"She was very nicely," said Mrs. Wharton, "I really, very much indeed, and if you have any work you wish done well and cheaply, I would advise you to employ her."

"There's my green satin," mused Mrs. Wharton, checking off the various garments on the tips of her white fingers.

"No, my dear," said Mrs. Wharton, "I don't think I must have something new. A rose colored dress, or a white India muslin. My wardrobe is getting dreadfully behind-hand."

"I beg your pardon, ma'am," said Mrs. Wharton, "but I don't think I must have something new. A rose colored dress, or a white India muslin. My wardrobe is getting dreadfully behind-hand."

"VEILED HELL."

The Miraculous Sand of America—Fire Springs, Volcanoes, and Pass of Hell—The Veiled Infernal Regions.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial, writing from the "Headwaters of the Yellowstone, Montana," gives the following description of the "Valley and Pass of Hell," in that Territory:

And here, from the spot on which I stand, with my companions on this exploring expedition, tracing my notes, I drink in the views, so weird, so passing strange, that even in my wildest dreams never sought like this was seen.

"How provoking! I haven't any change in the house," said Mrs. Wharton, "I'll send it round in the morning."

GRANT AND SHERMAN.

The Magnanimity of Grant and the Testimony of Sherman to Grant's Greatness.

General GRANT, having been appointed Lieutenant General, was ordered to Washington, immediately before setting out on his journey, on the 4th of March, 1864, he sent the following private letter by Col. BARNUM, of his staff, which was dispatched with instructions to General SHERMAN:

DEAR SHERMAN: The bill reviving the grade of Lieutenant General in the army has become a law and my name has been sent to the Senate for the place. I now receive orders to report to Washington immediately, in person, which indicates a confirmation or likelihood of confirmation. I start in the morning to comply with the order. While I have been unanimously successful in this war, in at least gaining the confidence of the public, no one feels more than I have much of this success is due to the energy, skill, and harmoniously putting forth that energy and skill, of those whom it has been my good fortune to have occupying subordinate positions under me.

Leap-Year Privileges.

This being Leap-year, we copy the following, by COR. OLANUS, for the benefit of lady readers.

In Leap-year, I wish to inform the ladies, There is a division of opinion as to the right of a woman to vote, but there can be no question as to her right to a husband—if she can get one.

But I would advise young ladies not to be rash. Although it is Leap-year, you had better look before you leap. Because if you get a husband and he don't suit you, you can't change him for a better one, at least without going to Chicago.

There are several considerations to be observed in the selection of a husband. He is a matter of fact; size, complexion and shape of whiskers may be left to individual taste. They are of less consequence than disposition and penitentiary resources. Particularly the resources. I wouldn't advise any young woman to marry a man who would expect her to support him.

U. S. GRANT, Major General. Gen. SHERMAN received this letter near Memphis on the 10th, to which he immediately replied:

The Useless Young Men.

The Harriburg Union proposes a new charitable institution, in the form of a State asylum for indigent young men.

It has in view as proper inmates of such an asylum, it says, "have no visible means of support; still they hang on, they vegetate, they keep above the ground. In a certain limited sense, they may be said to live, move, and have a being; they lounge in offices, promenade the streets, attend social amusements, play the gallant, go gunnated ladies and attend to the necessities of life. Their more quiet and unassuming habits, which may be described as an intermittent torpor, in which they drink, and sleep mark the change. Their existence would be a mystery, but for their bearing relations to other substantial people, known as 'pa's' and 'mo's' or 'better half,' who are able to make provisions for the waste and protect their bodies in the way of clothing and food."

It is not a fair thing on the old gentleman, who has been looking forward to the marriage of his daughter as a happy release from milliner bills. Never disappoint your parents. Young ladies need not inquire too particularly whether the man of their choice belongs to a lodge which meets four nights in a week.
