Merry Christmas.

Oh now for the days of our childhood,
 When Christmas brought joy and good cheer,
 When the bells rang out thro' the wildwood
 And made music most charming to hear.
 When we went to the home of dear grandma,
 Uncles, aunts and cousins to see,
 And our dear old gray-headed grandpa,
 And the rich loaded green Christmas tree.

When there was happiness, feasting and frolic,
 And music and good things galore,
 When all took part in the rollick
 And joined in the praises once more.

Turn back, O Time, for an hour,
 Let us join with that gay happy throng,
 Let us look at the Christmas cake tower
 And take part in the feasting and song.

Relieve us of all parental sorrow,
 Place us back just once more among
 The children who no trouble borrow
 When cheerful, contented and young.

Make us feel that Old Santa is real
 And every child's wishes well knew,
 When he heard our prayerful appeal
 For playthings so nice and so new.

Hear the jingling, musical sleigh-bell,
 See the fur muffled, shaggy old elf;
 See him bound 'round the laden-tree pell-mell
 And hand out the presents himself.

To John he gives pea-nuts and candy,
 To Jimmy a little red drum,
 To Earl a knife that's jim-dandy,
 To Pansy a package of gum.

For Mabel he has a fine dolly,
 For Carson a blue target-gun,
 For Jessie a book that is jolly
 And Elbert one chock full of fun.

For every one in the whole family,
 He has things rich, rare and nice,
 Which he gives out freely and calmly
 All without money or price.

And thus he makes every one cheerful,
 From the babe to the old and the gray,
 And no one should be sad and tearful
 On this Merry bright Christmas day.
