THERE seems a necessity for a home for indigent lodgers in this city. Humanity demands it. The city lock-up and police station are not the places where the poor and needy unfortunate, who are found temporarily roaming the streets at night, should be taken. But a house built for no other purpose, and used for a home for indigent lodgers, would be a blessed thing during this cold weather, and would be valuable at all seasons.

GREAT BARGAINS AT BLUM & AMSON'S.—Everybody wishing to obtain bargains in dry goods, boots and shoes, clothing, hats and caps, should call at Blum & Amson's, on Eighth street, where can be found a large stock of any of the above named goods, which are being sold at ruinous prices. Remember the place, Eighth street, first building below Commercial avenue. 1-4-1m

MRS. ANNA LANG, Eighth street between Commercial and Washington avenues, has just received a large and varied stock of fall goods, and desires to call particular attention to her handsome assortment of ladies' and children's underwear, something new in this market. Her woolen drawers and leggins combined are also something new and the most comfortable thing for children in cold weather ever devised. Mrs. Lang also has a well selected assortment of hats, bonnets, ribbons, flowers, and notions of all sorts, all of which will be sold as cheap as can be found elsewhere in this market. 10-9-1m

WHILE the steamer Indiana, on her up trip, was at Lake Providence, a fire broke out in the recess. The mate of the boat discovered it. A hole was cut through the roof and the fire drowned with water. After the smoke had cleared away, it was found that the chambermaid had been burned to death, and a lot of bed clothing, furniture, &c., destroyed. How the fire originated is unexplained. The body of the chambermaid was buried by the officers of the boat at Chilcot City.

POPULAR LECTURE.—Rev. H. B. Thayer has been invited, and has consented to deliver his lecture entitled "SELF-MADE, OR THE ROYAL HIGHWAY," in the Presbyterian church of this city on MONDAY EVENING, JANUARY 13.

Under the auspices of the ladies of the Presbyterian church. As Mr. Thayer gives the entire proceeds to the Ladies Church Fund, it is hoped that all the friends of the church and society will improve this opportunity to hear this lecture, and in so doing contribute directly to a good cause and worthy object. 1-9-4

SOME choice music may be expected on Monday evening at the Presbyterian church. Mrs. Lansden, assisted by some of the best musical talent of the city, will sing before and after Mr. Thayer's lecture.

A FEW years ago there was no other way known to obtain the virtues of the leaves of various plants but by maceration in water, to make, as it is called, an infusion, or by using alcohol, and thus making a tincture. In either case one had to drink an indefinite amount of liquid to obtain a very small quantity of medical effects of the plants. How altered is this, however. The process of extracting all the valuable properties with none of the inert or injurious particles, from leaves, roots, barks, etc., has been brought to such perfection, that every ounce of extract is fully equal to an ounce of the raw material. In no preparation do we know of is this high concentration so admirably accomplished as in Parker's Compound Extract Buchu. No heat is used, therefore all the finer and volatile principles are fully preserved, the whole prepared "in vacuo," in the most careful manner, a product of rare excellence is obtained. Sold by druggists, everywhere.

The Qui Vive Coterie gave the fourth of their series of entertainments at the St. Charles hotel on Friday evening, and the large attendance and select assemblage were conclusive evidences of the unbounded popularity of the club. The record of their success is the courtesy and kind attention extended to their guests, whose enjoyment and pleasure are the main considerations of the Coterie. A grand masquerade will complete their series, and will be given at the St. Charles on Friday, February 14. Arrangements have been perfected for a varied assortment of costumes, superior to any ever brought to our city, and we feel assured that it will be the most brilliant of fair ever witnessed. The Coterie are firm in their determination to exclude any and all whose presence may prove the least objectionable, and to their numerous lady friends, who may contemplate appearing in mask, they extend the assurance that their associates on that occasion will be none but the associates of daily intercourse.

A WARM TIME.

A LIVELY ROW IN THE CITY COUNCIL.

Some time in August last, the city being in great need of nails, and Mr. Woodward being the only dealer in the city who had the kind wanted, on hand, the city controller bought from Mr. Gash, of Woodward's iron store, several hundred dollars worth. The committee on claims audited the bills, and the council voted that orders be drawn upon the treasury for the amount. Mayor Lansden, remembering the provision of the charter which prohibits any member of the council from making a contract with the city or selling goods to it, refused to sign the orders, and Mr. Gash has been deprived of the use of his money for many months. The mayor has been in the habit of signing Alderman Cunningham's orders, that alderman having a contract with the city for the use of the building used by the city clerk and council, but he could not be induced to sign Gash's scrip, he entertaining a shrewd suspicion that Mr. Woodward was the nail-seller. He compelled the controller to buy from other nail-dealers, who bought from Woodward, at a price advanced a dollar or two on the keg, making a handsome profit, but he wouldn't sign Gash's orders. He wanted to make a fearful example of our friend Woodward. On Friday night last a resolution was introduced into the council directing the city treasurer to receive the Gash scrip for taxes without his honor's signature. The mayor ruled the resolution out of order. The proposed action, if successful, would create a new liability. Mr. Woodward was of the opinion the mayor was wrong. Mr. Safford intimated that the mayor was a hair-splitter, and said it was nobody's business from whom Gash got the nails—that the city had used them and should pay for them. The mayor called Mr. Bearden to the chair, took the floor and made a speech supporting his peculiar position, and said that Mr. Woodward had made a good thing out of the city. Mr. Woodward asked his honor if that was any of his business, and demanded that the chair should call his honor to order for using personalities.

The mayor: I have got the floor. Sit down, sir. Mr. Woodward: I will not. The mayor: I will make you, sir. Mr. Bearden, in the chair, ruled that the mayor's language was out of order. Mr. Woodward insisted that the chair should compel the mayor to sit down, saying that he had spoken twice.

The chair ruled that the mayor had a right to the floor. The mayor, after a few more words, apologetic of his hasty language, resumed the chair, and an appeal was taken from the mayor's ruling on the pending resolution.

The appeal was sustained by a solid vote of the council, with the exception of Mr. Cunningham, the only member of the council who has a contract with the city, who voted to sustain the mayor's opinion that the charter prohibits such contracts and the reception of money by a member of the council for any article sold to the city.

A vote being taken on the resolution it was adopted by 9 yeas to 1 no, Mr. Woodward not voting. The mayor then ruled the whole proceeding, vote and all, out of order, saying that, under the new charter, it required a two-thirds vote to create liabilities. Mr. Taylor appealed from the ruling of the chair, saying: "This action creates no new liability, but is simply doing what the mayor had wrongfully and purposely omitted to do. The roll was called and Mr. Cunningham refused to vote. The mayor insisted that Mr. Cunningham should vote. 'Vote,' he said; 'if you have to vote no, why vote.' But he didn't. The appeal was sustained by a vote of 10 to 0. So the matter ended; but the mayor died hard.

Shinkle, quit her here on account of the ice, as they thought it was dangerous to run a boat through it. Capt. Shinkle took the wheel until she should reach Paducah.

Hiram Hill, the diver, made an examination of the sunken ferryboat J. N. Clark, and thinks she will prove a total loss. She is homed in by the ice, and when it moves it will take her with it.

The Indiana with a barge in tow came in from New Orleans and had to land at the lower end of town on account of the ice. She got out of fuel Friday just as she reached Island No. 1 and had to go over the river and hunt a wood pile, which detained her very much.

The towboat William Cowen left flying light for Louisville and will bring down a tow of coal as soon as the river will permit. It was reported yesterday that the steamer Florence Lee and Herr had been cut down by the ice near Cumberland island.

The Lawrence loaded for Cincinnati but has laid up to wait a clear river. The City of Cairo laid at the bank Friday night on account of the heavy ice. She started out yesterday morning for Louisville. Mr. Miller, her clerk, goes through by rail. The Tyrone brought in a fair trip of freight from Nashville. The Bee brought up two of her barges from Belmont yesterday.

The Glencoe, Joe Kinney and Belfast will load for New Orleans this week. Hiram Hill, after making an examination of the sunken General Buell, thinks that it will cost as much to repair her, in case she is raised, as it would to build a new boat. The Indiana discharged here, 309 blds sugar, 652 bbls molasses, 367 bbls rice and 2,058 green hides. Her log for the round trip is full of interesting reading for river reporters.
