St. Nicholas For June.

The St. Nicholas for June is an excellent number of this favorite juvenile monthly. It has the usual number of pleasant stories, such as "Little Miss Stone," by Mary Wager Fisher; "How Bessie Doctored the Daddies," "The West Wind's Last Cruise," by Frank H. Converse; "Lost and Found," by Florence Scannell; "Marian's Story," etc.; also, several interesting narrative pieces. "How to Camp Out," which will be especially attractive to boys of gray inclinations; "A Summer Home for Poor Children," describing the institution for this purpose maintained by a benevolent association in New York, and based on the Long Island coast. These are all elegantly illustrated, and the frontpiece, "The Home of the Herons," is a beautifully designed and executed steel engraving. Miss Alcott's serial, "Jack and Jill," is continued, and there are also two or three more chapters of Noah Brook's baseball story, "The Fairport Nine." Besides these there is "Something About Musical Ducks;" "More Chronicles of the Molbors;" a chapter on "Foreign Head-dresses," with fac-simile illustrations, etc., etc.

IN THE DARK.

Which Means the People in the Highland House Belvedere Last Night.

During the concert last night at the Highland House Belvedere some person went to the gas meter and turned off the gas that lit the Belvedere. This immediately caused a rush among the audience for the esplanade above. It is supposed that during this excitement the party or parties who did the mischief had some pairs who worked the crowd, but there were no pockets picked as far as could be ascertained. Mr. Harff, upon learning what happened, made a flank movement for the meter, but the miscreant escaped in time.

Notes.

Blondel, the Baltimore swimmer, failed to swim from the Newport to the Covington bridge yesterday, as he was announced to do in the morning papers. He now announces his intention of swimming from Woodland Garden, formerly East End Garden, to Schmidt's Bath-house, foot of Broadway, to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock.

The editor of the Cairo, Illinois, Evening Sun, in paying a tribute to the enterprise of the St. Louis Post Dispatch, and expressing his sorrow at the loss by fire, which the latter sustained, says: "The whole office was knocked into ten thousand pieces—except the St. Jacobs Oil advertisement, which was mercifully preserved." The closing remarks in the above and the following incident, are a true index of the unexampled popularity the Great German Remedy enjoys everywhere. At a St. Louis theater recently, whilst the play was in progress, one of the lady performers met with a painful mishap which quite disabled her. The hero of the piece, quite equal to the emergency, called out to one of the ushers to "bring a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil quickly." The thundering applause throughout the entire house, which promptly followed this happy suggestion, was an unmistakable proof of the fact, that the audience had been there themselves," as the expression goes, and experienced the benefits of this wonderful article.
