

GODARD ON NEW LIQUOR LAW.

Attorney General Says Men Will Swear Falsely to Convict Enemies and Perjure Themselves to Protect Friends.

A. A. Godard, attorney general of Kansas, is not in sympathy with the law passed at the last session of the Kansas legislature giving county attorneys the right to subpoena witnesses in liquor cases and compel them to testify. Mr. Godard has admitted it for the first time. In connection with the admission he remarked that he had never discussed the matter before for "various reasons." The various reasons are contained in the fact that Mr. Godard is a good republican and a prohibitionist, and it was a republican legislature which passed the law presumably in the interests of prohibition. "It's a question if the law doesn't result in perjury," said Mr. Godard, "and I look on perjury as greater crime than violation of the prohibitory law. If a county attorney subpoenas a man who is a friend of a liquor dealer and compels him to give testimony there is danger of that man perjuring himself to save his friend. And on the other hand the law creates the opportunity for enemies of persons accused of selling liquor securing their conviction by perjury. Altogether I don't believe it a very good measure."

"Do you feel that the prohibitory law is being satisfactorily enforced in Kansas?" Mr. Godard was asked.

"Yes," he replied, "except in localities where local sentiment is against. The law gives me power to appoint assistant county attorneys to look after the enforcement of the liquor law, but so far I have appointed but one. He is Judge Redden, of Topeka. I don't believe other appointments are necessary, because the people of other counties have not asked for them."

Grand Army Social.

In order to do honor to Mrs. Jennie Walker, the newly installed department president of the Woman's Relief Corps, the local organizations of the Woman's Relief Corps, Grand Army and Sons of Veterans arranged to hold a social in Memorial hall on Saturday, June 29. Invitations were sent out to the neighboring posts and corps to meet with them. At two o'clock the hall began filling up and soon it was crowded beyond the seating capacity. The program began by the singing of "America" by the audience. Commander Filer, in his best form, announced the object of the assembly in a short address. Talks were made by Mrs. Bray, Comrade Butt, Mrs. Hartstine, Mrs. Fleming and others. Mrs. Walker was then called on and gave a sketch of the history of the order she leads in Kansas. Rev. J. Ed Stevens delivered the principal address in his usual happy style. Dr. Farrow, representing the confederate army, was invited to come as the guest of all. His speech was one that will long dwell in the memory of the old boys, as it was replete with sentiment that struck them where they live; it was a eulogy to "old glory." After he had finished his speech and sat down, he was informed that agreeable to a plan agreed upon by the members of the post, it was then necessary that he be presented with an old army musket, such as he had faced in the dark days of '61-'65. Dr. Farrow accepted it in the same spirit in which it was offered, and dedicated it to the service of the flag. Light refreshments followed. Kanorady was well represented and I am sorry I cannot give the names of our visitors. Some of them assisted us with good talks.

In Memoriam.

George Franklin Clark was born September 1, 1855, in Henrick county, Ind. He was married to Rachel A. Moss February 5, 1876. He removed to Iowa in 1878 and came to Kansas in 1886. He died June 13, 1901. The cause of death was catarrh of the throat. He was the father of nine children, three sons and six daughters, one son and two daughters dead. He leaves a widow, four daughters and two sons. The family express their thanks for the kindness of their friends during their hour of sorrow.

The Weather.

The weather has been frightfully hot this week, the thermometer reaching 108 Wednesday, while the Fourth nearly equaled the record of Wednesday. No more than a light sprinkle of rain has fallen during the week and no immediate showers can be looked for to afford relief from the heat.

Sealed Proposals.

The board of county commissioners will receive sealed bids to be filed with the county clerk on or before October 1, 1901, for the painting of the court house both inside and outside. Board reserves right to reject any and all bids. A. D. RUMMEL, County Clerk.

BILL REEDER IS CONFIDENT.

Says Cheap Skates in Sixth District Can't Beat Him—Says He Redeemed the District from Populist Rule.

"Colonel" Bill Reeder, who was elected to represent the Sixth Kansas district in congress, was in Topeka several days last week whispering with the powers about his chances for renomination, says a special to the Kansas City Times from Topeka. There are 11 other republican candidates for the position, but Reeder says most of them are "cheap skates," and will give him no trouble whatever.

"I will be renominated after a short scrap," Mr. Reeder said. "Ed Wellington has a notion that he is built of congressional timber, and it likely will take two or three ballots to show him his error. Several cheap skates who imagine they are in this fight will drop out when they hear the result of the first ballot. 'Twas I who redeemed the district from populist rule, and the job in congress is mine by right of conquest. Will I give it up just as I am getting onto it in good shape. Not on your shirt waist. I'm going to show Henry Allen and some other political buds in this state that Bill Reeder is not so slow."

Reeder has never forgiven Allen for circulating a story about him when he first went to Washington. Reeder being a stranger, Joe Bristow started with him on a trip through the departments. Upon being introduced to Charles Emery Smith, Bristow's boss, Mr. Reeder said: "Glad to make your acquaintance, Mr. Smith. Let's see, what position do you hold here?" Reeder fired similar questions to Russell A. Alger and other cabinet officers, and Bristow, growing weary, finally declared the trip off. Bristow told Allen about it, and Allen told the reporters. Reeder hopes to have Allen's scalp dangling at his belt some day.

TOLD IN A LINE.

The county commissioners were in session this week.

A picnic was held at Swan Nelson's grove last Sunday.

The big six-inch well at the waterworks gave out Sunday and since that time the other wells have been worked almost night and day. The trouble was caused by the well not being bored straight, the pump rods wearing a hole in the pipes. It is thought a new well will have to be put down.

Frank Jarrell, of the Kansas City Times, is responsible for this one: "An old negro in a Kansas town, arose in a meeting and said: 'Bredrin' and sister! I've been a mighty nigger nigger in my time. I had a heap o' ups and downs—specially downs—since I joined de church. I stole chickens and watermelons; I cussed, I got drunk. I shot craps. I slashed udder coons wid my razor, and done a sight er odder mean things, but thank de Lawd, bredrin' and sisterin' I never yet lost my religion."

Prof. J. A. Gwin left Monday night for Haddam, Kan., where he will visit a short time with his parents, as he has not as yet definitely decided where he will teach the coming school year. During his principalship of the Goodland school Prof. Gwin made many friends and showed himself to be well up in school work. The fortnightly club, in which Prof. Gwin was a leading spirit, entertained in his honor last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Millsack.

Most everyone has heard of O'Grady's goat, but few know that the poor goat is no more. His tragic death is described in an Oklahoma paper as follows: Mrs. O'Grady, the wife of Mike O'Grady, the policeman who died a short time ago, lost her fine goat last week. Mrs. O'Grady had been down to town and bought ten cents of yeast cakes. As it was raining she took her umbrella with her. She laid the yeast down on a box by the back door by the side of the umbrella and was talking to Mrs. Conner over the back yard fence. While they were talking the goat came up and ate the yeast and then ate the umbrella. The yeast raised the umbrella inside of the goat and he died in great agony.

Assistant State Superintendent Little was in Goodland last Thursday and addressed the students of the normal. He left for St. Francis the same day to visit the normal institute there and returned Friday evening, taking the evening train for Topeka. Prof. Jones, who has been one of the instructors in the normal here, also left on the same train for his home in Topeka, where he is instructor in vocal music in the public schools. Mr. Jones' work in the normal was highly satisfactory and both the students and the other instructors speak highly of his work.

A SHORT SESSION.

The District Court Clears Up the Docket in Less Than Two Days—Hardman Case Continued.

The July term of the district court convened in the courtroom Monday at one o'clock, Judge Smith not arriving until nearly noon. Only 15 cases were on the docket and they were quickly disposed of, court adjourning Tuesday evening.

The Hardman grand larceny case was continued to the November term, attorneys on both sides agreeing to the continuance. Hardman's bond was fixed at $500, J. M. Hardman, the prisoner's father, J. P. Cullen and Ida M. Harvi signing as sureties. The bond was approved by Judge Smith.

The replevin case of Swan Nelson vs. Mike Proneski was given a jury trial. Proneski held Nelson's cattle for damage to his crops, and Nelson replevined them. Proneski was made a tenant of $15 for damages incurred but refused to accept. Nearly all day Tuesday was occupied in trying the case, the jury returning a verdict in favor of the plaintiff. As a result Proneski will receive no damages and has the costs assessed against him also. Nelson gave bond for costs, and should they not be collected from Proneski, Nelson will be forced to pay them.

Arrested for Perjury.

Riley Sawyer and wife, "Doc" Sawyer and Emma Witman, from near Jaqua, in Colorado, were arrested by a deputy United States marshal last Thursday, charged with false swearing in a land contest case and arraigned before C. F. Hendrie, commissioner of the United States district court at Wray, Col., on Friday. The evidence against them was sufficient to satisfy Mr. Hendrie that there was probable cause of action and they were all bound over to appear for trial in the United States district court at Denver.—St. Francis Eagle.

The Sawyer brothers are the ones who slugged Eric Owen, of Goodland, at St. Francis last August, breaking his jaw and badly beating him, because he had contested their claim, the same case in which they are now arrested for perjury. They are said to be responsible for burning Owens' barn and tearing down his house while he was absent.

Another Telephone Man Here.

George W. Willis, of Lawrence, Kan., representing the Independent Telephone and Construction company, of Kansas City, was in Goodland this week looking over the field with a view of putting in a telephone system here. Mr. Willis offers two per cent of gross receipts and a free phone to the city for a franchise, and will put in a system if he can secure 50 subscribers. The company will furnish phones for business houses at $1.50 per month and residence phones for $1, using the central system. Mr. Willis offers by far the best proposition that has as yet been submitted and should certainly be given every encouragement to put in a telephone exchange, which has long been needed in Goodland.

Prof. Jones' Lecture.

Prof. Jones, conductor of the normal institute, delivered a lecture at the Christian church last Thursday night. His subject was "The Victory of Defeat." The speaker began with an illustration from the life of Jesus, of the success of apparent failure. He explained his conception of the terms success, failure, victory and defeat. Success and victory may be seeming not real; they are so when, ultimately, good is not reached through them. On the other hand, failure and defeat may seem to be the outcome of an undertaking, when in fact victory and success are the result. It is so when the outcome, however discouraging it may look for the time, brings about more good than any other possible outcome. The facts of history, sacred and profane, furnish abundant evidence of this principle.

The lecture was carefully written and clearly read. The style was good and well suited to the subject. There was considerable humor in the lecture skillfully interwoven with the more serious discourse.

A Kiss Defined.

Cyrano: A kiss! When all is said, what is a kiss? An oath of allegiance taken in closer proximity, a promise more precise, a seal on a confession, a rose-red dot on the letter "i" in loving; a secret which elects the mouth for ear; an instant of eternity murmuring like a bee; balmy communion with flavor of flowers; a fashion of inhaling each other's heart, and of tasting, on the brink of the lips, each other's soul.—Cyrano de Bergerac.

The smile was nothing unusual, but the shirt waist was a glaring innovation.

THE FOURTH AT GOODLAND.

The Celebration Afforded Ample Amusement for the Varied Likes of Those Attending.

The Fourth of July at Goodland this year was certainly observed in a manner well befitting the day. From sun up till after midnight there was a continuous round of entertainment for both the patriotic worshipper and the merry reveller. The day was ushered in by a national salute at sunrise, which was then taken up by the small boy with the cannon cracker, who furnished a continual roar of exploding powder the remainder of the day.

At ten o'clock the calithumpian parade was started, led by the Goodland band and followed by a myriad of maskers and boys with the inevitable tin horn. After the parade the band gave a short concert and then played the old soldiers from the G. A. R. hall to the opera house where Rev. J. Ed Stevens delivered the oration of the day, following a selection of national airs by the band. Rev. Stevens spoke in part as follows:

This is the anniversary of our nation's birthday. As families celebrate the anniversary of the birth of their several members so we celebrate this our nation's natal day. The speaker referred to the discovery of America by Columbus, and dwelt upon the hardships and cost incident to the settlement of the American wilderness. He spoke of the character of the early settlers of America as brave and adventurous spirits, jealous of their rights and schooled in the theory and practice of self government.

He spoke of the difficulties between the colonies and the mother country which led up to the revolutionary war. The conflict culminated, he said, in the declaration of independence, that immortal document which is the sheet anchor of our liberties. In the formation of our national government by the adoption of the constitution the seeds of evil had been unfortunately sown in the prior introduction of human slavery into the colonies which constituted the thirteen original states of our union.

This was a mistake, unfortunate indeed, but practically unavoidable at the time, a mistake that in after years cost this nation the sacrifice of hundreds of thousands of the lives of its citizens and billions of national treasure. But with that matter settled by the stern arbitration of war, and the union of the states preserved, we have prospered as no other nation has prospered.

He spoke of the high degree of intelligence of the American people, of the high inventive capacity of our citizens and the general education of the masses as the force that not only leads to our prominence among the nations but tends to perpetuate our institutions and preserve our liberties.

He remarked upon the hardships endured by the pioneers and settlers on these western plains, their energy, enterprise and persistency displayed in their conflict with obstacles incident to the settlement of a new country and climatic drawbacks in the development of the country. Hence, the soldier from the western plains has distinguished himself on the nation's battle fields, as a type, sui generis, through discipline received in the stern conflict with the forces of nature. The speech was well received.

Athletic sports and amusements took place on main street from 11 till 12 o'clock.

The ball game between Ruleton and Goodland was called at 3:30. Ruleton seemed to have a safe lead up to the ninth inning, when Goodland batted out six runs in their half and won the game. Following is the score:
