Miss Louisa Cash, of Spring City, Rhea County, Tenn., the daughter of one of the 'ending families in that section, more than two months ago conceived the idea of starving to death. She has persistently refused to eat a mouthful of food of any description and at this writing, after ten weeks, her form is greatly emaciated, and she is so weak that she can not sit. Mise Cash declares she will not eat any thing, and will carry out her determination of starving to death. Ben Jones, one of the most notorious outlaws of Eastern Kentucky, was captured a few days since just across the line in Scott County, Virginia. He is wanted for five deliberate murders. His victim was a Mrs. Hargan, of Hortan County, Kentucky. He shot her dead in her tracks because she refused to hide him from sheriff's deputies, who were on his trail. In the section of Atlanta, Ga., known as Brooklyn, Thomas Smith and Herman Gluck were testing their strength a few days ago. A quarrel arose, which resulted in a trip to the back yard, where Gluck marked off a dead line and challenged Smith to pass. As Smith did so Gluck retreated. Then Smith marked off a dead line and challenged Gluck to cross it. The latter no sooner did so than he was set upon by Smith and given five mortal stabs. Smith is in jail.

BOLIVAR, TENNESSEE, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1886.

SOFIA, Sept. 5 .- There was a parade of the army and a demonstration of the people in honor of Prince Alexander yesterday. At the close of the parade Prince Alexander gave a reception to the palace officers' corps and addressed its members at length. After heartily thanking them for their fidelity-a fidelity, which he said wholly wiped away the shame with which the treason of their comrades had stained the honor of the fatherland-the prince went on to say that he had eyer acted upon conscientious conviction and to the best of his knowledge for the good of their common country, and that if he had committed errors they must be attributed to the imperiections of human nature.

The speaker next observed that amid the joy which an enthusiastic reception at the hands of the people caused him, there had suddenly descended the dispatch forwarded to him by the Czar. Having read the document to the assembled officers, Prince Alexander said It had created grave anxiety, and demanded the most serious and careful consideration. This was not, he assured them, a case in which his own person was concerned; it was a question of the well-being of the fatherland. He was therefore ready to take counsel with all patriots, and to confer with his officers as well, for ha was of opinion that whatever was done ought to be done on a basis of the fullest understanding with the country and with the military leaders, so that the measures decided upon might contribute to the permanent welfare of Bulgaria.

Continuing, the Prince sald: For seven years I have labored for the dependence and interests of Bulgaria. My constant special solicitude has been for my army and officers. I consider them my family, my children, and I have telt secure in my personal position when I have seen myself surrounded by officers who had been my comrades in our struggles for the glory of Bulgaria. [Cheers.] On that sad night, having heard a noise, I asked first whether troops were there. "Yes," was the re-Then I felt tranquil, for I had confidence in my army Notwithstanding the unfortunate events which followed, I have not been disappointed in my offi-cers. coping with the troubles which asserted I see around me officers who are devoted to me, and I can quit Bulgaria addressing praises to those officers and with the conviction that order will not be disturbed. In whatever circumstances I might find myself I would place my influence at the service of Bulgaria, I will pray to God for her. My heart will ever be with my officers and I shall be the first to be admitted among them as a volunteer in a campaign for Macedonia. I cannot remain in Bulgaria, for the Czar will not permit me, because my presence is inimical to the interests of the M. Popeoff exclaimed: "We have been and ever shall be with you. Courage, forward! Prince Alexander replied: "The independence of Bulgarla requires that I leave the country. If I did not Russia would occupy it. I will, however, cousult with the superior officers and constitute a regency which will endeavor to protect the interests of my officers. In any case, I rely on the army.' All the officers present burst into lears, and the Prince was himself painfully moved. Among the officers in the town there is a feeling of deep depression. It is felt, nevertheless, that so long as the Prince is present in Bulgaria peace is assured. All of the Bulgarians with whom I have spoken declare that, under existing circumstances, all differences of party must cease. I have had a long conversation with Karavaloff, who is, in spite of his profound indignation at the attacks which are being made upon him and notwithstanding his imprisonment, explains that he is willing to forgive everything and to place himself unconditionally at the disposal of the Prince should Alexander need his services. The conversation yielded a most definite confirmation of my old view that Karavaloff has been treated with the most bitter injustice. Bogdonoff has left Sofia. It is my impression that some time must yet clapse pefore affairs here can be finally straightened out. Prince Alexander imparted his intention of abdicating to the German and Russian consuls. A grand council, among the members of which are MM. Stambuloff and Karavaloff, is being held to arrange for the regency. The Prince will probably leave within two days. The officers of the army are greatly excited and talk of detaining the Prince. They have resolved, in any case, to refuse to receive a Russian envoy. They will hold a meeting to decide what course to adopt. The city is tranquil. When Prince Alexander reached Sofia he was met by a vast concourse of citizens, headed by the mayor. The latter presented to the Prince an address of velcome. It expressed loyalty and submission on the part of the Bulgarians and universal grief over the recent events Prince Alexander, in reply, said his confidence in the future was unshaken. He summoned all Bulgarians to assist him in preserving order. The Prince entered the town in triumph. He was preceded by a troop of Roumelian bussars, followed by inf ntry. Gaily attired easants who had ridden out to meet the Prince, followed the dense masses which lined the streets and cheered the procession as it made its way toward the cathedral, where the "Te Deum was sung. A parade followed, during which Prince Alexander left his suite and galloped toward the troops amid the deafening cheers of the multitude. All the consulate calldings, except that belonging to Russia, were decorated with bunting and flags in honor of the restoration. A Victim to Man's Brutality. St. Louis, Sept. 6 .- Between two and three o'clock yesterday morning Officers McDonald and Harrison found a colored woman named Ethel Jamison, about thirty years of age, lying near the corner of Sixth and Spruce streets, with a deep gash across her face, from which she was bleeding profusely. The patrol wagon was summoned and the injured woman taken to the dispensary, where her wounds were dressed. She stated that the wound had been made by a white man with whom she lived.
