NORTHERN TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1883.

THE CITY.

Luke Forbes of Ypsilanti, was in town this week.

The Grand Central hotel has again put on the Free Buss.

H. W. Bradley of Romeo, spent four days in town this week.

Capt. Kirtland had to go to the relief of a vessel upon his arrival at Milwaukee.

There is talk of hauling the Van-Raalte out of water and making her 20 feet longer.

The Schooners Spry and Danforth which left here Dec. 5th for Chicago arrived Tuesday all right.

The telegraph office will be closed hereafter for the night at 8 P. M. Customers will govern themselves accordingly.

Rev. A. W. Westgate will preach two good sermons to-morrow at the Baptist church, one in the morning and one in the evening.

A small boy while skating on the straits broke through the ice and had a narrow escape from drowning, we will not mention his name this time.

The Cheboygan Lumber Co. are going to erect an iron sawdust and slab burner this winter such as used in Alpena and other places, will cost about $4000.

E. Nelson left Monday afternoon for Chicago, where he intends spending a few weeks. He contemplates spending a portion of the winter at Hot Springs.

Ed. Casey is one of the clever young men of Cheboygan. He is Mr. John Goulden's manager. He is every way qualified to be such. He has many friends, and he deserves them.

The Michigan Central railroad company has erected a fence on the west side of the track from Court street running to near the engine house, to protect the road from snow drifts.

Amelia Dranville a young lady of excellent character, and many friends, died on Monday night, and although ailing for some time her demise was sudden and unexpected, no one being present at the time but her sister.

Mr. E. A. Faunce, of Tuscarora, made us a pleasant call and reported all things prosperous in the Ohio settlement. Conveniences, comforts, and profits that come from intelligent, industrious farming, already appear among this people. Those who hail from the Western Reserve know enough to know.

Dan. McLeod and Frank Osier have changed places. Frank is now proprietor of the Benton house. This hotel has been among the favorite places of resort in this city. Its new host is well and popularly known. Frank has friends, is an experienced hand at the business, and the Benton house cannot but thrive under his management.

A citizen told us he had in view of a hard winter got a dog to bring in meat from the neighbor's back yards. The dog had been trained beautifully. He was sent out the other day and came home from a butcher shop with 18 inches of good bologna in fine condition. We told him that it was a whopper, meaning it was a big thing for a dog to trust his carcass to a butcher shop, much less to steal bologna, but the man looked hurt, and we said no more, but give it for what it is worth—a dog gone story.

In Cheboygan we have no Jumbo, although some one may have an elephant on his hands, but we can boast of the biggest little thing in horse flesh. Chas. R. Smith enjoys life, and believes in all around him doing the same. He has received by express, for his son Master George, a shetland pony, from Beloit, Wisconsin. It came in a crate similar to those in which large sized strawberries are shipped, and weighs just 250 lbs. He has a record, too, look out for him.

A high churchman stood by the side of the counter on which one dozen bright tacks stood on their heads looking heavenward three quarters of an inch. The fellow thought he would take it easy and placing his left hand on the counter, he cleared counter and came down solid received 12 points. Instantly the man leaped and vehemently exclaimed "Good Lord, pull them out of my breeches." His prayer was answered, but he showed enough excitement to belong to the Salvation Army, but he doesn't, he is a standidate for collector of the rear tax.

Wm. McArthur is in Chicago on business.

Some don't need taffy to catch flies, they are too much blown already.

Miss Maud Sammons starts for Black River to-day, "to teach the young idea how to shoot."

Prof. Sutherland takes an interest in all matters that tend to refinement and culture. The Beayer Club, thanks to his and W. L. Barr's endeavors, has its place in the social pleasures of our city.

Alex. Chisolm, who left here some months since for Canada, has returned with a bride. His friends on Wednesday night stormed the American house in his honor, and the dance and music were the order for five or six hours. All went merrily and all were pleased.

Wednesday night, Dec. 6th, Sheriff of Manistique County, with prisoners enroute for Ionia, took a sleeper at Mackinaw City for Reed City, officer and prisoner taking separate berths. The prisoner opened the window and escaped during the night. Cheboygan officers never lose their man.

The grand double holiday number of "The Housekeeper," with new Illustrated premium list, will be sent free to any address. New and beautiful premiums for ladies, and good ones for boys and girls. Special prizes in gold to largest clubs. Fifty cents a year in clubs. Write to Buckeye Publishing Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

Frank Howard was arrested here a few weeks ago by Marshal Lynn, taken to Saginaw by the marshal of that city, to answer the charge of robery. It now turns out that he was one of three who hung up a citizen last November in his hotel room and robbed him of $148. They did this to repress any alarm. The man luckily escaped with his life, as an officer saw him through the window of the hotel from the street. The three are now in the clutches of the law. They deserve punishment even more than the law allows.

W. H. Daniels and wife start Monday for Des Moines, Iowa, their future home, where Mr Daniels will manage the business of the Union Central Life Insurance Company, as General Agent for the state. For three years Mr. Daniels has done business in Cheboygan, and is well known by our citizens. He has different politics from the TRIBUNE, but we want to say most emphatically that for integrity, justice, fair-dealing and uprightness of character, W. H. Daniels has no superior. We are sorry to loose him. We wish him and his excellent wife abundant success, and are confident that our loss will largely contribute to the success of Des Moines. Mr Daniels is a gentleman always, of the first water.

There is in the TRIBUNE office a bible bearing the imprint, "Basileae, ex officina Brylingeriana, Anno. 1578. The print is clear, the paper fine; the binding is of hog leather, outside of beech sidings. On the outside of the cover, legibly impressed, is the likeness of Martin Luther. It is one, at least, of the few copies in this part of the country, and is the property of Dan P. McMullen, the job printer of this office. The difference in the lettering is the like f, the v for u, & for and; all else can be read as to-day. It has some marginal references but no foot notes. It is made to last forever. It is worth seeing, as betokening among other things, how very same "old roman" continues amongst the variety of type in our day.

To a believing lawyer, a professional blackguard said: "What are the proverbs, anyhow? Any fool could write such stuff." "Make a few of them," said the lawyer. "Oh!" said the fool, "any ass could write such slobber." "So I see, but Balaam's talked sense, is that the best you can do on proverbs." "No it ain't, you lying sardine, I'm a wit, I am, the cutest, smartest feller in Podunk. I'm red hot, too. I am. I'll stir blue blazes next week, and if any feller don't believe me the greatest, cutest feller in the world, and support me as such, I'll tell all I know about his private drunks, and private buggy rides, and bring him to time, so I will, for I'm so witty and cute, no feller dass'nt tech me, you can bet your boots on that, and don't you forget it. Do you hear me, I say, blatherskite, eh?" "Yes!! Your originality is unique, your faith in yourself is perfect, your diction true to its source, your spirit altogether like its own, but with all deference to your self conceited importance, allow me to suggest that you would make a first-class witness on the other side. Nothing can be without merit that you condemn, for the opposition of ignorance, vulgarity and cowardice is trust praise."

Oddfellows' ball will be a colossal success.

Winter is here but will make an as signment before long.

The Martel furnace closed at St Ignace—don't pay to run her,

The tug Mystic came to take the beer that was left here to the Soo.

Wheeler takes an invoice and finds he has made money and is all right.

The Tug Bennett, reported ashore near Lexington,—the tug Balize has gone for her.

"And the grasshopper shall be a burden," may mean that he is a plague of a fellow.

The Cheboygan literary society has over seventy members, and is full of growth.

Some don't have to advertise for "nothing," they are swamped with that article already.

If you get sea sick, "cast thy bread upon the waters," even if you don't "find it after many days."

The tax roll of the township of Benton is the subject of much talk, the township is the looser.

John F. Moloney has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. John M. Dowling, assignee.

Hard times are viewed with hopefulness ahead. It is thought after the holidays things will brighten up.

The great Vanderbilt ball was in full dress, hence was not picturesque as the one last year with its fancy costume.

On Tuesday of last week, Elliot S. Carter who settled in Cheboygan county twenty-five years ago, died at St Ignace, of paralysis.

In all probability New Year will be here and it will be a good time to help the Band boys; They are-deserving of all they get and more too.

Look out for the advertisement of the assignee's sale of the effects of the Spencer house. For particulars apply to John M. Dowling, assignee.

Mrs. C. W. Farr, of Cheboygan, is the welcome guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. Dorril. Though Farr from home she is hospitably entertained, and it is hoped she may pass the winter here.—Jackson Saturday Evening Star.—Mrs. Farr is now at Indianapolis, having a delightful visit.

A 10-year-old boy came on the train last night, a card pinned on his back reading as follows: "Frank L. Baron, en route to Cheboygan, Mich., L. S. & M. S. to Jackson—M. C. Jackson to Cheboygan. At Cheboygan in care of Patrick O'Grady," etc. The boy is at the Tremont house, where his friends will please call for him.

The entertainment at the Methodist church last Thursday night was quite an affair. The programme was in recitations, music, and song. Miss Hamilton rendered the New Organ, it was well done, too. Its drollery bringing out deserved laughter. Mrs. Thayer recited "The Church Roll" with grace and spirit. The Misses Hamilton gave us a duet on the piano in a clever spirit. Miss Pad-dock was a star. During the evening she sang three ballads in her usual brilliant way. Barrie Thayer, this charming little girl in "Bo Peep" was a very sprite, and her melody floated down through the aisles as from another land. Miss Nellie Melville is an excellent pianist, and in the variations of "Old Hundred," there could be nothing better. Geo. A. Melville in "Alone in the Desert," surprised all; his singing is another addition to the gentleman of vocal talent in our city.

The Cheboygan Literary society met in the Odd Fellows' new hall in the Backus block at their regular meeting last Thursday night. There was quite an attendance of ladies and gentlemen, many of our most prominent young people being present. The President, Rev. Father DeSmidt, made a short extempore address, in thanking the Society for the honor bestowed on him. He received that trust from the representatives of all kinds of belief, and while distrustful of his own ability, he would have to lean on the indulgence of the society for any short comings. He especially referred to Geo. E. Frost, our worthy Village President, as in every way capable in aiding him in the solution of such things as might arise, demanding discretion. The address was in fine taste, with a fine train of thought at the bottom. Then the Vice President made a talk to those present, giving earnest of his abiding confidence in the different designs of the association. The Secretary Mrs. F. C. McDonald, thanked the association for the honor conferred on her. The society is fairly launched, and with a programme for next Thursday night its real work will date from that time. The members of the society it is presumed, will fulfill all the expectation of its enthusiastic founders.
