How Mr. Lincoln Made a Match.

It was about a year before the fall of Richmond, when both North and South seemed tottering to ruin, that a young lady, who had known Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln for years, visited Washington. She was an exceptionally sensible, warm-hearted, refined woman, gifted with a wonderful voice and a graceful figure, but she was very homely. She called at the White House, and when she had gone with his wife into a private room, Mr. Lincoln expressed his surprise to a friend that "some good man had not been lucky enough to marry her."

"L—" herself would be much happier if she were a wife and mother."

A few moments later Major C—, a volunteer officer, thoroughly respected by the President, and a bachelor, came into his study. Mr. Lincoln looked at him thoughtfully.

"What are you going to do when the war is over, C—?" he asked suddenly.

"I don't know, I suppose," was the startled reply.

"There it is in the room," a frank girlish laugh was heard at the moment. "No, you can't go to seek it now, business first. But there it is."

That evening there was a reception at the White House. The President beckoned to Major C—.

"Listen!" he said.

A lady whom they could not see because of the crowd, was singing in a voice of great beauty and sweetness, some gay song. The Major would have moved forward, but Mr. Lincoln detained him, his eyes twinkling with shrewd fun.

"What a bit!" he said. "Don't look at her face yet."

Presently she sang a ballad with such pathos that the Major's eyes grew dim.

"Now go. She's as good and true as her song."

The good word of Mr. Lincoln probably influenced both parties. In a few months they were married, and the union proved a most happy one.

"I did one wise thing in 1864," Mr. Lincoln said, rubbing his chin, as he was wont when pleased: "I made that match."

Oil City Derrick: Every day we have evidence that the small boy has no soul. The other day a crowd gathered around a farmer whose wagon load of butter and eggs was fast in a mud-hole, and while some suggested that he pull his horse free, and others that he pull him away, the ever present small boy yelled, "It's no use, mister. Yer old horse ain't stout enough. Take him out an' hitch in a roll of yer butter."

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility, and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellow-men. Accented by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, he will send free of charge to any who desire it this receipt with full directions for preparing and using it. German, French and English. Sent by mail by address with stamp naming this paper, W. W. Sherer, 149 Powers Street, Rochester, New York.

Through a Banjo into a Man's Heart.

Says the Lynchburg Virginian of Nov. 30th: "A young man by the name of Martin was shot and killed in Johnson county, Tenn., last Friday night. He was at the house of a neighbor by the name of Harrison Osborne, when the latter committed the deed. Martin was a French and English. Sent by mail by address with stamp naming this paper, W. W.
