THE CINCINNATI CUSTOM HOUSE.

Special to the Star. WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—Some changes have been made in the architectural plans for the new Custom House at Cincinnati.

The domes are now to be made much higher and to be surmounted with a unique design of iron cresting.

Whittaker's Case--The Cincinnati Custom House--Personal Points.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—The Secretary of War today suspended the recommendation of the West Point Academic Board that Whittaker be dropped on account of deficiency in his studies.

This will give Whittaker an opportunity of demanding a court-martial in his case if he desires to vindicate himself.

Secretary Ramsey and Col. Barr will leave next Sunday for Minnesota, where they will remain three or four days, and then go to Fort Leavenworth to inspect the military prison.

Gen. Drum will leave July 3d or 4th to join the Secretary at Fort Leavenworth, and Gen. McDowell will come East and also meet the party at that point.

Generals Board and McDowell are members of the Board on Military Prisons.

SAN FRANCISCO.

National Associated Press to the Star. SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—The nomination of Hancock is received with satisfaction by the Democrats, who say the Republicans can no longer shake the bloody shirt to scare timid people into voting against the Democratic party.

The Examiner heads its editorial, "President Hancock," and says he will carry Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Indiana, Illinois, California and Ohio, beside all the Southern States.

The Bulletin says: It is the strongest nomination possible for the Democracy, and even if he could that would not bring him victory.

The Post expresses delight that the cry of fraud has been abandoned, and honest-minded Conservatives who sympathized with Democrats on the claim that the last election had been decided by a trick, will now see the shallowness of that pretext.

Hancock has been put forward as a political stop-gap to be brushed aside by the people at the ballot-boxes next November.

It will not be forgotten either the part which General Hancock took in the execution of Mrs. Surratt for all ed complicity in the assassination of President Lincoln.

This stain attaches to his name and can not be effaced.

CHICAGO. CHICAGO, June 25.—Considerable interest was manifested yesterday as news from Cincinnati was bulletined at the various central points about the city.

The Democrats appear to be generally well pleased with the ticket, while the Republicans say Hancock was the best man the Democrats could have nominated, and acknowledge it will require hard work to beat the Democratic ticket.

The Evening Journal (Rep.) says: "As an expediency candidate General Hancock is supposed to be strong, but it must be confessed that as President of the United States he would probably be a great failure.

erners to lord it over him while acting in the capacity. His name offers no promise of statesmanship and no pledge of progress, but only a renewal of the old-time subordination of the Democratic party to the dictation of the South.

The Inter Ocean, Republican, to-day says: The nomination is a weak one, not because the man is not strong in his way, but because the rank and file of the party never have been in sympathy with him, and will not support him.

A Washington special reports John T. Campbell, the only surviving attorney for Mrs. Surratt, saying that Hancock is the best selection the Cincinnati Convention could have made.

It is at all events a fortunate escape from Tilden, upon which the party is to be congratulated. But it is not a nomination that can be said to fulfill the party's opportunity.

It never had more favorable opportunity to bring to the front a new political leader, one who would give promise of leading the party out of its old political graveyard and onward to a new and hopeful future of political activity.

Gen. Hancock furnishes no evidence of good capacity for political leadership. He is nothing but a soldier, and not a very brilliant one at that.

As regards military record of the two men—Gen. Hancock and Mr. Garfield—they may be regarded as standing on the same platform.

Their military records are perhaps equally good.

COLUMBUS, OHIO. COLUMBUS, O., June 25.—A big ratification meeting was held at the State House last night, with a band, fireworks and speeches.

The crowd was very large and enthusiastic. Senator Thurman reviewed Hancock's record, characterizing him as a brave General, constitutional lawyer, and American statesman.

His career as Louisiana's military Governor was praised. The nomination of Hancock and English meant success, because it healed the factions in New York and Pennsylvania.

Other speakers followed, and upon the arrival of the Thurman delegation from Cincinnati a grand scene ensued.

The State Journal to-day says: General Hancock is a soldier, pure and simple. Some expressions of his have been construed as a declaration that, in time of peace, the military should be subordinate to the civil power—a proposition that no American has thought of disputing.

With the exception of his financial creed, Mr. English has given no expression of political opinion for upward of twenty years.

LOUISVILLE. LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 25.—The Commercial of this city to-day says: In putting aside its experienced statesmen and nominating Hancock the Democratic party confesses the weakness of its cause and the lack of attractiveness in its record.

Passing over everybody identified with its struggles, policy and tendencies, it takes up a military man simply in order to divert the public mind from its own character and position.

No party that has not the courage to fight for its own views and sentiments under leaders who represent them will ever succeed.

The Democratic party has come nearest to success the only time it has had the courage to make a fight under leaders distinctly identified with it.

The Courier-Journal publishes good portraits of Hancock and English to-day, and says: Winfield Scott Hancock is the Democratic candidate for the Presidency of the United States.

The South takes him and will give him her undivided vote. He fought the South, but when the smoke of battle rolled away he as earnestly fought against the imposition of despotic expedients upon the Southern communities in the military division of which he was the head.

Do you match this man in Garfield, Republicans? We think not. We have a congruous candidate. Sweep your hand over the chords of his life and there is harmony.

Search all the tall-tale public records and you will find no black mark against him. Fabricate charges, and we will refute them. We shall, in fact, only make your candidate.

NEW ORLEANS. NEW ORLEANS, June 25.—The nomination of Louisiana's favorite is received with great satisfaction. A hundred guns were fired last evening by the Louisiana artillery at Lafayette Square.

The steamboats threw out their bunting and blew their whistles last night. Two newspaper offices were brilliantly illuminated.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—Hancock's nomination continues to gain favor here. The Democrats are feeling jubilant, and ratification meetings were held in several places in the city last night.

Alexander Stephens was serenaded at the National Hotel and in a speech pronounced Hancock the strongest man in the Democratic party.

Secretaries Sherman, Thompson and Ramsey, Postmaster General Key, Joe Tyner and other prominent Republicans, pronounce it the strongest nomination that could have been made.

At the departments there is considerable forboding among the office holders. It is a common jest to-day that there are no Republican office holders.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The Democratic politicians remaining here are well satisfied with the result. Southern men are particularly gratified, for with them Hancock is a great favorite.

Gen. Joe Johnston says Hancock will have no difficulty to carry every Southern State. The Republicans believe it is as strong a nomination as the Democrats could have made.

only topic of conversation. Here Hancock takes corresponding better among Democrats than Garfield did among the Republicans, probably because his nomination was less a surprise.

THE MRS. SURRATT AFFAIR. New York, June 25.—A Richmond special reports that Bishop Keen says he happened to be in Washington a few months ago, when the charges as to General Hancock's connection with the Surratt case were reiterated, and Father Walter stated in the most emphatic language that there was no truth whatever in the charges.

Father Walter was the spiritual adviser and confessor of Mrs. Surratt. A Washington special reports John T. Campbell, the only surviving attorney for Mrs. Surratt, saying that Hancock is the best selection the Cincinnati Convention could have made.

It is a splendid selection, and his part in the Surratt execution will not affect him. The General obeyed the order of his superiors, and that is recognized by all well-informed Democrats.

Hancock was in the court room during the entire time, and on the morning of the execution said: "I am carrying out the death sentence, and it is the most painful act of my life. I would rather take the chances on the battle field, but I am a soldier and I must obey orders."

WHAT GENERAL SHERMAN SAYS. General Sherman says Hancock is an excellent soldier and a gentleman. The member of Sherman's staff speak in the highest terms of Hancock. General Hancock says Hancock has a pure record, and his connection with Mrs. Surratt's execution was nothing more than any other soldier who was obeying orders.

CONVENTION ECHOES. THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE. The Democratic National Committee met at the Grand Hotel last night, and organized temporarily by appointing Senator Barnum Chairman and Mr. Prince Secretary.

It was resolved to hold a meeting July 30th at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in New York.

RATIFYING THE NOMINATION. The Young Men's Democratic Club met last night at their hall on Central avenue for the purpose of holding a ratification meeting, but the enthusiasm being so great the meeting was suddenly turned into a torchlight procession.

Preceded by the Columbus Band the principal streets were marched over, halts being made at the St. Nicholas and Grand, where speech-making was indulged in.

Mr. Waterson said: I was for Tilden, I am now for Hancock. Hancock is the heart of the country. I endorse the nomination made with all my heart.

Senator Wade Hampton said: I have just received a dispatch from Charleston saying: "We are firing a hundred guns for Hancock." That is the first response from the South for the nomination you have made to-day.

Not only in South Carolina, but throughout our whole Southland you will find the men who wore the gray coming out to stand shoulder to shoulder under one flag, for one country, with the boys who wore the blue.

Hancock's election will not only bring peace and prosperity to the whole country, but it will signify more than all the platitudes and declaration you can make at there was at last peace. It will signify our intention to turn our backs upon the past.

General "Baldy" Smith said: "I have been waiting for fifteen years to see the nomination come that would allow us to put a Democratic President in the White House. That nomination has come, and a Democratic President will be restored."

Mr. Randall said: "Our action to-day has brought about amity and harmony where discord and discontent existed heretofore. To-day we present to the country in him a solid column of Democratic hearts and hands. I will read you a telegram from a quarter from which I think you would like to hear."

"I congratulate the Convention and the Democratic party of the United States upon the nomination of Hancock and English. The people will condemn the fraudulent subversion of the election of 1876, and will assert their power and resume their sovereign right to choose their rulers."

General Breckinridge said: It is indeed a glorious day which has mingled cheers for Hancock and Hampton, for fraternity and liberty, for pure ballots and civil government, for the burial of the animosities of the past, and the going forward to take possession of the heritage of the party. It will be a victory for liberty; for the sons of freedom.

Speeches were made by Senator Lamar, General O'Neil, of Alabama, and others.

CONVENTION NOTES. The striking resemblance of Hon. John Kelly, the famous Tammany chief, to Dr. Maley, of this city, was generally remarked.

Hon. Isaac Miller made a most excellent Sergeant-at-Arms. There was a crying need for just such a man at the Chicago Convention.

Ike Miller and Speaker Randall are so much alike that the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Convention was frequently taken for the Speaker of the National House of Representatives.

The committee appointed by the Convention to notify the nominees of their selection met last night at the Grand Hotel and appointed a special committee to attend to the matter.

About one-half of the delegates and most of the clubs left last night for their homes. A number of the prominent leaders, however, are still in the city talking over the results of yesterday's work.

The Tammany Brigade paraded the principal streets last evening and carried transparencies lettered "New York will give Hancock 50,000 majority." "New York and Tammany solid for Hancock." The Tammany men left last night in high spirits for home.

Messrs. A. Davis & Bros., merchant tailors, of East Fifth street, state that the diamond stud stolen from Judge Tappan by E. N. Black and James Noce, was not recovered by officers at their store. Black came there intoxicated, and asked to leave the stolen stud until he sobered up. The request was granted, but Black soon called for it again. The firm had no knowledge of the goods being stolen.

A petition was filed this morning before the County Clerk for $4,000 damage against the City of Cincinnati by Mrs. Elizabeth Williams and her husband, John.

TRIPLE EXECUTION AT CANTON, O.

SPECIAL TO THE STAR. CANTON, O., June 25.—Crowds are already flocking into the city, drawn hither by the double attraction of a triple hanging and Coup's circus, both of which performances have been extensively billed for to-day.

Ohr and Mann, the murderers of old man Wattmough, have been hopeful all along of a respite, on the part of Mann, because it is contended that he did not actually participate in the murder, and in Ohr's behalf because of his youth, although both are young men. Mann is the only one who showed signs of weakening as the day approached.

He became weak and haggard, had occasional fits and spent most of his time in reading religious books and praying. It is feared he will break down altogether to-day. Ohr, the Chicago boy, and Sammet have shown grit right along, amusing themselves by playing euchre and practicing on musical instruments. They have sold hundreds of their photographs and poems of their own composition.

The men all three spent part of last night with spiritual advisers, and have evidently abandoned all hope. Governor Foster telegraphed the Mayor to issue his proclamation closing the saloons to-day. Assistant Adjutant General Smith arrived last night and the militia are prepared for any outbreak.

Five military companies now guard the jail, and a large force of extra police are on duty. The boys, who have stood all with an air of bravado, now begin to weaken.

THE MEN AND THEIR CRIMES. Ohr and Mann were found guilty of the murder of an old man named John Wattmough, of Louisville, this county, June 26, 1879, one year ago. They tramped with the old man and murdered him for his money. Ohr is a native of Germany, but was brought up in Chicago. Mann is from New York.

Sommet killed Christopher Spuhler, a boy of Massilon, because he did not want him to appear as a witness against him in a burglary case. Since the boys have been in jail here hundreds of people visit them daily. One day two thousand people entered the jail, among these were many ladies, especially young ladies.

Mann is a Catholic, and, he being the most youthful, his Catholic friends exerted their influence for executive clemency. The daughter of Judge Myers, who sentenced all the boys, has been very active in behalf of Mann. Sommet is also a Catholic.

In Stark County they labored hard for him. Ohr is of the Protestant faith, being reared a Lutheran. When the Protestants saw the Catholic influence exerted they declared Ohr should be saved, and this affair then augmented the aspect of a religious rivalry, Protestant vs. Catholic.

A month's reprieve was granted by Gov. Foster, and the strongest pressure was brought to bear for a pardon. Judge Meyer's daughter went to Columbus again, as did other friends, including the aged aunt of Mann's, and the boys had hopes of clemency; still the preparations went on, and a scaffold was erected in the jail corridor.

Here the three-boys will drop from one trap all at the same instant. There is not more than room enough for the condemned and a minister. The rear wall of the cells has been removed and through it they will walk to death. No execution has taken place in this county since 1833.

Between one and two o'clock this morning six firemen were sent by the Chief Engineer under this wall in order to play on the surrounding flames. They had been at work but a few minutes when the wall fell with a crash burying them all. Wm. Woods and J. Delany, of engine No. 4, were taken out dead, and the following firemen, belonging to the same company, were rescued, but were seriously wounded: Wick Sayre, Jas. Moore, Jacob Marsh, and Henry Siebert.
