RELICS AND RARITIES.

The birch rod used by the first teacher in a Vermont school-house over one hundred years ago is said to be nailed over the present teacher's desk. Two Ocala, Fla., ladies are the happy possessors of pieces of one of the court dresses worn by Queen Isabella, wife of Edward III, who reigned over England in the thirteenth century. An autograph letter of Henry, of Navarre, was sold for $100 the other day in Paris. It was addressed to Gabriel d'Estrees, and closed with: "I kiss you one hundred thousand times." An engraved copy of the declaration of independence in vellum has been found in the New York City library. It is in folio form, and is attested by Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, then the only surviving signer of the original document. LAFAVETTE, N. Y., has an old-fashioned clock made in Germany more than 200 years ago, which still keeps good time. It was made entirely by hand, and the mechanism, reaching from floor to ceiling, is held together by wooden pins. A Hindu god is reported to be in London. His throne was at Delhi, and to it female pilgrims flocked from more than a thousand miles. It ceased to be an object of worship about the year 1193. The divinity is of gold, incrustated with precious stones and is set round with priceless gems called the "nine charms." The late King Alfonso XIII, of Spain, gave to his cousin Mercedes, when betrothed to her, a ring which has brought death to each successive wearer of it. Five members of Spain's royal family wore it, and each one died shortly after placing it on the hand. The ring now hangs from a statue of the maid of Almodera in Madrid. The Pilgrim Society of Plymouth, Mass., has received a shoe found in the foundation of an old chimney recently torn down on Isaac Bartlett's estate at Manomet. The chimney was erected in 1780 on the site of one much older. The shoe has a pointed toe, and rather resembles a Dutch foot covering. The house was occupied by the ancestors of Sidney Bartlett, the oldest member of the Suffolk County, Mass., bar. In the collection of engravings of the late Major Ben. Perley Poore, recently sold at auction in Boston, were two rare prints of special interest to collectors. They were portraits of George and Martha Washington, and their value lay in the fact that they were the first portraits of the Washingtons ever executed by a professional engraver in America. The work was done by J. Norman, and printed in Boston in 1782. It is thought that there is but one other copy of the George Washington in existence, and no other of the Martha Washington. The prints fetched $500, and were bought by a Boston man.

His champion buckwheat-cake eater, H. H. Bissell, an employe of the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio railroad, resides in Youngstown, O. Last week, on a bet of twenty dollars with Charles Near, a miller, he ate sixty-three cakes, none being less than five inches in diameter. Near threw up the contest after eating fifty-eight, and Bissell secured the money and championship.

THE RESULT OF RESEARCH.

An Ohio girl claims to have invented a process by which a barrel of oil can be converted into ten thousand feet of gas. It has been stated that the reason why oil calms the waves during a storm is that it acts as a lubricant between the air and the water, preventing the wind from taking a hold upon the water, and by the great cohesion of its particles preventing also the breaking of the waves. It has been demonstrated that in piping natural gas in pipes of one size, considerable of the pressure is lost, about eight pounds per mile; but by using the telescopic system, smaller pipes at the well and gradually increasing the sizes toward the point of consumption, that the loss of pressure is reduced to about three pounds per mile. This extraction of fluid in what is called the "wet way" seems to promise to supersede the amalgamation process. The ore is treated with chlorine gas, the soluble chlorides extracted with water, and the gas precipitated from the solution so obtained, either by filtering through a bed of powdered wood charcoal, or by heating to boiling with a small quantity of the charcoal.

INFORMATION IN BRIEF.

JOHN CHESMAN'S great holiday, corresponding to the American Christmas, falls on December 31. A GREAT deal of the English Holly in the market, called "the syncope peeps" go into caskets at the season of the year, is really grown in New Jersey swamps. SLOTT is the new word which looks like slang, but is not. Slooties, according to the Toronto Globe, are persons interested in introducing manual training in the public schools. JOURNALISTIC JOTTINGS.

It is said that a secret treaty has been concluded between Japan and Russia against England. A TABLET in memory of Henry Ward Beecher is to be placed in the wall of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn. A WASHINGTON paper says that a dollar of conscription money has been received at the Treasury office. THE Sea-Coast Fishing and Shooting Club is the name of an organization in Tennessee which meets once a week to play checkers. A ULYSSES (Nob.) man has built the "largest cork-crib on earth." It is 400 feet long, 12 feet wide and 12 feet high, and holds 25,000 bushels. It is getting to be the fashion in New York to salt tenement houses with free tenants for the purpose of selling them. The sale being effected, the tenants move out. It is thought by experts that the next census, taken June 1, 1900, will show a population in the United States of 64,000,000—an increase of 14,000,000 over that of 1880. A TOURIST fell into a Yellowstone Park geyser the other day and was carried some distance below the surface of the earth. An instant later he was hurled up fully twenty-five feet above the ground. It is proposed to make a new county for Connecticut from the Sixth and Twentieth Senatorial districts. The named suggested is "Waterbury" County, and it would include sixteen towns, with an aggregate wealth of $23,485,000. The Scientific American says the great oil fields of New York and Pennsylvania are rapidly becoming exhausted. The supply has fallen from 100,000 to 43,000 barrels per day. Search is being made for new fields. A RESIDENT of Detroit, Mich., recently purchased a real good-looking woman, Venecio, paying $480 for it. The freight bill exceeds the original cost of the boat. It will accommodate twenty persons, and will float on the Detroit river next season. The postmaster of New York says that if the rates paid by the government for carrying the mails on the Lakes and on the country were reduced in the same proportion as the companies have reduced freight rates to private parties, a one-cent rate for letters could be immediately inaugurated without increasing the present post-office deficit. There is only one woman in the United States who is entitled to the precedence to States who is the wife of the floor of the Senate. This is the wife of Senator John H. Reagan, of Texas, who has been appointed private secretary by her husband, with all the honors and emoluments of that position, amounting to $2,000 a year. He is said to be the first case of the kind in the records of the Senate. The last "drop-a-penny-in-the-slot" automatic machine is that perfected by Canon Baco, the celebrated Irish dairy authority. In return for a penny it will give a drink of milk in a paper cup. He is confident that this will lead to a great increase in the use of milk as a beverage in cities. Over 10,000 glasses were sold on one holiday in Dublin, and more than two hundred of the buyers said that it was the first time they had ever tasted cows' milk. STRANGE SUBSTITUTIONS. SPANIARDS, in the sixteenth century, believed that spiders indicated gold when they were found in abundance. It is said that upon the backs of the seven-year locusts there sometimes appear marks like a lot of the "spiders." When this looks like a W it is thought that war is imminent. A HERREW at Athens, Ga., has received a gift of six ounces of white sand from Palestine. It is said to be the belief of some Hebrews that this sand, if placed under the head of a conqueror, insures the return of the spirit to Jerusalem. OUR Dakota Indians extend the number of souls to four, one of which (after death) wanders through the world, another hovers around the village where its possessor lived, the third watches the grave, and the fourth goes to heaven. Nations believe religiously that the frigate bird can start at daybreak with the trade winds from the coast of Africa and roost the same night upon the American shore. Whether or not this is a fact has not yet been conclusively determined, but it is certain that the bird is a swift, winged creature, and is able to fly, under favoring conditions, two hundred miles an hour. THE Audubon Magazine tells us that in Sweden the turtle dove is looked upon as sacred, is called "the bird of peace" and is supposed to protect a house where it is left from lightning. In the Tyrol the quail is credited with the gift of prophecy, and the number of its calls is believed to denote the price of corn and to indicate as well the prospects of the year. It is here thought that eating sparrow produces St. Vitis Janco.

QUEER RACE CUSTOMS.

Is the eyes of a Turkish girl are not large enough for beauty the outer corner of the eyelids are cut to make the eye the proper size. PORTUGUESE sailors have a custom of dressing their ship in mourning on Friday, and of scourging and hanging an effigy of the saint on the masthead, extra charge.
