IMPORTANT TO SOLDIERS.
Those having Friends in the Army!
We call the attention of all having relatives or friends in the Army to the fact that the Government has issued orders that no soldier shall be allowed to leave his regiment without the consent of his commanding officer. This order is intended to prevent the desertion of soldiers, and to ensure the discipline of the Army. We have prepared a list of the names of the soldiers who have deserted from their regiments, and we are prepared to furnish a copy of this list to any person who may desire it.

Selected Poetry.
(From the N. Y. Evening Post.)
BATTLE-WORN BANNERS.
(JANUARY 26, 1864.)
BY FARE BENJAMIN.
I saw the soldiers come to-day
From distant lands,
No conqueror rode before their way
On his triumphal car,
But captured like themselves, on foot,
And banners sadly torn,
All grudging sleep, though mute,
To pride and glory born.

wounded at the first line of rifle pits, and General Haxon rode up, with the words, "I hope you are not badly wounded." "Do you think we'll make it?" asked the Col.
"I do," was the reply. "That's enough," said the gallant officer, "I can stand this!"
and there he lay, bleeding and content, and the tide of the battle rolled on.

A division (General turned abruptly to me, in the course of a familiar conversation, when I was sitting on the ground, and he said, "as you will, don't forget Col.
Miller, of the 36th Illinois, one of the most gallant little fellows that ever drew a sword." I did not need that injunction, for Colonel Silas Miller rode through the storm to the summit of the Ridge, at the head of his regiment, like a veteran, till the little 30th was a platoon of heroes, and Col. Frank T.
Sherman, of your city, who commanded Gen. Steedman's brigade, displayed a cool courage worthy the name and fame of Illinois. In truth, all the Colonels that day were fit to be named with any of the continental memory. "The old-fashioned Colonel," who galloped through the white infernal powder-cloud.

Indeed and indeed, "death leaves a shid-ding mark," and the roll of officers for whom their comrades say to-day, "dead on the field of honor" will lend a splendor to the story of Mission Ridge. Clothed by the 7th Ohio in mourning and glory, that lost thirteen of its seventeen officers. Sheridan's division, lost at Stones River seventy-two; at Chickamauga ninety-six; while at Mission Ridge one hundred and twenty-two, single and double, leaves silver and gold, and six spread eagles, lay bloody and blest—the total loss in the two divisions of Wood and Sheridan alone being twenty-three hundred and forty-four.

They cried in the white heat of Wednesday afternoon, "The rebels mark their territory! They converge their fire!" and yet, taking our divisions through and through, the dreadful rain fell as evenly as if it had been shed by the clouds of heaven.

Spots all along that rough and terrible mountain route are waiting some poet's breath to blossom with flowers immortal.— Here by this gray rock, lay the soldier, one shoulder shattered like a piece of pottery, clay, and thus urged two comrades who had halted to bear him to the rear: "Don't stop for me—I'm of no account—for God's sake, push right up with the boys!" and on they went and left him wailing in his bloody vestments, and your T. Sherman, who had
