THE BULLETIN.

The Missouri legislature has adjourned.

The servant girls of Ottawa have organized a trades-union.

The Arkansas senate has passed a bill making liquor dealers responsible in damages for anyone who may get drunk on liquor purchased from them.

In the state senate on Thursday, the compulsory education bill, by a vote of twenty-five to fifteen, was defeated by striking out the enacting clause.

Commodore Wm. K. Latimer, the oldest officer on the retired list of the United States navy, died at the Carrollton hotel, Baltimore, on Saturday morning, aged 80 years. He was born in Annapolis, and he and Hon. Beverly Johnson were classmates in college. He was appointed by President Jefferson midshipman from Maryland on the 15th of November, 1809, and from that he went through all the grades of the navy. He was commissioned lieutenant February 4, 1815; commandant March 2, 1823; captain July 17, 1831; and commodore July 19, 1842, at which time he was retired.

The London papers publish accounts of a sleeping girl at Turville, who has been in a trance-sleep for ninety-two years. From the twenty-ninth of March 1871, till now, which time she has never once voluntarily moved from any position in which she has been laid, has never opened her eyes to look about her, nor uttered any sound or made any signs that she was conscious of living. Her breathing can be detected by holding the cheek to her mouth, and the faint fluttering of her heart by placing the hand over the region of the vital organs.

The members of congress who voted for the salary grab are receiving severe treatment from all sources. It is not known that there are a dozen papers in the whole country that speak of the action otherwise than in the bitterest terms of condemnation, and the legislatures of perhaps half the states have passed resolutions expressive of their disapprobation. The legislature of Michigan is the last that has been heard from. Its resolutions condemn in round terms the congressmen who supported the steal, and incidentally administer a rap over the knuckles to those who voted against it, but subsequently quailed and got away with the results.—[Chicago Times.]

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN'S IN-SANITY.

Whatever may be the conclusion of an examination of lunatics inquired into in the case of George Francis Train, there has not been for years in our minds a doubt of his insanity. Early from his youth appeared a strangely gifted intellect and physical qualities of a eccentricity increased with years, until his eccentricities in a sort of epigrammatic incoherence that, like the edge of a fractured mirror, showed the shining qualities of fragmentary reason. Train was greatly offended when, a year or two ago, we said he was insane, and attributed it to a malicious intent to injure him in the estimation of the tens of thousands who, he was fully persuaded in his own mind, intended to cast their votes for him as president of the United States in 1872. But it was the most charitable view to take of his mental condition. It was impossible to read the fantastic lectures and limping verses which he wrote and printed with a prodigious waste of ink and paper, without being painfully impressed with the conviction that they were the product of a brilliant mind, but a disordered brain. We have had no character before the public who in his relation to modern ideas more closely resembled the Knight of La Mancha in his relation to the age of chivalry. Both were and are exaggerated types of the prevailing ideas that animated the actions of men in the respective periods. The one was not less amusing to the high-born dames of Castile than the other to the curious loving people of America. The painful difference is the one was a dictatorial character, while the other is a real personage. Mr. Train is of a class of monomaniacs which physicians experienced in insanity, and familiar with the multitude of its manifestations, fully understood. National enough on many subjects, even shrewdly calculating, the moment the one topic upon which the deranged mind has dwelt is touched, the unbalanced intellect flies off in a tangent. How the idea found its lodging-place in Train's mind that he had any prospects as a presidential candidate it is impossible to say. It is certain, however, that he had the insane root. He proclaimed his prospective candidacy throughout Europe and wherever he went in the United States. As a martyr in the cause of Ireland's freedom, he saw the reward for his trials and tribulations in the presidency. It would insure him the Irish vote. He gallantly rushed to the advocacy of the cause of woman suffrage, believing that it would secure to him an influence second to none in its power when socially or politically exerted. These were convictions, honestly entertained, no doubt, which gave the initial impulse to his movements; but he came at last to associate his part in these affairs with his own hopes of recognition as a leader of men. He brooded over the presidency, the great revolution he would bring about when called by the acclamation of his admiring countrymen to fill the presidential chair. Since his incarceration in the Tombs for championing Woodhull and Claflin's incursions, which have been printed in a Toledo paper, have been more scatter-brained and extravagant than ever. So chaotic a jumble of wit and blaspemy, sentiment and humor, coarseness and refinement has rarely if ever found its way to print. He proclaimed his prospective candidacy through the Knight of the Sorrowful Figure, his reason may be restored to him, and his intellectual vision become clear before the hour arrives when his lease expires and the tenant gives up his dwelling place.

THE SENATE BRIEFLY DISCUSS THE APPOINTMENT OF COL. CASEY.

GOV. MCENRY ADVISES THE ORGANIZATION OF TAX-RESISTING ASSOCIATIONS.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—There was a brief discussion today in the executive session of the senate on the nomination of Col. Casey United States collector at New Orleans, but no vote was taken.

ADVISED TO ORGANIZE. NEW ORLEANS, March 21.—A brief letter signed by John McEnry, governor of Louisiana, advised the organization of tax resisting associations throughout the state.

THE PRISONER. In the morning was very faint. He partook of some coffee, but ate nothing. Rev. Drs. Tyng and Schoemaker attended him. He was engaged in devotional exercises till a few minutes before the execution.

HE WALKED TO THE SCAFFOLD. Accompanied by the sheriff, Dr. Tyng read a few psalms, after which

THE BOLT WAS DRAWN. The unfortunate man gave only a slight struggle. There were a few perceptible movements of the lower limbs, and the execution was over. Shortly after

THE BODY. Was taken down, and delivered to his friends, who will bury it in Greenwood cemetery.

THE SPECTATORS. About 300 persons received permission to witness the execution. Application for tickets of admission, however, reached nearly 6,000. Some 500 police were stationed around the Tombs to preserve order.

THE DOOMED MAN'S HOPE. The doomed man seemed to have hope of commutation up to the last moment.

TURKISH GALLIES. The apparatus devised for the execution of Foster, consists of a straight beam having iron pulley wheels, to which is attached a heavy weight. This weight is suspended about 6 feet from the ground, the object being in this way to break the neck of the culprit by the suddenness of the movement.

NINE MURDERERS. Have been put to death on this gallows erected for Foster.

FURTHER PARTICULARS. At 12 minutes past 9 o'clock Foster left his cell on the march to the scaffold. As he entered the yard Foster gave one quick, startled glance around, but instantly recovered himself, and walked with a tolerably firm step to the gallows. He was attended by the sheriff and under sheriff, and was closely followed by Rev. Dr. Tyng and Rev. Mr. Shoemaker, the former of whom prayed as he walked.

On reaching the gallows, Foster of his own accord placed himself beneath the noose, his face looking very pale beneath the black cap, and grew paler every moment. As Dr. Tyng prayed he bowed his head and covered his face with his right hand. For six minutes Dr. Tyng continued prayer, and it was evident Foster was on the point of swooning. The sheriff quietly signalled Dr. Tyng to finish as quickly as possible, and advancing shook Foster by the hand. Dr. Tyng then bade him farewell, and at 9:17 a.m. the signal was given and Foster was jerked violently into the air. Foster was a heavy man, and for once the neck was broken, and the spectators were spared the terrible spectacle of a man writhing in the throes of strangulation. The heart ceased to beat in rather less than 12 minutes from the time the weight fell, and in all probability Foster died without a pain.

ANOTHER EXECUTION. BOSTON, March 21.—James McElhany, who murdered his wife, was executed in the Suffolk jail here at 11:20 o'clock this a.m. There were 400 spectators. The prisoner walked firmly to the scaffold. He left $5,000 worth of property to his child.

THE FORGERS ARRESTED AT HAVANA. HAVANA, March 20.—On the strength of a cable dispatch from London the police here have arrested Austin Byron Bidwell, alias Warren, his wife and Harry Nun, a servant. Bidwell is supposed to be the principal operator in the recently discovered frauds on the Bank of England, and answers to the description telegraphed by the London police. Travelling with an American passport, he went through France into Spain and reached Santander, where he embarked on the French steamer for Havana. The steamer arrived here Saturday when the whole party were taken into custody. Bidwell and the servant Nun, are in jail, and forbidden to hold communication with any one or each other. The lady was permitted to remain at the hotel, where she is under the surveillance of the police. Although there is no extradition treaty between Spain and Great Britain, the authorities will send the whole party back to London if sufficient proof is furnished. A detective is expected from England to identify and take charge of the prisoners. It is stated that a confession of Noyes, the confederate, now under arrest in London, fully implicates Bidwell in the forgeries.

WEATHER REPORT.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Probabilities for Saturday in Western Gulf states rising temperature, southerly winds and cloudy weather. In Eastern Gulf and South Atlantic states westerly winds and partly cloudy weather. For Ohio Valley and Middle coast cloudy weather, clearing away Saturday evening, with cold northerly westerly winds.
