BURGARS forced the door of the National Bank at Smithfield, on Friday morning, and in doing so made such a racket as to wake the cashier, Wm. Verday, who resided near by. He immediately began an investigation into the burglarious visit. One of the burglars who stood guard outside of the building, gave the alarm, when the parties inside rushed out and boarded a wagon with which they were provided, and were driven rapidly toward Steubenville. The burglars, when they were discovered, were engaged in drilling a hole into the safe, and broke a drill in the attempt. They did not succeed in entering the vault, nor in securing anything of value. It is supposed that the party who was the ringleader in the robbery, was the same man who has been blowing safes along the river recently.

Last Friday evening four important arrests were made in Wheeling, by which it is hoped that the fire-bug gang which has kept that city in terror for some weeks will be broken up. The prisoners are: four North Wheeling boys, ranging in age from 14 to 16 years, named John Griner, Abraham Boston, John McCleary, and George Gray. The evidence against the boys was worked up by Mr. Parkes, secretary of the Girls Works burned in North Wheeling, on Sabbath night of last week, and C. H. Collins, the agent for the insurance companies having charge of the buildings. At midnight on Friday Gray weakened, and made a detailed confession of the crime, saying that he with the other boys under arrest, had set fire to the glass house, and also the cotton and woolen recently burned, had tried to burn the Register office and other buildings.

MR. ALBERT YOUNG and Miss Maggie Brown were married on Thursday evening, April 20th, at the residence of the bride's grand-father, Mr. Wm. Brown, about three miles northwest of Bridgeport. Rev. J. R. Keyes, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Bridgeport, in a few brief words, tied the silken knot which made them husband and wife. A large number of invited guests were present, and no effort was spared to make the occasion pleasant and enjoyable. Immediately after the ceremony the company repaired to the dining-room, and part ample justice to the sumptuous repast, under which the table would have groined if it could have done so. The presents were numerous and beautiful. Mr. and Mrs. Young will begin house-keeping shortly. May their lives be long, useful and happy.

MISS TAYLOR, President of Wheeling Female College, delivered the anniversary address before the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, of this place, in the M. E. Church on Sunday evening, to a large and interested audience. The address was a stirring appeal in behalf of the missionary cause. Miss Taylor, in the opening of her admirable address, alluded to the gratification she experienced in the privilege to address the St. Clairsville Society, which was the first society organized in the Cincinnati Branch, and had the honor of sending out the first missionary of that branch, Miss Thoburn.

The meeting was gracefully presided over by Mrs. H. C. Welday. The report of the secretary, Miss Virginia Minor, was a neat paper, showing a favorable condition of the society, and making mention in fitting terms of the loss by removal of Mrs. Carroll and Hoge, faithful members of the society. The treasurer's report showed over $100 contributed by the society during the past year.

LEWIS SUTTON, mention of whose serious illness, made in these columns last week, died on Thursday morning at his residence, three miles east of this place. Deceased was born in Somerset county, New Jersey, March 21st, 1807, and resided in this county, Pa., and two years later, in 1809, removed to Belmont county, and settled on a farm two miles south of St. Clairsville, where they resided for many years—the father of our subject, Jonathan Sutton, dying there. April 1, 1817 Lewis Sutton, was married to Miss Eleanor G. McWilliams, who still survives, and in 1844 he purchased the farm where he lived the balance of his days. From this brief sketch of the life of the deceased, it will be observed that he was one of the early settlers of this region, and his death was a great loss to the community, fast crumbling, and which connects the present generation with that distant period. Deceased was one of the heroic, sturdy men of his day, who were industrious and frugal, and succeeded in gaining a competence which, in later years, he enjoyed as the fruit of honest labor. He took great interest in public affairs, and was a close observer of the times, and in his religious faith he was a warm adherent of the Presbyterian church, and contributed liberally to its support and to all its benevolences. He was an energetic and successful farmer, and in the seventeen years preceding his death read the old and new testament thirty-five times. He was one of the projectors of the Union Cemetery of this place, and in such a manner that in that resting place of the dead is due to his unceasing interest in that behalf. He was a good citizen, a kind friend, an affectionate husband and a tender parent.

His funeral took place from his late residence on Saturday. Religious services were conducted by Rev. Robert Alexander, who spoke appropriately of the life and character of the deceased, and a feeling prayer was uttered by Rev. Doctor Minor. Friends and neighbors for the last time viewed the face of the deceased, which the funeral cortege moved to the Union Cemetery in this place, where the remains were deposited in a patent bar-lar proof vault, furnished by B. R. Johnston, the undertaker.

UNION TOWN.

ARMORY wasn't observed here except the people set out a few "little onions." Our man did not get along with the trees, and if he exerts himself we expect to celebrate next year.

SCHOOL CORN was planted in this locality on the 27th and 28th, but most farmers will not plant so early. Wheat may prove worse injured than was at first supposed, and fruit except apples will prove a total failure, unless fruit is not thought to be injured.

THE PEOPLE—We had the pleasure of greeting on the train Mr. H. R. Campbell, proprietor of the coal works at Henderson station. He is one of our enterprising men of the day, and gave us interesting information concerning mines and mining; quite a town has been opened up in the vicinity of Henderson, and a railroad depot at their expense. We also were favored in meeting Mr. Thos. E. Clark, proprietor of the National, and one of the lessees of the coal works at Henderson, who is on a business trip to Cleveland to contract for steel rails for the curves on the new road; let us all wish the company the fullest measure of success.

Mr. Thomas McClure is attending school at Franklin College. Mr. David Allen, of Allegheny City, was home on a visit last week. Master John A. Downing is learning the mercantile business with Bentley Colman; he stands "A No. 1;" has a good education, and cannot fail to prove useful to his employers. Mr. John and Jennie T. Dunning, but country, had in their family, now the votes the Republican ticket.

Mrs. Shannon, Mrs. Vanuren and her little sister, all of Flushing, were down to see their friends last week. Mr. Maguire and Edie Colman, who were married on Friday, after enjoying a pleasant visit to Butler station. Mr. Jas. A. McNary drives as fine a horse over the road as you will find in the State. Mr. Long, a respectable citizen here, and a well-to-do burglar paid his son, who resides here, a visit last week. Mr. Anthony Moore and wife started Tuesday on an extended visit to relatives in the Western Reserve. Mr. Julia Colman, who has been quite ill, but is now better. Mr. Loyd commenced school here last Monday. Mr. John S. Davis, commercial traveler for the house of Kraft, Bros. & Bonney, has been in the city in the effects of pneumonia, and is stopping with his cousin, Charles Colman; Mr. D. is an efficient business man, and a good citizen, who has been in high esteem by all who know him. In 1900, men, women and children, advertised for in THE CHRONICLE came along promptly to Bentley & Colman's store, and the crowd was great on one occasion that C. S. Price imagined that it was a "gal" day at Bruce, and decorated his office with nice flowers; he dropped the "a" in the after part of the day and enjoyed the occasion in a quiet way. II.
