the ladies pacified, and weak kneed males taking courage from the calm, cool demeanor of the officers, and the gentlemen on board, took in the dangerous situation and remained resigned to their fate, calling fervently on their Maker for mercy and a safe landing, which, after being tossed in the merciless storm, with hair and clothing frozen stiff and the feet and hands without feeling, and their bodies chilled through in the above position, for three or four quarters of an hour, the wind veered to the south-west and blew the boat ashore, a short distance west of Mill street, where the half-famished and much frightened passengers disembarked, to wend their weary way to Ludlow and West Covington via the suspension bridge.

Publications.

"Corinne, or Italy," by Madame de Staël. An Extra new Edition of it in Octavo form, is just published by E. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia.

"Corinne," says Sir James Mackintosh, "is a novel of Italy, and abounds in that sweetness of description and fancy, which leaves the trace of the power of its author on every hand. It is full of pictures, feeling, and of observations on national character, so refined, that scarcely any one else could have made them. The author paints Ancona, and above all, Rome, in the liveliest colors. She alone seems to have inhabited the Eternal City. In the character of Corinne, Madame de Staël draws an imaginary self—what she is, and what she had the power of being, and what she might easily imagine that she might have become. Purely, which her sentiments and principles teach her to love; talents and accomplishments, which her energetic genius might have acquired; unassuming position for her extraordinary mind; and even beauty which her fancy contemplates so constantly, and which in the enthusiasm of invention she bestows on this adorned as well as improved self. "Corinne" is published in a large octavo volume, paper cover, with the edges cut open all round, price 75 cents. Copies of it will be sent at once, on remitting the price of it in a letter, to the publishers, T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa. For sale by Robt. Clarke & Co., 60 West Fourth street, Cincinnati.

The Workingmen.

The Workingmen's society met in Ar-belter Hall yesterday afternoon to hear a lecture delivered by Mr. Peter H. Clark on "Wages, Slavery and the Remedy." A good and intelligent audience were in attendance, who seemed to enjoy the remarks of the speaker.

Mr. Clark addressed himself to the present relations of capital and labor, and showed how the inordinate concentration of the former operated against the interests of the latter, bringing about the evils of unemployed capital on the one hand and unemployed labor on the other. The speaker's remedy for these evils was gradual, and he would bring about a reformation of the laws of the country and of the Government. He would show that the selfish gaining and hoarding of large fortunes was contrary to the welfare of society and to the interests of capital itself. Furthermore, as the Government placed subsidies on the coast as a warning against the wrecking of ships and loss of commerce, he would have devised some means to restrain reckless speculation, large business failures and commercial panics.

On the other hand, he would have the law recognize the rights as well as the duties of labor, by offering facilities of information through which there might be established a direct relation between the branches of industry. For instance, he advised thorough, intelligent, honest and faithful organization, the collection and study of statistics, &c., in order that each man might judge for himself the best and most profitable occupation to engage in, and be further convinced the suffering condition of the best educated and most intelligent of the masses, when they in turn assumed the responsibilities of life, the better look after their interests.

In short, he would have capital give up some of its assumed selfish rights and give labor its share, still bearing in view the principle that "all should not be bound down to a common level, but that genius and skill, and perseverance and industry should have full scope and enjoy its full reward.

Next Saturday afternoon, at the same place, another lecture will be delivered by a speaker to be selected during the week.

HEAVY ROBBERY.

Held on a Jewel Box.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock Saturday evening the fine residence of Colonel N. L. Anderson, at No. 129 East Fourth street, between Lawrence and Pike, was entered by a sneak thief, and jewelry to the amount of nearly $3,000 was taken.

Entrance to the room where the valuables were—the front room in the second story—was effected by means of the front balcony, and an ornamental iron vine which twines round the pillars.

The room which was invaded was Mrs. Anderson's chamber, but which had not been used recently on account of sickness in the family. The nurse girl in the room adjoining heard a noise in the room in front, but thinking Mrs. Anderson was in there she paid no attention to it.

A half hour later she went in and found that the place had been thoroughly ransacked, and the window open. She then informed the family, but it was of course too late, as the bold thief had got his booty and departed.

It had taken a jewel box which contained all of Mrs. Anderson's valuable jewelry, with the one exception of a pair of solitary diamond earrings that she happened to have in her ears; also a seal skin sack and muff, trimmed with otter. The jewelry in the sack was not only valuable as to cost, but included some pieces highly prized as heirlooms in the Longworth and Kilgour families—pieces given her by her mother, Mrs. Kilgour, and by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Larz Anderson. Among the latter was an old topaz set, given to Mrs. Nicholas Longworth as a family token of some occasion of interest to herself and children, seventy years ago, and by her given to the daughter, Mrs. Larz Anderson, and by her again, only two weeks ago, to the loser. This set consists of ear-rings, flagged hoops, made "rights and lefts," one for each ear, with settings of topaz, and a necklace to match, consisting of two chains of gold, clasped at the back and caught in front with a topaz. There were several rings set with diamonds and other pieces, and finally, the most valuable single piece of all, a cross, containing a dozen diamonds.

A Young Woman Accidentally Shot.

Another fatal accident occurred yesterday afternoon by the reckless use of a pistol, at the house No. 315 West Sixth street. Jennie Marquette, a widow, about thirty years old, was visited at that place about 1 o'clock by two friends, Albert Stauffer and Caleb W. Fuller, who were with her, when Stauffer, forgetting his presence, snatched the weapon at Mrs. Marquette, who was sitting on Fuller's knee.

The fatal bullet struck the woman in the face and went crushing through her brain. She fell to the floor in a dying condition.

Stauffer dropped the pistol and rushed out on the street, telling some policeman what he had done. They all then returned to the room and placed the dying woman on a bed, and called in Dr. P. T. Williams, who had her conveyed to the Hospital, where she died.

Stauffer was arrested on the charge of murder, and Fuller was also held to give his statement before the coroner.

Mrs. Marquette professed to have been married five times. She came to this city from Newport, and it is alleged that she has a mother living in Bellevue or Dayton, Ky.

An inquest will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Stauffer was arraigned in the Police Court at 10:30 A. M. charged with murder, but the case was held over until December 14. No bail was taken.

STREIGHT MOVEMENTS.

The U. P. steamer left, and the Mary Houston and C. B. Church arrived at New Orleans Saturday. The following steamers are at the wharf, ice-bound: Emma Graham, Polomac, Bostona, Bonanza, Virgie, United States, Alex. Keadell, H. Cooke, Andy Barran, Mary Miller and Calumet. The Ben Franklin is lying at the mouth of Licking River. The City of Portsmouth is still at California, bound in by ice.

The Louis A. Shirley, Vint Sunkle, Dove No. 2, and several other boats are harbored in Kentucky River. The Widow and the Fulton, Sue her rudder carried away by the storm Friday at Augusta, and was towed down by the Bostona Saturday night. The General Lytle is at Louisville. The steamer Big Foot, owned by the Central Railroad of Georgia, was snagged and sunk ten miles above Eufrata, Ala. Saturday night. The crew and passengers were saved. About 2,000 barrels of coal was lost. The steamer is a total loss. The Jas. D. Parker passed Evansville yesterday going down. The Fleetwood and Exchange are ice bound at Portsmouth, and the Telegraph at Rockville. The A. C. Donnelly passed Memphis Saturday loaded with 70 passengers.

BOAT HANDS GOSPEL.

Yesterday afternoon, at Portsmouth, as Capt. Little was attempting to arrange his coal fleet for an expected break in the ice, the gorge broke. About twelve loaded and several empty barges were carried off. The propeller W. F. Gaylord, Capt. Little commanding, was carried away by ice, and her rudder gone. The Exchange has several timbers on her starboard side broken, and a hole knocked in her head on her starboard. She will go on the docks. The starboard wheel of the Fleetwood was broken. The ferry boat was damaged. Several barges are aground on Scoto bar. Others have gone or have sunk. A large number of skaters have now started. Several were compelled to take to the Kentucky shore, where they were last night, unable to cross. The heavy losses were sustained by the Gaylord Rolling Mill Company, and Burgess Steel and Iron Works.

The ferry boats have all ceased running. One of the Newport boats is laid up on each side of the river. The Covington boat is aground at Fulton, and up on this side. The gorge at the head of Arden Island gave way yesterday, but it is believed another gorge has formed somewhere below.

Cap. James Kingston and the crew of the Vint Sunkle came up by rail last night to Madison. P. Put Oscar Jolly, of the Boatmen's Association, came up by rail this morning from Cairo.

TOWARD MOVEMENTS.

The Brillian, tried to get in the Kanawha Saturday, but failed, and floated down in the ice with two empty barges, and one barge was cut down by the ice. The Liberty No. 4 and barges are laid up at Sedamsville.
