A yellow fellow named Taylor seriously disturbed Elder Shores and his congregation on last Sunday. He will be arrested if found, as a warrant has been sworn out for him.

Edmund Smith, a colored man, was locked up in the jail for wife-beating last night. Smith is a stout young negro and his wife is old and feeble; he is in the habit of beating her unmercifully. Last night city attorney Pope caught him in the act and had him promptly locked up.

On Sunday night about 11 o'clock, Mr. W. G. Cary, who resides on the corner of Fourth and Walnut streets, heard an unusual noise in his stable. He got up from bed, procured his lantern, and when within about ten feet of the stable, a negro in his shirt sleeves ran out, and with one bound escaped over the fence. When Mr. Cary entered the stable, he found that his horse had been saddled and bridled, all ready to take a ride.

The man Taylor, who was arrested for disturbing the public and religious worship at Shores' church on Sunday last, had a hearing before Judge Bross yesterday and was acquitted. A majority of Elder Shores' church were in attendance at the trial. Jake Bradley was also there and sided with the rebellious portion of Shores' members. The meeting that was disturbed, according to the evidence, was only a business and not a religious meeting.

POLICE COURT.

Judge Bross presiding. There were nine cases brought before his honor yesterday morning, and all of them of the drunk and disorderly class.

"James Barry were you drunk or not?" was the question put to James by Pope.

"Yes, your honor, I came of a boat on Sunday and went to a saloon; from there two men took me to the lockup."

Jim was fined $2 and the cost. Barry said he left all his money in the saloon. He now goes to work on the streets.

James Williams said he was a little tight. The court informed him that it would not except that plea.

"What plea will you ask of me?" says Williams.

"Why a positive one, either guilty or not."

"Certainly, sir, I was drunk. How much is it?"

"Six dollars and seventy-five cents," was the answer.

Williams paid and left the court saying: "I bet you don't get me again soon."

Then came Ed Moran, who, when asked if he was guilty, said that he came to this city on Saturday from Tunnel Hill to draw his money, and he thought it was a shame to treat him in this style in a land of strangers and away from his friends. Ed's sentence is that he labor on the streets for 8 days and be fed on bread and water.

Scott and Carr are a brace of country lads from the rural precincts of Unity, where they are in the habit of drinking bad whiskey sold in that locality by the pint or quart.

While here on Sunday they visited several of our saloons, and being thirsty they drank a little too much, for which they paid $13.50, remarking as they left the room, "That much money would have bought two barrels of flour."

Joe Bowers was called next for being drunk and disorderly.

"What have you to say about it?" asked Pope.

"I don't know what I was arrested for; in fact I don't know anything about it and I would like to see the officer that arrested me."

Officers were sworn and the case was made out against poor Joe, who not having any surplus cash with him, sent the officer to his boss, where he collected $10.50, which liquidated his indebtedness to the city.

A notorious Italian by the name of Jerry Callahan, reading of the prices current for drinks in this city, the cheapness of the thing induced him to get on a bust, and in the meantime his friends all disappeared, and when the Judge told him $9.75 or seven days on the streets, Jerry said, "on the streets I goes." So he did.

Levi Briles, an African brute who lives on Twenty-eighth street, who could not find any man to use his dukes on, thought he would practice on two children belonging to John Anderson. The evidence clearly evinced that Levi acted brutish in several respects and ought to have been transported to some country where nothing but dumb brutes and animals reign supreme. His fine was $17.25, which he paid, laughing as he left the court.

Jack Kelly and Fred Debring entered into a co-partnership on Sunday morning for the purpose of engaging in aiding the temperance cause of putting whiskey out of the reach of the people. They had not followed the calling long before they failed in the effort; that is, they became entirely unable to navigate the broad sidewalk and were taken to the calaboose. They now take bread and water in theirs, and are doing day duty repairing the streets and sidewalks.

The Rev. Mr. Coan on Sabbath evening last, delivered his farrow sermon as pastor of the Church of the Redeemer. A very large congregation assembled to hear the sermon, which was preached from 1st Phil., 27th verse:

"Only let your conversation be as it becometh the Gospel of Christ, that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one mind, striving together for the faith of His gospel."

The discourse was an able one, highly pleasing in all parts to the members of Mr. Coan's church and one which has the effect to deepen their reluctance to bid him farewell. On entering his vestry yesterday morning, Mr. Coan found on his table a large album, presented to himself by the ladies of his church, and a very beautiful silver card basket for Mrs. Coan. The Church of the Redeemer has occasion to regret the going of Mr. Coan, and the citizens generally will witness his departure with regret.

HABEAS CORPUS.

John Jones was brought down from the Metropolis jail on a writ of habeas corpus yesterday. It appears that a man named Jones bought a team sometime since of Jones and not having the money to pay for it gave Jones a mortgage on the team. Last week he packed up and left the country, Jones followed him, catching up with him at Charleston, Missouri. Taking possession of the team he started for his home in Massac county. Weaver however, followed him had him arrested on a charge of highway robbery committed in the state of Missouri. The county justice who tried the case, committed Jones to the Metropolis jail without bail. Then came McCartney, not in the role of prosecution as usual, but as attorney for Jones. Deputy Sheriff H. J. Obermark brought Jones here, and the case was heard at chambers before Judge Baker, who ordered that Jones be released from the custody of the jailor.

A CASE OF MISPLACED CONFIDENCE.

Last winter, H. Levy, doing business on the levee, procured the services of a man calling himself William Freund, comparatively a stranger to him, to travel through the adjoining country and purchase furs and hides for his house in this city; often giving him as much as $300 at a time to be used for the above purpose.

On the 6th of February Freund arrived in Cairo on an extended tour in southeast Missouri, but brought no furs over the river, stating that hearing of the ice in the river and the uncertainty of crossing it he left $250 worth of furs at a Mr. Berry's house with whom Mr. Levy is well acquainted. On that same day Freund received $260 more from Levy for the avowed purpose of making a trip through the southern counties of this state, leaving Cairo that evening. Nothing had been heard of him up to Friday last. Mr. Levy went over the river to Mr. Berry's, and to his astonishment, found that Freund had not left any furs, nor anything else at his house. Now, Levy thinks he smells a large mice, and offers a reward of $100 for the arrest and detention of his friend Freund. Levy says he has business with him.

CONDITION OF THE RIVERS. The Ohio continues declining at this point at a rapid rate. There is seven feet in the Mississippi to St. Louis.

Special dispatches to the BULLETIN report the condition of the rivers at various places.

BUSINESS AND WEATHER. Tonnage is still in demand and the wharves, warehouses and the levee are filled with freight waiting shipment. The weather was mild and pleasant.

MISCELLANEOUS. Mr. Joseph Harmon, a well known flat-boat pilot and brother of Capt. Al. Harmon, died in this city, at the residence of his brother, last Saturday night of cerebral spinal meningitis, after a long and severe spell of suffering. When he was first attacked by the disease he was piloting a flatboat down the river and on its arrival here he was taken to his brother's home and the best medical aid procured, but after about two weeks the disease terminated fatally. Before he went on the river he was the carrier of the Rockport Democrat for a number of years. His remains were sent upon the Emporer in charge of his brother-in-law and will be interred at Grand View, Indiana.

The Eckert made another attempt to turn the Glasgow's sunken barge, but after parting all her lines and doing no good she quit, and will wait until the river falls about 19 feet more, when she will try it again.

Three coal barges, one loaded with coke and the others empty, have been beached on the Kentucky shore above the ferry landing, by the fast falling river, and are quite a distance from the water.

Messrs. Linton and Orr, proprietors of the Alice Dean wharfboat after a short career have quit the business, and their wharfboat is now being loaded for New Orleans and will be towed down by some boat.

The Indiana had a good trip, and filled out here. Nearly every ton of her freight is for New Orleans, and she has less way freight than any boat that has passed down for some time. She loaded at Mount Vernon.

The Quickstep came in with the best trip that the Evansville packets have brought in for some time.

The Simpson Horner went South with a large ton of coal.

The Diamond and Coal City passed up with empty coal barges.

The City of Helena and St. Joseph had good trips. The Helena came out drawing seven feet—all that was in the river.

The City of Quincy arrived here Saturday evening soon after our report had gone to press.

The Jim Fisk brought in a good trip from Paducah.

Mr. W. S. Edson, agent for Wm. H. Brown, arrived here yesterday, after a three weeks' business trip to New Orleans and Red river.

PHIL. HOWARD, STEAMBOAT BUTCHER

City National Bank Building. Special attention paid to orders from steam boats night or day.
