The excitement and contest of the election being over, the time has now come when the discussion of other matters is in order. Chief among these, as far as the political affairs of this state is concerned, may be regarded the Speakership of the state House of Representatives. A number of gentlemen have been favorably mentioned in that connection, but none of them are from the Upper Peninsulia, or even from the orther part of the state. The Representatives from the Upper Peninsulia, or even from the Upper Peninsul Chippewa County News.

He possesses, to a great degree, those peculiar qualifications most necessary to the proper discharge of the duties of this important position: a quick and active mind, large executive ability, and a thorough knowledge of parliamentary law; while his judgement of men and measures, is most excellent, thus ensuring the most judicious organization of the House, and management of the important affairs coming before it.

There are many excellent reasons why the Speakership should this time come to the northern part of the state, and there are many more why, if it should come north, that it should come to the Upper Peninsula. It is a very large, important affairs coming before it. called into question.

come north, that it should come to the Upper Peninsula. It is a very large, important, and rapidly growing portion of the state—Republicans have had to fight the hardest to secure and maintain continued supremacy—in the distribution of the state offices since the organization of the state it has been almost ignored—the Speakership has never been north of the fifth tier of counties, and only once there—the Upper Peninsula has the proper man to fill the place.

These are some of the reasons why the Justice Clifford is also eligible to retire, but according to an old rumor he has indicated that he were ended, and requested the people to leave the church. Mr. Seymour is just in the prime of life, thorough, practical and enterprising business man, an indefatigable worker, the possessor of a legal as well as a collegiate education. He is a representative man of Northern Michigan, a man of sterling character, sound judgment, and one whose integrity has never been called into question.

A New York Herald letter says: One of the most remarkable traits of this peculiar people in Alaska is their aversion to salt, which they will not eat in any form. Charles A. Doyle is cutting a figure at St. Louis with a mermaid he claims to have bought in Japan, and he will have the academy of science pass upon its genuineness at its next meeting. The creature, which is almost three feet long, was captured by Japanese fishermen, and was kept at the Tokio museum for a year and a half before Doyle bought her for $5,000. The head, chest, abdomen and arms are unmistakably human, but from the abdomen down the creature is a scaly fish. The arms are covered with scales to the wrist, and the backs of the small hands have scaly covering to the finger tips. The head is small as that of a baby, but is perfect in every detail; the forehead does not recede, but is high and straight, and is of the class that indicates an unusual degree of intelligence. The eyes are soft and lightless as those of a fish; but the mouth, the ears, the nose and all the other features are said to be regular, clear cut and as perfect as a woman's face.
