THOMAS JONES, Sergt. S. S., U. S. A.

Dull.

Chief of Police Williams reports the dog business extremely dull yesterday.

Fine.

Pilsener is good, Schiltz is good, but Jaekel is one of the best beer keepers in the country, and he keeps Schiltz.

Ice.

The ice dealers of this city are about to enter into a contest to decide who is able to sell ice at the lowest prices.

Ente.

The train on the Illinois Central railroad, which arrives at one o'clock and forty minutes, did not get here until half-past four yesterday afternoon, being nearly three hours late.

Wanted.

A man to canvass for sale of Howe sewing machines. Apply to D. F. Bennett, corner of Commercial and Ninth streets. 6-4-11.

The Reception.

The High School reception on Friday night was a very pleasant affair. The parents of the pupils were out in force, and Prof. and Mrs. Alvord used every exertion to make the company enjoy it.

Reward.

A liberal reward will be paid for the recovery of the body of John H. Morse, who suicided by throwing himself in the river from Phillips' wharf-boat on Friday, 4th inst. W. M. WILLIAMS, 31.

Decided.

The case of the City National Bank vs. Thomas Lewis in the Supreme Court, was decided at the present term against Lewis. There is a strange history connected with this case which we may publish.

In Town.

Mr. W. Walker, who is connected with the extensive clothing firm of A. Samuels, manufacturer of and dealer in men's, boys' and youths' clothing, cloths, cassimeres and tailor trimmings, at 413 Main street, St. Louis, is in the city soliciting orders for his establishment. He is a clever, courteous and business-like gentleman.

Religious.

—Rev. W. W. Farris will preach at the Presbyterian church this morning and evening, at the usual hours.

—Religious services this morning and evening as usual at the church of the Redeemer, conducted by Pastor Gilbert.

—Dr. Gebhart, of Metropolis, will deliver a lecture at the Liberal Religious hall on Sunday evening, June 6th. The Doctor is purely scientific, and will not fail to interest all who may hear him.

—The Wittig-Goebble controversy. A difficulty occurred sometime ago between Ed. Wittig and F. Goebble, in which Goebble received some injury at the hands of Wittig. To be revenged, Goebble published a card, in which he charged that Wittig owed him money, was untrustworthy and so forth. Wittig denies that he owes the Professor anything, and now demands that Goebble shall mention the amount due. We don't believe anything is due, and that the Professor's action has been prompted by anger. Wittig will vindicate himself, and has already commenced legal proceedings to that end.

—Police Court. —Business in Judge Bross' police court was lively yesterday, and is summed up as follows: —John Talbot was arrested by Officer La Hue because he was drunk. When charged with the crime before His Honor he pleaded guilty, as any penitent being should, and was fined two dollars and costs. He went to the lock-up, not because he didn't have the money to pay his fine, but for the reason that he didn't care about spending his hard earned wealth for the sake of keeping out of jail two days.

—Andrew Saunders was next. He had been arrested for the same misdemeanor, and was fined two dollars and costs. He, like Talbot, having pleaded guilty to the charge, was sent to jail for two days, because he wouldn't pay.

—The next on the docket was the trial of four dark-skinned individuals, named Walter Mathews, who has just been let out of the county jail; James Woods, Henry Thompson and William Lane, who were arrested by Officers Sheehan and Shuster, for stealing $1 25 from a negro named Anderson, and $2 50 from another negro named El Frazer, in Bedford's saloon, on Friday night. A no verdict was entered as to Mathews, and after the evidence in the case was heard, Woods and Thompson were discharged, Lane being held to bail in the sum of $200, to answer the charge at the next term of the circuit court.

—James Wood and Henry Thompson were then tried for vagrancy and attempting to pick the pockets of a negro named Male Turner. They were adjudged guilty by His Honor, who made them "feel like they were shot" by fining them fifty dollars and costs each. They will board at the lock-up and work on the streets for twenty-six days each.

—Elias Coleman was next, having been arrested by Officer Sheehan for disturbing the peace by violent and offensive conduct and threatening language. The defendant was found guilty and fined five dollars and costs, which he paid and went his way.

THE LATE STUIDE.

"Worthy of Life."

The suicide of John H. Morse, of Cincinnati, at this city, from the outside guard of Phillips' wharf-boat, will be sad news to his mother and brothers residing in Cincinnati. No one here, save the two colored men who saw him jump overboard, recollects to have seen him in the city. He came to the outside guard of the boat just after noon and asked these colored men to take him across the river. They had no skiff and told him they could not do so. He then very deliberately took off his coat and hat and laid them on the coal box under the steps, and saying, "Well, good-bye, George," sprang far out into the stream and never rose again. The two negroes were horrified and shouted for help, bringing quite a number of people to the spot. But they were of no help. Poor Morse was already drowned.

Chief of police Capt. Billy Williams, took charge of his coat and hat. In the pocket of the coat were found a letter directed to Henry C. Morse, No. 82 Pearl street, Cincinnati, of which the following is a copy:

"CINCINNATI, June 3, 1875.
To the Family Mother and Brothers— You must forgive me, I don't try to labor under any aberration of the mind. I just do it because I am tired of life. You can look for my body as I shall leave a tag on my way out. Give me as cheap a burial as you can. My love to all, and ask your forgiveness. From your son, and to my brothers,
JOHN H. MORSE,
237 Hopkins street, Cincinnati."

"P. S.—Keep it for a couple of days before you show it, as I may show up."
JOHN H. MORSE.

In his pocket, also, was an open note, which read as follows:
"My name is John H. Morse. I live at 237 Hopkins street, below Baymiller. Also have a brother at Weatherly's store, at Fifth and Vine streets, and one at Boston's, 82 Pearl street.
JOHN H. MORSE.
I have some clothes around on the levee at Herbert's saloon. Whoever gets them can keep them, as they are of little use to me now.
JOHN H. MORSE,
237 Hopkins street, Cincinnati."

Capt. Williams made inquiry at Herbert's saloon, but no clothes had been left there and no one recollects the young man. He also wrote to Mr. Henry C. Morse, enclosing the letter referred to above.

The colored men who saw the young man, say that he was not under the influence of liquor, nor did he look as though he had been of dissipated habits, and the cause of his desperate act is wrapped in mystery.

WHEELER'S ADDRESS.

To the High School Graduating Class.

On Friday Afternoon, June 4th.

Young Ladies and Gentlemen of the Class of '75: You have finished the work allotted you here, and soon will cross the dividing line between the theoretic and practical. You are about to cross the threshold of these academic halls, never to return, as students. The toil, the pleasures, the joys and the pains of school life are behind, while the world, duty, and reality are all before you. My own experience is, in memory, fresh to-day, and this enables me to enter into your hopes, to feel the swelling of your very hearts with ambitious zeal, and to share your fears. Coming from one who has occupied the place you do to-day, and gone deep into that which to you is the unknown, untried beyond, a few practical suggestions will, I trust, be received by you in that spirit of kindness in which they are spoken.

If you have been indulging in visions and fancies, it is high time to dispel them. You are just entering upon an important contest. This great battlefield is stretched out before you, and fairly bristles with glittering bayonets. If you would win you must fight; and here let me say, you had better die than not to conquer. An early grave is better far than a long life of ignominious failure.

In this contest you will meet the tried veteran, the mighty army in brigades and divisions, those whom study and preparation have made strong and powerful; and you must strike heavy blows, for such you will receive. I speak not upon information but from actual experience, when I tell you the contest is hot and terrible indeed. I do not wish to alarm you, or throw across your pathway a spectre or a shadow. I wish to write upon your hearts and minds the great cardinal truth that not one of the human family lives by chance—that life is real and earnest—that the world is not your debtor.

"In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground." If you had not already learned the lesson, I beg you to do so before you go hence—that there is dignity and nobility in labor. Your advantages only afford you opportunity. What point you will reach, what height gain, depends upon yourselves. Everything of value is the representative of labor. Therefore mental or physical labor is your true destiny, unless you would be justled along with the pauper throng in society whose lives are blanks, and in whose death there is no loss. Are you ashamed to toil? Are you ashamed of the tokens and titles of honest labor, and envious of the flaunting robes of imbecile idleness and vanity? It is treason to nature—it is impiety to heaven—it is breaking heaven's great ordinance. Toil, I repeat—till either of the brain, of the heart or of the hand—is the only true manhood and womanhood, the only true nobility.

Society is not a little at fault for many false notions and teachings in this respect. Within its pale, how many theories or false theories, vain notions and pernicious ideas. Ignorant of the true standard of manhood and womanhood, filled with false pride, usually uneducated, they teach that labor is debasing, that those who labor owe an apology to their fellow-men for so doing. These are the vultures of society. Should such teachers of false doctrine seek to sow such foul seed in your hearts, I beg you will defend your manhood and womanhood against all such attacks. It is a good thing to remember, that the man or woman who does not esteem you more highly for your honest toil and labor, is not worthy the name of friend.

I say, then, meet duty sternly, deal with it honestly, and whatsoever your hands find to do, do it with your might. The feudal system left a heritage, upon which sordid labor, and gentlemen spent their lives in fighting and feasting, but, thanks to Christianity, thanks to the common school, this opprobrium of toil is done away.

There is one other proposition. While you live, you must live by right or by fraud. There is no intermediate ground. If you add something to the world's store-house; if you enrich her treasures, you live by right. If you continually take, and return nothing, you live by fraud. You will, at times, be weary. The pathway, winding up to the portals of knowledge and fame, will be steep and rugged. You may totter for years, and fall to catch a glimpse of her cloistered goddess—but still persevere.

"Faint not, heart of man! though years were slow These have been those, that from the deepest caves And cells of night and darkness below— Tossing down dashing of the ocean waves— Down, farther down than gold lies hid, have men's."

A quenchless hope, and watch'd their time and burst.

On the bright day, like waters from the graves!

We shall watch you with tender anxiety. For you we hope everything. Your years spent here will be a golden chain of memories to you. Keep it bright. Recur to them often. Your teachers—those who have led you along to this time, have a claim upon your nobler, better natures. I charge you, by the purest affection you have, that you disappoint us not.

These certificates of honor are awarded you by the Board of Education. You have won them by completing the course of study prescribed, and by having exhibited upon examination a high degree of proficiency therein. Receive them as a certificate of your graduation here, and as your passport into that great workshop, where society, the church and the State demand your services.

And as you are tried in the crucible of the world, may you be refined, like unto pure gold, so that you may lead noble, useful lives; and at their close may you each stand complete in the love of Him who will guide and sustain you in all good works.
