CHRONIC MALARIA.

A Very Prevalent Disease Following the Hot Summer of 1895. The continuance of hot and dry weather is sure to produce the prevalence of chronic malaria. The past summer has been exactly suitable for the production of a great deal of malaria. Even in localities where malaria has been previously unknown many cases of malaria are developed. This form of malaria is distinguished from the old fashioned fever and ague by the insidiousness of its attack and the difficulty with which it is cured. It does not come on quickly, like chills and fever. The symptoms pester and provoke sometimes for several weeks before the patient is made sick enough to take medicine.

Slight, chilly sensations, cold, sweaty spells, frontal headache, biliousness, furred tongue, bad taste in the mouth, sticky mucous in the throat, constipation, jaundice, etc.

A medical treatise on chronic malaria will be sent free by The Peru-na Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio. This book is a complete guide to the prevention and cure of malaria in its various forms. Peru-na has long since been recognized as the only infallible cure for the chronic form of malaria. While quinine has become the standard remedy for acute malaria, commonly called fever and ague, many people have found by bitter experience that it will not cure the chronic form. Peru-na cures these cases promptly and permanently.

At the Opera House.

Chas. A. Gardner, the sweet singer, will give his new play entitled "The Prize Winner," at the opera house in this city next Tuesday evening. We have heard Mr. Gardner, and also the celebrated Sr. and Jr. Emmetts, and while not posing as an infallible judge of such matters, we do not hesitate to say that Mr. Gardner out ranks either in his German songs

Obituary.

Nina Pearl, little daughter of H. J. and Mary Rexroad, died October 7, aged 15 months, and was buried October 8 at the Dunkard cemetery. Funeral services by Rev. Armstrong. Little Nina was sick only 10 days with dysentery and brain fever. She suffered severely from the beginning of her sickness, but bore it very patiently and passed away without a struggle. Her bedside was surrounded with friends and relatives, for none knew her but to love her.

From the world to the beautiful above, Earth's weary march forever is o'er; The angel's sweet call echoed over the tide, She folded her tent for the other side, And steadily passed through the open gate, Where lovingly, watchfully she will wait To welcome the dear ones, as one by one They too strike their tents when life's battle is done.

WM. MANGOLD & SON.

The unique symposium by representative women on life's social problem now appearing in The Arena is attracting well-deserved attention. In the October number of this review, Julia A. Kellogg writes on "Land and Money," Charlotte Perkins Stetson on "The Solution of the Labor Question," and Alice Thatcher Post on "The Great Neighbor."

Rudyard Kipling makes his last appearance as a teller of Jungle Stories in The Cosmopolitan for October. "Mowgli Leaves the Jungle Forever," and the curtain is drawn over one of the most charming conceits in literature. In the same number in which Mowgli makes his final adieu, appears for the first time before an American audience, the now famous Richard Le Gallienne in a plea for religion under the title of "The Greatness of Man." A very important paper on "State Universities" is contributed to this number by Professor Ely. And among the story-tellers are Hopkinson Smith and Boyesen. No more beautiful work has ever appeared in any magazine than the marvelous illustrations of Gabriety used as frontispieces and accompanying the prose poem by Mrs. Carfax. Drake—who is said to be Kipling's favorite artist for his Jungle Stories—Carter Beard, Osterlind, Denman, and Kemble, are among those who contribute a wealth of illustration to this number. The Cosmopolitan announces that it will begin the publication in January of The Agriculturist's Illustrated Magazine, to be fully the equal of The Cosmopolitan, but containing from sixteen to twenty pages by the ablest agricultural writers of the world, upon subjects of more importance to the agriculturist, horticulturist, and stock-growing interests.
