

PEACOCK MINE HAS AN EXCELLENT SHOWING

Prospects Good For A Large And Rich Ore Body

Development Will Be Started On Large Scale

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

As a result of the development of the Peacock mine, in the Copper Basin district, by the McKinley Mining and Development company, commenced February 15, the management of that concern is now making preparations to start sinking a perpendicular working shaft and installing a hoisting plant with a capacity of lifting from a great depth. The new shaft will be a double compartment one and the equipment will consist of a complete hoisting plant, an 80-horse power boiler, 60-horse power engine, with blower and star appliances that go with a modern plant of that character. Work is being continued in the prospect shaft, now down to a depth of 160 feet. The vein, which shows a width of 60 feet on the surface, will be crossed from this point and the shaft will be pushed down to the 200-foot level. Connection will be made with the new shaft when the latter is sunk to this level by a drift, and the prospect shaft will then serve as an air shaft for the new workings.

In the bottom of the shaft the ore body shows the entire width of the opening. It is highly mineralized throughout and carries good values in copper and several dollars in gold to the ton. At the 50-foot level a crosscut was run for a distance of twenty-three feet through the great porphyry vein, which shows a width of 60 feet on the surface. In this crosscut the mineralization shows throughout the ledge, with several veinlets of high grade sulphide ore scattered through it. Mineralization is found to continue through the quartz porphyry footwall, where the latter was broken into in the sinking of the shaft, and as the values continue to increase as depth is gained it seems certain that a large and rich body of ore will be encountered when the vein is opened to a depth of 500 or 600 feet.

The Peacock vein, as the great dyke known, runs in a northeasterly and westerly direction, on the Copper Basin slope of the range that divides this district from the Thumb Butte district. It can be traced for a distance of several miles and is known to the prospectors and old timers of the section as the mother lode of the range. It follows a quartz, porphyry and diorite contact, the diorite forming the hanging wall. Immense croppings of quartz are encountered at intervals on it, heavily stained with copper, some of which assays a high per cent in the red metal. Four of the twenty-one locations comprising the Peacock group over the vein and the mineralization continues for the entire length of the four claims on the surface. Taking this fact into consideration, together with the showing in the shaft, the prospects for a large copper mine are more inviting than any to be found in those parts for the amount of development done.

The other locations of the group over two parallel dykes or ledges, with the same general geological conditions. Outside of the usual location work little has been done in the development of these veins, but the management expects to start prospecting on them as soon as the new machinery is installed on the Peacock and the sinking of the new perpendicular shaft is under way.

In Iron Springs wash, passing through the ground, there is a never failing supply of pure water at all seasons of the year, and a short distance above the point where the new working shaft will be sunk there is a natural dam site where the waters of the stream can be impounded at a nominal expense.

The main line of the S. F., P. & F. passes within three-fourths of a mile of the Peacock mine, and among other improvements contemplated is the building of a wagon road of easy grade to the railroad, where a spur will be built when the mine is developed far enough along to warrant the expense.

Located 100 yards from the present shaft on the mine is one of the most desirable camp sites to be found in the range. Large gnarled oaks and cottonwoods cover a grassy flat of about two acres, through which the stream flows, affording shade from the summer sun and shelter from the winter winds. Here the company proposes to build permanent camp houses before fall, for it is the intention of the management to make the camp as comfortable as possible, which is one of the best inducements for high class labor to seek employment at a mine.

BITTER BUSINESS BATTLE BEING WAGED.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

While the opera buff war in Central America goes merrily on, Prescott, also, has suddenly found itself in the midst of one of the bitterest business battles ever waged in the city a mile high.

Laskey's Toggery and Biles-Loekhart Clothing company are the opposing generals, with Captains Block and Wilson marshalling in battle array their army of shoes and troops of trousers, and adding to the butchering of prices and slaughtering of profits.

General Laskey fired the first gun when he announced, through the medium of the Journal-Miner, selected as the official "War Cry" by both generals and captains, that he would exterminate every soldier on his shelves in his endeavor to give the Prescott public a run for its money. Immediately the challenge was accepted by Biles-Loekhart, who fired a broadside from their battleship on Montezuma street, making the startling announcement that they would drive their enemy from the face of the earth with their slaughter of prices. The shock, however, didn't seem to phase General Laskey, who ordered up his reserves, and came back (in next morning's Journal-Miner) stronger than ever.

For a week past the battle has raged, growing fiercer every day. Soon the commercial bullets gave way to real pleasant remarks about the generalship of each other, such leaden pellets as "Butchers," "Jews," "Gentiles," "Bankruptcy," "Retiring Sale," being hurled at each other, daily, in the meantime prices continuing to be mowed down by each other's artillery in a manner to gladden the heart of the great army of war correspondents, Messrs. Pocketbooks.

The news of the battle quickly spread and from all over the county purchasers are arriving to take advantage of the fray. A truce has been declared for today, but Monday the fight will resume with even greater fierceness.

Both generals, last evening, acknowledged that in this commercial battle, advertising, as exemplified by the Journal-Miner, had proved their strongest ally.

"As a result of our page ad in the Journal-Miner," said the Biles-Loekhart people, "our store was crowded all day Saturday, sales being highly satisfactory."

The Laskey's Toggery man stated that last week his sales ran over $6,000, over $2,000 worth of goods being sold Saturday a week ago, and almost $1,500 worth this Saturday.

"It's a fight to the finish," both declare, "and the people will get greater bargains while it lasts than ever before in the history of this city."

The war correspondents, spectators, etc., are saying nothing, contenting themselves with reaping the harvest while the battle rages.

"War is fine business," remarks the famous general.

"War is fine business," remarks the Prescott public, "when it makes prices as low as they have been here the past week."

EX-TREASURER ASKS COURT FOR A NEW TRIAL.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

In the district court, yesterday, Attorneys Ross and O'Sullivan made a motion for a new trial in the case of the Territory vs. ex-Treasurer James P. Storm, against whom a verdict of guilty of embezzlement was returned by a jury, June 8. After hearing arguments the court announced that he would take the matter under advisement, and render a decision after his return from attending the session of the supreme court which convenes in Phoenix, Monday.

Storm's attorneys set forth thirteen grounds in their motion for a new trial. They claim the court erred in taking the issues of fact, to wit, former acquittal and jeopardy, from the consideration of the jury and in directing the jury not to return a verdict on said issues of fact.

They also contend the court erred in holding there had been an election by the prosecution in the trial of defendant under a former indictment and also in permitting the court's docket entry of May 15, 1905, made and entered in said case, to be contradicted, disproved and varied for the reason that the term of court in which said entry was made had long since adjourned sine die.

Another alleged error is in the failure and refusal of the court to instruct the jury, as requested by defendant, to the effect that in every crime there must exist a union or joint operation of act and intent; and that in order to act and intend guilty of the crime find defendant guilty of the crime charged, the jury must find that he appropriated with intent to cheat and defraud.

After further alleging that the verdict of the jury was contrary to the law and evidence in the case, they contend also that the court erred in refusing to permit the defendant to prove the payment of the money, charged to the have been appropriated, back to the county, said offer by the defendant to having been made by the defendant in good faith, and the absence of any bad faith or criminal negligence on his part.

WIMP WAS NOT THERE WITH THE GOODS

Humboldt's Pitcher Is Touched Up For Many Hits

Phoenix Fans Witness Another Great Gab-Fest

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

Wimp, the wonder; the peerless pitcher from Pasadena, was there, all right, but not with the puzzling delivery, and as a result Humboldt was given the surprise of his life, Sunday, when the Prescott Grays trimmed her up to the tune of 19 to 2. That the Greens had strong hopes of winning was made apparent by the amount of money wagered on the result of the game, and when Humboldt led off with a run in the very first inning, the fans thought it was going to be another close and exciting contest, but their hopes went glimmering when Prescott piled up six runs in her half of the first. After that the game developed into a roaring farce, Humboldt making a total of twenty-one errors. Wimp, the Humboldt pitcher, could hardly be blamed for taking the balloon route with such ragged support.

The local team tried hard to give the fans their money's worth by making all the runs they could, pulling off double steals, slamming the ball out for two, three and four-base hits, and playing a nifty game in every particular, Chuck Burgett making the only real bad bobble in the game, when he overlooked a clear double play, but this, it is said, was on account of him having been given the "two out" signal. Hudson, who is the real "kandy kid" of the team, was, as usual, the bright, particular star, his fast playing at short, hitting and base running earning him much applause from the grandstand. Wilson's great stop of a hot grounder and quick throw to first, retiring the runner, was also loudly applauded. "Dutch" Burgett and Elliott played good ball, the combination being one of the strongest batteries the boys have had this season. Wilson's arm is still bothering him, and until it is well he will continue to play third. Every man on the local team played his position well, the practice the team has had showing to good advantage. Reymiller furnished the fun for the fans by his strenuous, tough generally fruitless, efforts to knock the ball clear over the sun.

Sunday the Grays will go to Phoenix for the second game of the series of three with the Athletics. No excursion will be run, but if as many as twenty persons from here wish to accompany the team, which will leave Saturday night, they can obtain a reduced rate by applying to Manager Taylor.

Following is the score by innings, of last Sunday's game:

Innings—	123 456 789
Humboldt	100 010 000
Prescott	000 011 442 10*

Another Phoenix Rag-Chewing Match.

Another one of the Phoenix Athletic's rag-chewing matches, for which that team is gaining a Territorial reputation, was pulled off in the Capital City, Sunday, when Mesa played the Athletics. Each team had one game to its credit, and both were anxious to win. Things went along fairly smooth until the beginning of the ninth inning, when Captain Lewis of the Athletics substituted a player who had been previously barred. Mesa objected, and while the captain of the Mesa team was conferring with his pitcher, Williams, the Athletics left the field, declaring the game had been forfeited to them. As there were two umpires, and as both declare they never made any forfeit decision, and as Mesa was two runs ahead of Phoenix, it looks to a man up a tree as though Curley Rinderle had merely pulled off another of his famous stunts to get the big end of the gate receipts. It is to be sincerely hoped that when Prescott plays the Athletics, Sunday, in Phoenix, these gab-fest proclivities will have been relegated to the background, and as Phoenix always rings in Southside and Indian school players when she plays Prescott, there will be no squabble on that score, as Prescott will let her have any old player she wants, and still win.

BIG ROCK DRILLING CONTEST ARRANGED.

(From Sunday's Daily.)

Although the finance committee of the Fourth of July celebration, composed of J. P. Dillon, chairman, Ben Hartwick and C. N. Binford, did not have sufficient funds to make an appropriation for a rock drilling contest for the miners of the Territory, this feature of the coming celebration is not to be neglected, and at least $750, and possibly $1,000, is to be hung up in prizes for the fastest drillers.

This was evidenced yesterday, when a committee, composed of P. J. Farley of the Journal-Miner, chairman, Archie Lockhart of the Biles-Loekhart Clothing Co., and Bob Birch of the Birch Bros., began soliciting funds for this feature, which, in Yavapai county, essentially a mining country, should be a top-liner. Although only a few merchants were reached yesterday, over $300 was subscribed, and there is no doubt but that every business man called on will eagerly subscribe to a fund for such a purpose, as it is hardly fair to the mining element of the county to make no provisions for sports particularly pertaining to their class of labor.

Messrs. Lockhart and Birch stated last evening that they would guarantee there would be at least $500 hung up in prizes, even if they had to donate the entire amount, and as a consequence the rock drillers throughout the county and Territory can begin getting their drills in shape, as a contest, well worth entering, will certainly be a feature of the big three days' celebration to take place here July 3-4-5.

The list of subscribers to the rock drilling contest fund, and further details concerning the contest will be published in these columns later.

ELECTION EXPENSES.

C. A. Peter, Jr., clerk of the board of supervisors, has been busily engaged, the past few days, mailing duplicate receipts to every election officer who served at the last county and Territorial election, for their signatures, in order to collect the expense of the election from the government of the United States, according to the provisions of the law authorizing a vote on the question of joint statehood.

As soon as the receipts are returned to him, Clerk Peter will file the same with the Territorial secretary, who will later make a formal demand on the government authorities for the payment of the aggregate of the claims to the county.

The total expenses of the election were between $4,500 and $5,000.

KIRKLAND RAISED FIRST U. S. FLAG

Pioneer Hoisted It In Tucson Many Years Ago

After a stay of over a week in this city, serving as a trial juror in the district court, W. H. Kirkland, a pioneer of the pioneers of this Territory, has returned to his home in Congress Junction.

Mr. Kirkland, who is a native of Petersburg, Va., will be 75 years of age on the 12th of July, next. He is still as hale and hearty as many men thirty years his junior. He was among the first settlers of Prescott, was the first settler in Kirkland Valley, which bears his name, and in his career has assisted in laying out the towns of Tempe and Stafford, besides naming Solomonville. He was the first man to raise a barley crop in Yavapai county, on the place now owned by Grant Carter, in the Kirkland Valley, but he says that while the crop was a great success he secured no benefit from it as the Indians, who were monarchs of all they surveyed at the time, harvested his crop for themselves, and drove away with them twenty-three head of his pack animals. He was assisted in building the first water wheel for an arastra ever seen in this part of the Territory, by Joseph Ehle, now residing on North Montezuma street. It was erected on the farm now owned by Mose Langley, in Kirkland, and was successfully operated for many years.

Of all his acts or experiences in the Territory, which he first entered in 1854, he is proudest of the fact that he was the man who raised the first Old Glory to the skies in Arizona, on the occasion of the evacuation of Tucson by the Mexican troops, February 20, 1856. Before the Mexican troops marched out of the town on that memorable occasion, after the Gadsden purchase, he climbed to the roof of one of the adobe buildings and floated to the breeze a flag given him by an ex-government teamster, who had it secretly hidden away in his mess box for many years. The officer in command of the Mexican troops objected to the Americans flying their flag until he had his men out of town, but despite his protestations, the seventeen sturdy Americans present refused to pull it down.
