 And Romance for Some School Teacher.

Position Where Courage and Education Are Needed to Teach Young Idea to Shoot.

There is an opening in Ventura county, California, for a brave and venturesome school teacher. It is away up in the mountain fastness, isolated from railroads, telegraph and telephones. The Ventura correspondent of the Los Angeles Times describes it as follows and there may be some courageous Arizona girl who wants the position.

"A teacher is wanted in the Cuyama school district, and the trustees have tried in vain to secure one and have now passed it up to County Superintendent Sackett with the power to act. The superintendent has also about given up the task, though he has tried his best to convince applicants that Cuyama needs one of them. Sixty dollars a month awaits the teacher who will cross the mountains and earn it by giving instruction to the eight or ten children in the district. Besides trying for a teacher in this county, efforts have also been made in Los Angeles county.

Cuyama is 100 miles from Ventura and eighty from Bakersfield. It can be reached only by horseback trail, the route being by way of Pine Mountain. There is a mail into Cuyama each Friday by way of the Matilija. The Cuyama postoffice is Ozena. The teacher who took the school would be shut out from civilization for nine months in the year. She could travel about in her mountain retreat, but only on horseback or afoot, for carriages, wagons and automobiles are unknown there, and telephones have not been installed, nor are they likely to be for years to come.

Cuyama is high and pretty cold and sharp in the winter months, and California lions and other wild and big game abounds there, but it is a beautiful country, well watered and well wooded, and time could be made to pass pleasantly by any young woman of nerve. There are occasions when she must be brave, however. Miss Ethel Gray, of San Jose, was the teacher at Cuyama last year. She taught one term and gave up. One day Miss Gray was on her way to school over a mountain path and carrying her luncheon in a little basket. Suddenly she made a turn in the trail and came face to face with a big mountain lion. She had presence of mind enough to toss her lunch basket towards the beast. She put back for the house and when the man sent out found the lion he was quietly enjoying Miss Gray's luncheon. They shot him.

Flood at Globe.

Globe experienced the worst cloud burst in its history on Wednesday evening, August 17, resulting in the loss of seven lives and a great amount of property. All of the lost were Americans, their names being as follows:

W. Q. Mitchell, a railroad machinist and his wife; Charles Sims, a young man who boarded with the Mitchells, Mrs. Hurd and Miss Moody, who also lived at the Mitchell house, Uncle John Epley an old and well known resident of Globe and E. D. Wilson, a railroad clerk.

The heaviest loser of property is the railway, which maintains a small shop and roundhouse at that point. These were badly damaged by the flood and three quarters of a mile of the track was washed out. The line was tied up and unable to get trains through to Bowie where it makes connections with the Southern Pacific.

Hunting For a Meteor.

For three or four years eastern parties have been prospecting a section of country southeast of Winslow in an attempt to discover a monster aerolite which is supposed to have alighted in that vicinity years ago. The indications which lead them to this belief is an immense hole in the ground one mile in diameter and 600 feet deep. The earth surrounding this immense hole is raised a considerable distance above the level of the mesa or plain on which it is located, giving it the appearance of having been forced up by pressure. A derrick has been erected in the bottom of the depression and a hole has been bored to a depth of 600 feet and drilling is progressing at the rate of six feet per day. Numerous meteoric fragments have been found in the vicinity which adds to the belief that the depression was caused by an aerolite. These fragments contain ninety per cent. pure nickel. The work has been carried on in a very quiet manner and although as stated, it has been in progress for two or three years, comparatively few people have known of it. Visitors are not permitted to descend into the depths of the depression where drilling is in progress and if any one were to ask those connected with it what they were drilling for they would not be told that they were searching for an aerolite. Should they succeed in discovering an aerolite and it should prove to be large enough to have made this immense hole or depression, it will prove a very valuable find. Some of the pieces found on the surface have weighed as much as half a ton.

THE AUGUST AMERICAN BOY.

The August American Boy, published by the Sprague Publishing Company, Detroit, Michigan, is noteworthy especially for its account of American Boy Day at the St. Louis Exposition, July 5th, which was planned and carried out by the publishers of that periodical. Nearly five thousand people participated in parts of a five hour program on that day under the chairmanship of the editor of The American Boy. The participants in the program were mainly talented boys from various sections of the country. Half a dozen pages of The American Boy are given to a detailed account of the proceedings, splendidly illustrated. No boy, and indeed no adult, can read this account without feeling something of the inspiration of the occasion. The publishers of The American Boy also announce in this number that they propose to try to make American Boy Day a permanent American institution in every city and country town in the country.

This number also contains further chapters of "The Blue Dragon," Kirk Munroe's thousand dollar story; a story by W. Edgar Simpson entitled "Skipper Dawson's Peril;" and one by the celebrated English writer for boys, William Murray Graydon, entitled "A Piratical Tramp;" John Dicks How presents an interesting article entitled "Six Months in the Ute Country," which boys who like Indian stories will be interested in. The number contains 117 illustrations. Published by the Sprague Publishing company, Detroit, Mich. $1.00 per year, single copies 10c.

Times Scholarship Contest.

Public interest in this unique enterprise of the Los Angeles Times seems to be greater than ever before, notwithstanding the fact that this is the fourth year that the contest has been conducted. The generous offer of The Times to give school children an opportunity to secure a year's tuition in one of a large number of the best educational institutions in Southern California, which The Times offers, seems to appeal to everybody and great numbers of them are assisting the worthy youngsters who have entered the contest by sending in paid subscriptions to The Times. From 40 to 1000 points are allowed a contestant, according to the length of time for which a subscription is paid, and the schoolboy or girl having the largest number of points when the contest closes can select from a list of about thirty schools the scholarship of their choice. Besides a scholarship for each, the first ten scoring the highest number of points will be entitled to cash prizes ranging from $250 down to $25. The contest will close September 3. No more worthy act could be performed than by helping one of these ambitious children to secure a good education.

Poking Fun at Parker.

Just now the democratic papers are booming Judge Parker, their candidate for president, in every way possible. Such items as the following find frequent places in the news items, says the Mesa Free Press:

"Judge Parker bathed for half an hour in the Hudson this morning. He had his photo taken in the act of diving."
 "Mrs. Parker appeared at breakfast this morning, dressed in pale blue, to match the delicate tint of the milk served the judge for his frugal breakfast of oatmeal."
 "Judge Parker sneezed three times yesterday, which is taken as an omen of good luck."

Democratic Doings.

The county democratic central committee held a session on Saturday and fixed the date of holding their primaries in this county for Saturday, September 17 and that for holding their convention for Monday, September 26. The basis of representation for the convention was placed at one for each 25 votes, or major fraction of a vote cast for J. F. Wilson at the last election, with the exception of Jerome, which was allowed 15 delegates. As the territorial convention meets prior to the county convention the committee decided to appoint delegates to it and the following were selected to represent this county in the territorial convention:

- Dr. O. L. Geer, G. W. Hull, L. A. Willard, T. Taylor, C. Hooker, F. Gepung, J. R. Lowry, J. Lawler, E. E. Ellinwood, H. D. Ross, W. S. Adams, T. G. Norris, C. P. Hicks, T. J. Morrison, P. L.
