THE NEW POLICY. And What Awakened in President Hayes an Interest in the Southern People. National Associated Press to the Star. WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.-The policy inaugurated by the President, with a view to the restoration of what he considers to be the proper relations between the Federal Government and the States, as contemplated by the organic laws of the land, has been received by some as fraught with much doubt of successful accomplishment.

The President in the exercise of executive authority in this direction, is governed by no sudden impulse, nor has he acted solely by the advice of others; shortly after the close of the Rebellion, in company with several gentlemen of culture and political prominence, among whom was the late Speaker of the House of Representatives, Michael C. Kerr, of Indiana, he made an extended tour through the States of Virginia, Mississippi and Louisiana, and those sections along the line of travel through adjacent States.

During their trip, which was of the nature of an excursion, instead of occupying his time in matters incident to the journey, he was a close observer of the people, their views and feelings, both in matters of their local interests and in the abnormal political relations which they then sustained toward the Federal Government, and seized every opportunity to acquaint himself personally with those subjects, and in so doing conversed freely with people of all classes.

During the sojourn of the party along the route, he took advantage of every opportunity to communicate freely with the people, and made careful notes of the information which he thus obtained.

To show the interest he felt in advising himself of the actual state of affairs, it was stated by Mr. Kerr, in a conversation with a gentleman who visited the late Speaker at his residence at New Albany, Ind., that during this excursion he was much impressed by the heartfelt interest shown by Governor Hayes in the condition of the Southern people, and that in conversation he had frequently expressed to him the hope that something might be speedily done to restore to the Southern people their relation to the Government, believing that such a course would win them back to their old love for the Union.

The late Speaker further remarked that while others were enjoying themselves, Governor Hayes labored industriously.

A COURT OF APPEALS JOKE.-Yesterday, in the Court of Appeals, a case was argued involving an alleged infringement upon the trademark of certain brandies, Samuel Hand, of our city, being the counsel for the owners.

During his argument counsel handed a bottle of the brandy to the Court, in order to illustrate the precise size and general appearance of the packages. The bottle (as to its exterior) was examined by the Court with becoming gravity, and Mr. Hand as gravely proceeded with his address.

After the court adjourned, however, it came out that Mr. Hand had been the recipient of a note from one of the Judges, reminding him with some severity that the rules of the court required the submission and filing of sixteen copies of all exhibits for the use of the court.

What further transpired has not been made public, but as the Judges and counsel enjoyed their dinner with unusual relish, it is to be presumed that the remaining "copies" were properly filed.

DOUGLAS JERROLD.-"A friend drops in and walks across the smoking-room to Douglas Jerrold's chair. The friend wants to enlist Mr. Jerrold's sympathies in behalf of a mutual acquaintance who is in want of a round sum of money.

But this mutual friend has already sent him what about among his literary brethren no more than one occasion. Mr. Jerrold is becoming an institution, and friends were grieved at the indelicacy of the proceeding. On the occasion to which I now refer the bearer of the hat was received by my father with evident dissatisfaction. 'Well,' said Douglas Jerrold, 'how much does it want this time? 'Why, just a four and two pence will, I think, put him straight,' the bearer of the hat replied, 'Jerrold.-Well, put me down for one of the noughts.'-[Blanchard Jerrold's Life of His Father.

"WHO'S GOT THE BUTTON?"-A Detroit (W. B. Hough) has invented a unique device for the identification of lost children in particular and everybody in general. It consists of a button made in the ordinary form of a sleeve button, in such manner that the top can be taken off, disclosing a hollow receptacle for a small piece of paper, on which is to be written the name and address of the wearer.

On the outside of the top or cover is the inscription in plain Roman letters: "Where I live I am inside." The invention is called the "perpetual personal identification button."-[Free Press.

A good trait of the present Sultan is his kindness to Shekaf Effendi and his two little sisters. These are the last children of Abul-Aziz, whose mother died three years ago, and who were swept away from the palace with the rest of the contents of the fallen monarch's harem when Murad was placed upon the throne.

The Sultan has found them out, has brought them back to the palace, and is having his little cousins brought up with his own children, of whom he has three.

A SUICIDE'S FUNERAL WHIM.-Franz Kramer, a lively stable keeper of Hoboken, hanged himself to a rack in his stable last night. "Where I live I live after a quarrel with his wife. A letter found among his effects concludes: "Dear wife-I must die and go to another world. All my efforts to be successful in life have been in vain. I hope to see you again on the road. See that the funeral is all right. I want to be drawn to the grave by four horses."

THE RAILWAY HOSTILITIES.-The Pittsburg Leader says: "The fact is (and that is how all this cutting and un-cutting has about) there are practically five railroads contending for the Western traffic, when two are completed, to attend to all that offers. One of two things would therefore appear inevitable-either that trade must materialize, or, unhappy alternative, that soon or later, there will be a collapse of two among the rival lines somewhere."

The famous old City Hall, of Perugia, Italy, is entered both in interior and exterior since its completion in the very beginning of the Middle Ages; its great audience chamber, picture gallery, hall of public assembly, banqueting, dining and bedrooms, even its kitchen and cooking utensils hanging around it, are just as they were when Braccio Fortebracco and the fierce Gaspario lords were succeeded by the ruled, ruled, and tyrannized in them.

A Port Huron man undertook, the other day, to move a building across the Black River, on the ice. He got it nearly over, and the undertaking had really begun to look like a big thing on ice, when, suddenly, crash! smash! away went ice, house and all, and real estate touched bottom in that neighborhood about two sections towards.

Longworth, that the single track of the Mount Adams Incline (Route 15) Street Railway may be laid as near as four feet to Eggleston avenue, on condition that it hereafter the use of the property should make it desirable to put it in the center of the street, that the Street Railroad Company will do so if required.

"Resolved, That the Chief Engineer secure from George Korper and Henry Pearce, contractors for said Street Railroad No. 15, written agreement as above, and have the track laid down accordingly."

The bond of A. B. Ashman & Co., contractors for the construction of the Liberty-street sewer, was fixed at $5,000.

Adjournd. BUCK-ING AGAINST A DEED. How Two Women Outwitted a Real Estate Operator. The local sensation of to-day in the usually quiet little hamlet of Lockland and its contiguous territory of Reading is the arrest on a warrant of a well-to-do and highly respected family name and his wife, consisting of Henry, the husband, Louisa, his wife, and their pretty red-checked daughter Mary. It seems that some weeks ago Henry Buck sold to Mr. Franz Kauffman, through his agent, C. H. Heimkamp, a tailor and Ex-Justice of the Peace, a certain lot of ground close by, for which was to have been paid the sum of $1,700.

Previous to, and after the sale, which occurred about the end of the month, Mrs. Buck evinced considerable opposition to the transaction, and carried on so about it, that she enlisted the sympathy of her daughter Mary. The 5th of April was the time set for the signing of the deed transferring the property to Mr. Kauffman, by the wife.

On the night of that day she and the young woman called at the house of Mr. Heimkamp, who had already been put in possession of the deed and to which Mr. Buck had placed his signature. Mrs. Buck was as pleasant as usual with her neighbors, the purchasers, and manifested no opposition to the arrangement, remarking in fact that she had concluded to sign the instrument, as the property in question had a mortgage on it to the amount of $700, and that they had had a good deal of trouble with tenants of it from time to time, and she thought perhaps it would be better if Mr. Kauffman should have it.

So far so good. The deed was spread out on the table, after being read to those assembled, the pen was placed in her hand. Mary had walked to a side-door leading to the street, and appeared perfectly cool and unconcerned. Mr. Heimkamp was anxious and expectant. Mr. Buck's face wore that pleased and calm look, suggesting inward content that a vexed question which had ruffled the bosom of his domestic happiness, had at last been settled, when all of a sudden, like a clap of thunder from a clear sky, the infuriated Mrs. Buck grabbed the obnoxious deed from the table, crumpled it angrily in her outstretched hand, and then darted to the very door at which the cunning, cherr-checked Mary stood on guard to assist her mother to escape, and flew out into the night air with the speed of a quarter-horse. Pursuit was at once made by the astonished Buck and the bewildered Heimkamp, but there stood Mary with that look of determination which is supposed to have lit up the faces of those heroic men who defied the pass at Thermopylae, and here the pursuit ended, a Mary succeeded in keeping the pursuers in the house until her mother had got a good start. Then follows an arrest of the Buck family, the wife being charged with robbery and the husband and heretofore with being accessories thereto.

The case coming up before Squire John Anthony this morning, was ventilated by a cloud of witnesses, as witnessed by a couple of lawyers on each side, and the result of it was that the defendants were dismissed, the Court holding that the charge of robbery was not sustained, inasmuch as the necessary ingredient of bodily fear did not enter into the transaction, as the testimony showed that there was no violence, threatened or otherwise but that the deed was taken by a successful ruse of two sharp-witted females, and the offense, at best, was nothing more than a trespass, for which damages can be recovered by a civil process, and the Bucks are happy.

Local Personal. Judge Longworth says "aren't?" Joe Cutter has mowed his mustache. City Clerk Kohner has donated spectacles to a blind.

John P. Murphy, the new Prosecutor, is a strawberry blonde. Ben. Shott, in addition to his base-ball club, has started a cigar store.

Col. J. V. Guthrie will be appointed Wharf Register by Mayor Moore. Miss Martha Jenkins, assistant teacher in the Thirteenth District, has resigned.

W. E. Davis, Assistant Treasurer of the United States, is lying at the point of death. Mr. J. H. Setchel, Alderman-elect from the First Ward, is aspiring to the Presidency of the Board.

Mr. W. J. O'Neil, retiring Chairman of the Board of Education, was presented, last evening, with a handsome gavel and elegant morocco case.

Behind the Bars. Harry Griffith alias Reed aged twenty-eight, by occupation a clerk, and who claims to be in the employ of a prominent dry goods house on West Fourth street, was arrested between 6 and 7 o'clock this morning at his lodging, No. 36 West Fourth street, on complaint of his former room mate, Frank Deaken, an employe of Hall's Safe & Lock Company, who claims that Griffith has robbed him of $70 which was taken from his clothes. Deaken states that upon a former occasion the same chap despoiled him of $20, but that he was allowed to make restitution to save prosecution. The alleged culprit is now occupying a cell in the Hammond-street Station-house.

Arrested Burglars. Detective Wappenstein and Officer Frank Kamsay arrested two burglars yesterday, who have committed a number of robberies in the West End.

About a week ago the shoe store of Jacob Beloner, No. 218 P. M. street, was burglarized and a lot of boots and shoes taken. Yesterday the above-named officers found one pair of the boots stolen from Beloner's store. They recovered them in Dawson's pawnshop on Central avenue.

Shortly after an old-time thief named Mike Manning came up the street, and found on a pair of boots similar to those found by the officer. The officers took Manning to the Central Police Station, Manning implicated in the burglary a man named Fred. Burns, alias Dutch Fritz, who is now in the Work-house for outwitting.

Manning was brought into the Police Court this morning and the case continued until to-morrow, when his accomplice will be brought in from the Work-house.

Court Callings. Mary F. Elder against Rhoda Ann Taylor. The plaintiff alleges that she is the adopted daughter of the defendant's husband; that upon his death he left a will, bequeathing all his property to his wife, with the proviso that during her life time she would provide for the plaintiff. She asks judgment for the amount of her interest accruing in the rents and profits of the estate. In progress.

Richard Hosea, executor, against Jos. McDougal and others. This is an action to foreclose a mortgage.

Joseph Marks, boot and shoe dealer, No. 358 West Fifth street, made an assignment in favor of his creditors to John H. Morton.

E. G. Benzender against the city. This case came up on a petition in error to reverse a judgment rendered in favor of the city. Argued and submitted.

The city against the Cincinnati and Warsaw Turnpike. A petition in review. Argued and submitted.

That Baby Show. Dr. Maley, who will have charge of Cincinnati's next infantile exposition, is working like a beaver in preparing for a successful demonstration of the fact that the Queen City has more handsome babies with proud mothers and teigted papas than any other city of the first class in the country. He had received numerous applicants already, and is certain that the show will be something of which our citizens will be proud.

It is his intention to have matlers so arranged that Greenwood and Musritt shall on the 19th, 20th and 21st of the scene of an uncomfortable larae far as seeing the dear little ones are concerned, as each "ducky diamond" will be provided with a high chair, thus placing it above the "common herd" where all may feast their eyes on it without any cflaning of necks or tramping of toes.

The prices are on a more liberal scale than that at these "airs," thus bringing out more of the youth and innocence of the city.

The judges will be selected with special reference to their fitness and capability for such a delicate commission, merely rendering it a matter of certainty that each competitor will receive a fair trial. "Kai for Maley and the judges!"

Circuit Court. In the case of Hunt et al. against Woodward, a verdict for plaintiff was rendered this morning in the sum of $93.55.
