THE KINDERGARTEN.

A Glance at the W. C. T. U. Kindergarten—Its Progress and a General Outline of its Work.

The advantages of a kindergarten training for children can not be over estimated. It is designed for children who have not attained the age at which it is desirable to subject their minds to the course of training that is adopted in the public schools.

It goes without saying that it is dangerous to force the child's mind, but in self defense the child insists upon obtaining a certain amount of information. Nature has fitted the child with a capacity for learning, and if the child does not have the opportunity to acquire correct knowledge, its mind will grasp an equal amount of distorted ideas in spite of everything that can be done to prevent it.

The minds of two children at five years of age are practically equally developed; at any rate this is true in the majority of cases. That is to say the one has acquired as many ideas as the other. Neither of them is more intelligent than the other, but the mind has been developed all the same. That being the case the one that has had the advantages of the kindergarten training has its mind stored with correct knowledge and principles that can successfully be applied as its education advances.

The teacher in the primary department of the public school understands the subject well and knows that the difference in the adaptability of the different minds to the acquiring of knowledge is due more to the training the mind was subjected to in infancy than to any difference in intellectual capability.

The kindergarten does not teach but simply affords the child the opportunity for acquiring the amount of true knowledge that the mind will naturally grasp. In other words it does not teach but affords the child the opportunity to learn.

The directors of the Real Estate Exchange met at 4 p. m. yesterday at their rooms in the Sedgwick block. There was a large attendance, nearly all the directors being present. Vice President N. E. Neiderlander presided. Report of the committee on printing was called for, made and approved by the board.

The committee on procuring supplies for the use of the secretary also made a report which was approved, and the secretary was directed to draw an order on the treasurer to pay for the same.

The secretary was directed to call a meeting of the members of the exchange for Thursday, January 30, at 4 p. m., at 213 Sedgwick block, for the purpose of selecting standing committees and such other business as should properly come before the meeting.

The Real Estate Exchange starts out with bright prospects for successful business, with fifteen directors chosen from among the business and property owners of the city. The officers being: J. O. Davidson, president; N. E. Neiderlander, first vice president; P. A. Rohrbaugh, second vice president; Robert Platt, third vice president; Robert K. Woods, treasurer; and G. A. Warth, secretary.

ALONG THE SANTA FE.

An ardent young lubber from Lawrence, went counting a fair maid from Florence; 'Tis his spoonful of soup.

The outline cards enter largely into this system of training and are graded according to the requirements of the child. The multiplicity of the things that the child learns from this practice cannot be enumerated here, but it is one of the most pleasing methods to the children, affording them much entertainment and at the same time allowing a freedom and scope to the mind that is refreshing.

The call for the mass meeting of the colored citizens of the city, to be held at the evening of the common pleas court last evening, was responded to by a large number. While the object of the meeting was known in general, it was made more definite by a short speech from Mr. J. J. Jennings.

The committee on resolutions reported the following which were adopted unanimously. In the natural course of events, (though much tardy) the "Negro question" has at last reached the halls of congress.

MADE ONE.

Mr. Moe R. Cohn and Miss Clara Negbauer united in matrimony at the residence of Mr. M. W. Levy.

The handsome residence of Mr. M. W. Levy, on North Topeka, was ablaze with lights last evening in honor of the marriage of Mr. Moe R. Cohn, one of Wichita's leading merchants, and Miss Clara Negbauer, of Great Bend, Kan.

The friends of the bride had kept Mr. Levy in the dark concerning the full particulars of the bride's costume intended to give her the appearance of a reticent in a charming manner.

WOMEN IN LITERATURE.

Many years ago a lady's entrance into literature was hailed either with a florid compliment or a cold sneer. No such reception is given her nowadays.

Woman's queer things in petticoats, with a morbid taste for the society of disreputable bores. We may happily ignore their books. Other novels written by young women are objectionable because their aims against delicacy are due to ignorance. When an uneducated girl has had audacity and genius enough to describe love, she is sometimes bolder in her coloring than any man or woman who has had experience of life. She writes things that shock, just as a babbling child can bring confusion in a drawing room by its courage and misapprehension.

Popular Names of Women. I wonder if any woman ever liked her own name. When I was in the harness I used to have to read all the manuscripts that came to the office. Most of our contributors were women. Women, I have sometimes thought, are naturally inclined to literature. I never knew one who didn't drift into writing for the press if she had the slightest encouragement. And when they begin to write, of course, the first thing they do is to select a name. These names are usually selected to attract me, and I took a fancy one day to keep-track of them for one year. At the expiration of that time I discovered that the name "Maud" led the list. The next was "Lillian," and then they uncovered "Iris," the realm of fiction, "Bertha," "Miriam," "Rowena," and the like.—Chicago Tribune.
