

NORTHERN TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, MARCH 18, 1882.

Queen Victoria's Reign.

Queen Victoria's escape from death at the hands of the would-be assassin the other day naturally directs attention to the mature age which she has attained, and the unusual length of her reign. She was born on the 24th day of May, 1819, and has therefore nearly completed her 63d year. She has thus already attained an age exceeded by only eleven of the sovereigns of England, dating from the Norman conquest—namely Henry I, who lived to the age of 67; Henry III, who lived to be 65 years; Edward I, who lived to be 67 years; Edward III, who attained 65 years; Queen Elizabeth, who reached 69 years; James II, who lived 68 years; George I, 67 years; George II, 77 years; George III, her grandfather, who lingered in imbecility until he was 82; George IV, her uncle, who was 68 when he died, and William IV, another uncle, who reached 72 years. The queen ascended the throne on June 20, 1837, just after she had completed her eighteenth year. She has, therefore, now been on the throne 44 years, 8 months and 21 days. Queen Elizabeth ascended the throne on November 17, 1558, in her twenty-sixth year, and died on March 24, 1604, having reigned 44 years, 4 months and 7 days. The reign of Victoria, therefore, exceeds that of the Virgin Queen by something over four months, and has been exceeded by three of her predecessors only—Henry III, who reigned 55 years; Edward III, who reigned 50 years; and George III, who reigned for the long period of 60 years. Queen Victoria has, in fact, almost outlived by several years every bishop and every judge whom she found installed in England, Scotland and Ireland. She has witnessed the funeral of every premier who has served under her except Mr. Gladstone. Not a single cabinet minister of her uncle and predecessor's days survives; and of those who held inferior offices under her first and favorite Premier, Lord Melbourne, there can be found among the living only Viscount Halifax, then Mr. Charles Wood, and Lord Hewick, now Mr. Gray. Of the members of the privy council who sat in June, 1837, to administer to her the oaths, but two or three survive. She has received the homage of the Archbishops of Canterbury, of four Archbishops of York, and of five Bishops of Chichester, Litchfield and Durham successively. She has filled each of the three chief justiceships twice at least; she has received the addresses of four successive speakers of the house of commons; she has intrusted the great seal of the kingdom to no less than eleven different lord chancellors, and she has commissioned eight successive premiers to form no less than fourteen different administrations.

Completely Accommodated.

"You had better get rid of that stove-pipe hat; you'll be livelier without it," said a powerfully-built, red-faced young truck driver the other day as he nearly drove over a delicate-looking gentleman on Park Row. The pedestrian had to skip in a very undignified manner to escape.

"You want your neck wrong very badly," he said, as he gained the sidewalk and looked after the truck.

The driver heard him and pulled up his horse at once.

"Will you ring it?" he asked in gruff tones.

The gentleman took a few seconds to consider the question. Then he said:

"No, I'll leave that job for the hangman; but I'll flatten your nose, if that will suit you."

It appeared that the proposal suited the driver, for in thirty seconds he stood before his fragile-looking man.

"Now flatten my nose," he said defiantly.

It was done before the words were well out of his mouth, and as he lay on his back in the gutter the expression on his blood-bespattered countenance was that of mingled pain and amazement.

"What did you strike him for?" asked a policeman, hurrying up, and seizing the gentleman by the arm.

"Because he asked me to strike him, you know," was the reply, "and as he looked like an honest, good-natured young fellow, I didn't like to disoblige him."

The policeman looked at the truckman, who rose slowly, and without making any complaint mounted the seat of his wagon and drove off.

"Well," said the policeman, impressively, as he walked away, "there's no account in that."—N. Y. Sun.

A Gorgeous Bridal Chamber.

A gorgeous bridal chamber has just been completed for the reception of the bride who has never known the want of money, and by whom $1000 is spent with as little thought as many people would tender a 10-cent piece. The walls are covered with heavy white satin, tufted with gold buttons, and mirrors are interjected here and there. The ceiling is painted in the most artistic manner and the curtains are of white silk embroidered in gold and rich colorings in floral designs. The curtains are mounted on gilt poles, and, when drawn back, disclose lace-drop curtains that cost $600 a window. The portiers are of white silk plush, with dado embroidery matching the curtains. The furniture is treated with the same material as the curtains, and what little of the framework is seen is found to be heavily gilded.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Clergymen, lawyers, physicians, farmers, merchants, business men, gentlemen of leisure, and their women folk and children, all use Brown's Iron Bitters. It keeps them well.

Consumption.

Thousands who had long suffered from weak lungs, short breath, asthma, and consumption, have found relief in Brown's Iron Bitters, a true tonic.

Some Things Money Can't Buy.

Some boys and girls have an idea that money can do almost anything, but this is a mistake. Money, it is true, can do a great deal, but it can't do every thing. I could name you a thousand things it cannot buy. It was meant for good, and it is a good thing to have, but all this depends on how it is used. If used wrongly, it is an injury rather than a benefit. Beyond all doubt, however, there are many things better than it is, and which it cannot purchase, no matter how much we may have of it.

If a man has not a good education, all his money can not buy it for him. He can scarcely ever make up for his early waste of opportunities. He may say, as I have heard men say: "I would give all I have if I only had a good education and a well-trained mind;" but he will say it in vain. His money alone cannot obtain it.

Neither will wealth itself give a man or a woman good manners. Nothing, next to good health, is of more importance than easy, graceful, self-possessed manners. But they can't be had for mere money.

A man who is what is called "shoddy," who has no taste and correct manners, will never buy them, though he would, no doubt, like them. They are not to be had in the market. They are nowhere for sale. You might as well try to buy the sky, or clouds, or sunbeams.

Money can't purchase a good conscience. If a poor man, or a boy, or a girl—any one—has a clear conscience, that gives off a tone like a sound bell when touched with the hammer, then be sure he is vastly richer than the millionaire who does not possess such a conscience. Good principles are better than gold. All the gold of Golconda couldn't buy them for a man who hasn't them already.—Christian Union.

Whipping Children.

A parent who don't know how to govern a child without whipping it ought to surrender the care of that child to some wiser person. Sportsmen once thought it was necessary to lash their dogs, in training them for the field. They know now that the whip should never be used. Horsemen once thought that it was necessary to whip colts to teach them to start on the spot at the word and pull steadily. They know that an apple is better than the lash, and a caress better than a blow. If dogs and horses can be thus educated without punishment, what is there in our children which makes it necessary to slap and pound them? Have they less intelligence? Have they colder hearts? Are they lower than the scale of being?

We have heard many old people say: "If we were to bring up another child we should never whip it." They are wise, a little too late. Instead of God doing so little for children that they must be whipped to goodness, He has done so much for them that even a whipping can't ruin them—is, as a rule. But, alas, there are many exceptions to this rule. Many children are of such quality that a blow makes them cowardly, or reckless, or deceitful, or permanently ugly. Whipping makes children lie. Whipping makes them hate their parents. Whipping makes home distasteful. Whipping makes the boys run away, makes the girls seek happiness anywhere and anyhow. Whipping is barbarous. Don't whip.

First Loves.

A long story in one of the papers is headed, "Her First Love." We have no time to read long stories, but if it was really and truly her first love it is safe to say he got away. It takes a practiced hand to know just when to reel in, pay out more line, and "play" him till he landed and put in the basket. It can't be done by a girl with her first love, because of the excitement when she feels there is one nibbling, causing her to shut both eyes, pull for dear life and throw him fifteen feet into the air, when the hook drops out of his mouth, he falls "slap" into the water and sends under some old root. The desert of life is strewn all over with the bleaching bones of first loves, who have had their jaws torn off so they could not masticate their food.—Peck's Sun.

Poor Indeed.

Thousands of girls are never taught to work, and their condition is most pitiable. They have been taught to despise labor and to depend upon others for a living, and are perfectly helpless. If misfortune comes upon their friends, as it often does, their case is hopeless. The most forlorn and miserable women upon earth belong to this class. Every daughter should be taught to earn her own living. The rich as well as the poor require this training. The wheel of fortune turns swiftly around—the rich are very likely to become poor and the poor rich. Skill to labor is no disadvantage to the rich, and is indispensable to the poor. Well-to-do parents must educate their children to work. No reform is more imperatively needed than this.

Wicked for Clergymen.

"I believe it to be all wrong and even wicked for clergymen of other public men to be led into giving testimonials to quack doctors or vile stuffs called medicines, but when a really meritorious article, made of valuable remedies known to all, that all physicians use and trust in daily, we should freely commend it. I therefore cheerfully and heartily commend Hop Bitters for the good they have done me and my friends, firmly believing they have no equal for family use. I will not be without them. REV. WASHINGTON, D. C. mar11-2t.

Mother Died of Salt Rheum.

J. W. Adams, Newark, Ohio, says: "Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case Salt Rheum in this country. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Remedies. Mar
