Farm and Household.

To PRESERVE THE HAIR—
Wash it in cold sage tea.

A bird-shot has been found in an egg in Lagrange, Ga.

Hot water is recommended to kill cabbage worms.

A tablespoonful of turpentine in a pail of water will deodorize a couspoo.

A calf at six weeks old, if properly fed, produces the best veal.

When one with the human form kicks a good horse in the belly with his heavy boots what shall we call him?

Prof. Brewer, speaking of dogs in connection with sheepherding, called them "our domestic wolves."

Salt applied to cabbage plants as they begin to head will save them from the ravages of the cabbage worm.

The Maine Farmer tells of a premium colt that was given six eggs per day as part of his food.

Bloated cattle can be quickly relieved by the insertion in the mouth of a straw rope of good size, tying it over the head.

Sheep will eat what no other stock eat, and thus save the labor required by the thrifty farmer to keep down noxious weeds.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune says, a tea made of cayenne pepper, used twice a day, will kill cabbage worms.

To preserve cut flowers put a drop or two of ammonia in the water. Change the water every day and cut off half an inch or so of the stems of the flowers.

The soil of the United States is the best in the world, yet in many European countries the annual yield per acre on all the land under cultivation is greatly on the increase from year to year.

A GOOD WINTER DISH—Take green corn and ripe tomatoes; cook them separately, and while hot, mix them together, half and half, and can them. When used, heat them, and season them to taste.

A farmer of experience says that the feet of a horse require more care than the body. They need ten times as much, for in one respect they are almost the entire horse. All the grooming that can be done won't avail anything if the horse is forced to stand where his feet are filthy.
In this case the feet will become disordered, and then the legs will get badly out of fix; and with bad feet and bad legs there is not much else of the horse fit for anything.

The Hon. E. W. Keyes says: I have known farmers whose reapers were never housed, whose yards were carpeted with manure that had rotted for years; whose cattle were sheltered from the wintry blasts only by gnawing holes in straw stacks; whose front yards were ornamented, not with lawn and shade trees, but with pig troughs and coals.
Perhaps these sturdy sons of the soil attribute their bad luck to the tannin; or to some bloated monopoly; or to high rates of interest; never dreaming that the same waste and carelessness manifested by them would bring to poverty the men engaged in other business.

Among the new inventions designed to lighten the labors of digging post-holes, is a double, round-pointed shovel or spade, the two parts being connected like the two blades of a pair of shears or pinners. The instrument is plugged into the soil the length of the blade some ten or twelve inches, and after compressing the earth by the leverage afforded through the joint handles, the contents are lifted and dropped on the surface. Three or four plunges will clear a six or eight-inch hole two or two and a half feet deep, all ready to receive the post, and the solid bank will hold the post much more firmly with a slight tramping, than if a larger hole were filled with loose earth. In a free soil a hole may be dug for an ordinary fence post in from one to two minutes.—N. E. Farmer.

Sheep Killing Dogs.

Mr. D. C. Richmond, of Ohio, relates—in an article at large without credit—the result of observation and experience of sheep killing dogs, from which he was quite a sufferer during twenty five years. They slaughter their victims by tearing open the large veins of the neck and sucking the blood; they never can be broken of this trick. A single dog will sometimes kill sheep, but generally there are two—often a large and small dog. A sheep-killing dog will teach others. The first time a dog kills a sheep he will suck the blood, and then eat some and be satisfied. He will soon learn to kill several, sucking the blood until he is full, eating no flesh the first night. Any dog that will chase sheep when out alone, will sooner or later kill them.
A green dog will sometimes kill a sheep in the daytime, but this seldom happens. Nearly all the sheep-killing by dogs is done in the night; they are very cunning about it, often going long distances from home when there are plenty of sheep close by. As a preventive measure, bells are re-good; not small ones, but three good sized bells for each hundred sheep. If, in spite of this precaution, a sheep is killed, say nothing, skin it and let the carcass lie in the same place. The first night after killing the dogs will not come, but the second night they will be on hand. Cut four or five-gashes in the shoulder of the dead sheep, put a small amount of first class strychnine in the gashes, and the next morning you will be sure to have dead dogs. Mr. R. has sometimes killed four dogs in one night. He adds that "it is well to keep the mouth shut," and concludes with the mention of a curious incident: "One morning I found a small yearling killed, with a small round hole eaten out of his fore shoulder. It puzzled me, I knew it was not a common dog. I told my neighbors to shut up their dogs. The second night after the killing, I put in strychnine, and the next morning I had the largest red fox I ever saw."

A Benton Harbor, Mich., cannery puts up twenty thousand cans of tomatoes daily.

important advantage of being Practical Experiences of Practical "Home" Keepers.

These select, original and practical contributions from so many ladies, have never before

Ten thousand copies were ordered before one copy came from the bindery. We have exclusive control of the book in this locality, and it can be obtained only

A Good Paper for Nothing!

The Southern Industries bi-weekly, third volume, 8 large quarto pages, 4 columns to the page, is an excellent paper, filled with truthful descriptions of the Southern country, its resources, capabilities, society, etc. It mirrors the true sentiments of both the North and South. It occupies a field distinct from any other paper. We have made such arrangements as enable us to offer the OBSERVER and Southern Industries both one year for two dollars, cash in advance. Subscriptions may begin any week.

The salt and ashes should be put upon a floor under a cover and mixed half and half. Every two weeks the heap must be stirred and mixed so that the salt will neutralize the elements of the ashes and the ashes absorb the saline properties of the salt. This mixture will do most good when sown in the "dry spell" in February or March—just as the young wheat begins to grow and spread. I hope the farmers will take the trouble to try this experiment on a small scale. The deeper the soil the more top-dressing it will take. If the soil is thin and the sub-soil slaty, one or two bushels will be plenty. If deep rich it has a deep red subsoil, 10 to 15 bushels per acre will pay.

A. E. BLUNT,
Mouse Creek, Tenn.

Sheep-killing dogs invariably attack the necks of their victims to sever the arteries and drink the blood, so an inventor has designed a collar with sharp projecting points, which effectually protect the sheep from his foe.

Egg Eating.

I wish to give your readers a little of my experience regarding egg eating. I once had a lot of very fine chickens, and thought a good deal of them, but after all the care I gave them they were mean enough to eat their eggs as soon as laid. Day after day I went to my coop for eggs, but in vain; I did not get so much as a sight of one. I tried almost every thing that I could think of, but still in vain. At last I thought I would play a trick on them, so I got an egg and broke a hole in the butt large enough to let the inside out. Then I mixed up some good strong mustard and filled it full putting a piece of shell over the part broken. I went to my coop and put the egg in the nest.
I had no sooner dropped the egg than one of my hens bounded on it like a cat on a mouse. She stuck her bill in it and dropped the egg on the floor (not waiting for me to retire). No sooner did it touch the floor than the rest of the fowls went for their share; they got it, all of them. They soon walked off, wiping their beaks against everything they came across. They left a little for manners' sake. It resulted (the joke), in my gathering their eggs the next day, and I have not had occasion to repeat the experiment until last week, when I tried it with the same result, and since then I gather my eggs daily.

Farming on a Big Scale.

Fiction shrinks before the magnificent facts in agriculture presented by the management of the Dalrymple farm in Minnesota. This year it was a broad golden plain of wheat heads, a plain twenty-five miles square. The yield will, it is estimated, average twenty five bushels to the acre. To harvest this grain, the expected amount of which will be over 400,000 bushels, employs fifty self-binders which cut and bind the grain at the rate of 700 acres per day. The reapers are drawn by 150 horses, and 200 men work in the field.
These figures are imposing enough, and read like an extract from an Aladdin-like tale. There is an other Dalrymple farm on the Red River which it is thought will produce 200,000 bushels of wheat, making for two farms 600,000 bushels, which with wheat worth $1 per bushel will bring $600,000.
This is the monarchical agriculture of only one farmer, but it is so great as to be almost incredible.
