

Clarksville, Tenn., SEPTEMBER 23, 1865.

We stated, last week, that the proprietors and publishers of the Chronicle were under arrest and had been carried to Nashville for trial. What ever apprehensions may have been felt, by their friends, for the result, we are happy to announce that they were released without trial, on the condition that they publish no more articles of the same import with the one for which they were arrested.

THE SOUTH. We repeat from the Tribune a very interesting letter addressed to the editor of this journal by Mr. B. A. Alston of Georgia. The writer is evidently a sensible, fair minded, and well informed gentleman. He describes in plain and manly language the real condition of the South, its deplorable condition, and the earnest desire of all its people to do all which men who still retain their own self-respect can do to propitiate and please their conquerors, and with earnest simplicity he appeals to the dominant States to believe, and to act as if they believed, that the people of the South have universally abandoned the doctrine of secession and acquiesced in the perpetual abolition of slavery, and that they are striving each with the other to restore peace and harmony and to carve out of the future some consolation for the past.

We do not think that any right thinking Northern man, who shall read the truthful and touching account that he gives of the heroic fortitude with which, in the midst of the desolation which broods over their once lovely and abundant country, the men and the gentle women of the South are accepting their hard fate, and laboring as they have never labored before to earn their daily bread, and to rebuild and restore their ruined homes and temples, will have it in his heart to pursue them any longer with his vengeance, or to drive them to humiliate and degrade them.

We have ourselves conversed frequently, in the last few days, with a well known citizen of Virginia, who was a distinguished representative from that State in the Confederate Congress. He has, within the past four months, traveled extensively in Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia, and he fully confirms the statements of Mr. Alston as to the perfect, universal and absolute submission of the people of those States to the Federal authority, and of their unfeigned anxiety to do all that the people of the North can fairly ask them to do, to demonstrate the loyalty and good faith in which they have returned their allegiance to the Government of the United States.

We copy the foregoing from the New York News, because of its perfectly truthful delineation of the condition and feelings of the people of the South. And yet, strange to say, there are those, North and South, who labor, with more industry than wisdom, to keep alive the spirit of discord by representing our people as insincere in their acceptance of the arbitration of the sword, and as harboring rebellion under the garb of submission. If such continues to be the spirit of the South, the time to manifest it was when it had arms in the field and arms in the hands of its people, and not now, when those arms have surrendered and the country is left defenseless. The man who would now endeavor to arouse the spirit of rebellion would be esteemed a madman or a fool. Their desolated homes and ruined fortunes are, to the people, arguments in favor of peace too strong to be rebutted by the factious outpourings of discontent, were any disposed to give them utterance to the detriment of the cause of humanity, and the interests of the country. Every where throughout the South, the voice of the people, the outpouring of the press, the speeches of candidates, and the acts of conventions are for peace and the faithful observance of the terms imposed upon us; yet all this does not satisfy the radicals of the North, nor avert the suspicions of disloyalty which they labor so faithfully to keep alive. But this state of things can not last always. Truth will, ultimately, impress itself upon the minds of those in authority. In the meantime, let the people of the South press forward the work of peace and reorganization, and by their zeal, in the good cause, manifest their sincerity and good faith.

The evidence of a Southern enterprise which we daily see, in our exchanges, are of the most cheering character, and inspire the hope that the spirit which manifested itself in this town and county ere long. Much remains to be done here, before we can bring back the former state of Clarksville; and beyond that there is a broad field inviting capital and enterprise. Our system of agriculture must be reorganized on the new order of things, and much capital now invested in large tracts of land, held by individuals, will be reconverted into profitable employment. Nothing better can be done for the capitalist and the country, than the concentration of capital for the establishment of manufacturing which will supply the people with articles of prime necessity. This locality offers many facilities for such establishments. We want tanneries and shoe-factories, rolling mills and machine shops, foundries and manufactories of cotton and woolen goods, and shops for the manufacture of all farming implements. In short, we ought to make, at home, every thing we need—we can do it, if we try, and it will be a fatal mistake not to make the effort. Now is the time to begin.

The Nashville News of last Tuesday has an article upon "the past and present" of South Carolina, which is in decidedly bad taste. It is not the instinct of generous spirits to taunt a fallen foe; nor is this a time for retrospections which would not the possibility of doing good, can not well fall to arouse feelings at war with that spirit of peace which it is the duty of all to foster. Conciliation is the policy of the President—let it be the policy of all who profess to support him. The most ardent and prudent can be swayed by the persuasive influence of conciliation, whilst taunts, and imputations engender nothing but evil passions.

The press of Tennessee ought to adopt the former policy—leaving the letter to the exclusive use of the radical Northern editors who wallow in Ebb from choice, and who have no higher ambition than to magnanimity than a belief that of honesty. The truly generous will never forget that there is no degradation in a graceful yielding to inevitable necessity.

An Illinois paper speaks of President Johnson's speech to the Southern delegates as "the funeral oration over the defunct Republican party." This prophecy may be verified if the people of the South will stand by the President in the fierce struggle which the radicals have inaugurated for the purpose of defeating his policy toward the Southern States.

WE publish below the resolutions adopted by a meeting of the citizens of Davidson County, held in Nashville on Saturday last, and comment thereon to the attention of our readers. The list, but one, calls upon the different counties of the State to hold similar meetings, and to pass resolutions of the same tenor and spirit. We endorse the recommendation, and hope the people of Montgomery will come together, at an early day, and by an earnest and honest exposure of their loyalty to the Government, and endorsement of the Administration and its policy, give the lie to the report, abroad, that this county is a hot-bed of rebellion. That this false impression prevails, we have evidence from all directions, and it is strong that it should be so, since this county is as quiet and law-abiding as any in the State, and its people as trust-worthy as those of any locality whatever. Then let us have a county meeting and vindicate our character.

Whereas peace has been restored to our beloved country; and whereas, the ravages of war, for the last four years, have disturbed to a great extent the social, political and industrial relations of our people; and whereas, we as a community are all alike interested in good government, and in a restoration of our social, civil and political rights and relations therefore be it

Resolved, That the flag of the Union is our flag, and we pledge ourselves to protect and defend the same, when and wherever assailed.

Resolved, That we practice ourselves, and recommend to others, the duty of meeting all our fellow-citizens, socially and practically, as members of one great nationality, and that we will co-operate with them in all laudable ways, for the promotion of our common interests, State and national.

Resolved, That we accept the extinction of slavery as an accomplished fact, and that we will co-operate with all good men everywhere, to make the new relation of the white and black race, as pleasant and profitable to both, as possible.

Resolved, That the broad, bold and prudent Statesmanship of Andrew Johnson, as indicated in his past career, upon State and national questions, high assurances to his countrymen everywhere that the Government of his country will be conducted upon principles of enlarged patriotism, wisdom and justice. That we heartily approve his policy in the administration of the Government, so far as it has been developed, because of its large and liberal patriotic Americanism. We will, in good faith, support his administration in its efforts to re-unite the whole people as one nation North and South.

Resolved, That the national credit is essential to national happiness, strength and prosperity, and should be carefully guarded and protected.

Resolved, That we believe that the present policy of President Johnson is met in the spirit in which it should be by the people, that the entire country will be reunited in one common brotherhood, and peace and prosperity reign throughout the Union.

Resolved, That it is our duty to obey in good faith the laws of the United States, and to co-operate with every effort made to restore peace, law and order.

Resolved, That the different counties in the State are hereby earnestly requested to call meetings without delay, for the purpose of co-operating in the great objects sought to be obtained by this meeting.

In an article, in another place, we called upon the citizens of the county to meet together for the purpose of giving expression to their feelings of loyalty to the Government, and to declare their determination to stand by the President and give their cordial support to his policy of restoring the South to its former position in the Union. Since that article was written, it has been decided to hold the meeting at the Court-house, on to-morrow. The notice is a short one; but we hope the people will turn out—at least, who see this notice in time.

Red, White and Red, the favorite traitors colors, and of which the Confederate flag was composed, is henceforth to be the uniform of the convicts in the Missouri Penitentiary. Traitors will only have to visit the penitentiary to see colors in fit subjects.

The foregoing is from the Missouri Telegraph, and the reader may be tempted to say that it is a contemptible attempt, on the part of the State of Missouri, to insult a brave, but conquered people; let him, however, read the following, from the same paper, of the same date, and he will say that he can assure from such a source is the highest compliment:

The other victim, F. Her Cummings, was arrested and taken before the 11th Circuit Court, Judge Fager. He admitted that he had preached without taking the oath, but that he had committed no crime in doing so. The Judge directed a writ of habeas corpus to be entered on the record against him, and sentenced him to pay a fine of five hundred dollars, and to be imprisoned in the county jail till the fine be paid. The prisoner refused to pay the fine, or permit his friends to pay it for him; because such a course would require him either to cease preaching, or to pay a fine of five hundred dollars every week. He therefore remains in prison, the helpless victim of one of the cruellest laws that ever blackened the statute book of a civilized State.

CHATTANOOGA.—It having been determined to make Chattanooga a permanent military post, with forts, etc., stringent measures have been taken by the commanding general to enforce discipline among the officers and men. There are about 27,000,000 worth of military supplies stored there at present, and measures are being taken to secure this property against fire.

THE GEORGIA RAILROAD.—Mr. Johnson, president of the Georgia Central railroad, who has been in this city for some days past, has effected an arrangement with the Government by which the latter furnishes, on credit, railroad iron sufficient to complete the repairs of the road from Macon to Savannah.—Star.

The State Department is in receipt to-day of voluminous dispatches from our Consuls at Constantinople, Smyrna, Port Mahon and Barcelona, giving further information of ravages of cholera in various parts of Europe. The reports from Constantinople are the most alarming, the deaths from this disease having reached the number of 20,000 per day. At Smyrna the epidemic was checked some time since, but it has broken out afresh, and is now spreading to a frightful extent.
