

GOVERNOR HAWKINS has now canvassed more than half of East Tennessee. He has fully met the expectations of his most sanguine friends and supporters. As we have said often before, his administration has been clean and so free from faults that it is not required to defend it. No Governor in the history of the State has done more to uphold the honor and integrity of Tennessee than Alvin Hawkins. The main question with which he has had to deal has been the question of State credit. From the day he delivered his inaugural address down to his latest official utterance, he has faithfully and ably carried out the policy formulated in his canvass before the people two years ago.

Alvin Hawkins has dealt honestly with the people. He has done what he promised he would do. He has done all that it was possible for him to do under the circumstances. He has been and is an able chief magistrate. He has been honest and candid. He is entitled to an endorsement at the hands of the people of Tennessee. There is no reason why every Republican in the State should not vote for him for a second term. There is no reason why State credit Democrats should not support him. If every one in the State who believes he should be re-elected will vote for him, his majority will be larger in 1882 than it was two years ago.

WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, September 6.—Gen. Sherman has asked that Major General John M. Schofield be ordered to San Francisco to relieve Major General Crook McDowell of command of the military division of the Pacific and that Gen. McDowell be ordered to his home in New York, preparatory to his retirement from active service in October next. The matter will not be acted upon until the return of Secretary Lincoln.

Yellow Fever.

WASHINGTON, September 7.—Surgeon-General of the Marine Hospital service received the following reports from the yellow fever districts, dated yesterday:

Brownsville, Texas, September 7.—Forty nine new cases of yellow fever were reported and two deaths in the past twenty four hours. There are two cases fifteen miles above on the river. Established a quarantine station at Santa Marra, with quarters, wood and water for fifty or sixty people; will insist on ten days' detention, with thorough fumigation. No coast to the service. Arroyo cordon bids fair to confine the disease. We are not allowed to send mail to Panama, the first railroad station on the main route.

Chapter of Casualties.

New York, September 6.—A dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., reports that at 7 o'clock this morning three men were killed.

Boston, September 6.—A special from Iliou, N. Y., says: The fast mail east on the New York Central Railroad due here at 10 p. m. yesterday, struck an omnibus as it was crossing to another train. Albert Rodway, a dry goods merchant, aged 45, was thrown 100 feet and killed.

In a Critical Condition.

New York, September 7.—A cigar box was found floating in North River yesterday, which contained a male fetus. In the box was a hotel soap-dish and a match box, and wrapper bearing the name and address of Geo. C. Davidson, room 121, Fifth Avenue Hotel. The police found Davidson at that address, and he admitted that his wife, whom he had married six weeks ago, had given birth to a child in her room, and that on the advice of Dr. Theodore Y. Kenny, of Paterson, N. J., who attended his wife, he had disposed of the fetus in the manner named, the paper bearing the address being inadvertently used as a wrapper.

Political.

NEWARK, N. J., September 7.—The Democratic convention nominated Jewett W. Adams for Governor by acclamation. Hon. George W. Cassedy was nominated for Congress and Col. M. N. Stean for Justice of the Supreme Court.

Cincinnati Exposition

CINCINNATI, September 6.—The Exposition was formally opened today by Gov. Foster. The ceremonies embraced a grand street parade, one feature of which was a series of tableaux cars representing ten epochs, beginning with Cincinnati as it was, and ending with Cincinnati of today.

Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, September 6.—La Libertad, the ministerial organ, publishes articles this morning strongly advocating a commercial treaty with the United States.

MINOR DISPATCHES.

TORONTO, September 6.—Hanlan has challenged Ross, Courtney, and Lee to row three miles for $25,000 and the championship of the world, any where between Washington and Boston, and within two months from the signing of the article, and two weeks to alternate each race.

A New Gold Mine Discovered.

GALVESTON, September 7.—The News El Paso special says: Three young men discovered a gold mine sixty miles north of this place in the Ogea Mountain. The News fully confirmed that a piece of ore weighing two pounds contains $150 of precious metal. A shaft has been sunk seven feet to the vein, which is three feet wide. A ton of such ore would be worth $100,000. Every one is wild with excitement.

FLOPPED AGAIN.

THE NASHVILLE AMERICAN REVERTS TO COLYAR'S CONTROL, Resumes its Support of Bate, but Scratches the Platform.

Special Dispatch to the Chronicle.

NASHVILLE, September 6.

The American in the morning will say: "To the end of the canvass the American will do all that may reasonably be required of a party journal, for the election of General Bate. The support given to the dissenting wing of the Democratic party for the last few weeks is explained in another column. An intelligent public will appreciate the right and the propriety of the owners in the surrender and in the restoration of the control of the paper upon the facts stated. The support given to General Bate is cordial and earnest, and none the less because we may not agree with him in every respect on the platform. General Bate probably has a confidence in setting the debt upon the basis of the platform that we can't have, and we may have views about an executed contract different from General Bate. Though the question cannot arise unless the debt shall be funded. But this difference comes from independence of thought without which no man is worthy of public confidence. The State debt and its early settlement are matters of considerable moment and we regret that we can't see the end through this platform. But not to support General Bate because of this difference about the platform would, in our view, be aiding in the election of a Republican Governor. This we are not willing to do.

Yellow Fever.

Medical Services COME.

Health Officer, Goodhue, Deputy Collector.

PENSACOLA, Fla., September 7.—No new cases, but one death reported today. The end is seemingly near.

R. C. WHITE, Acting Assistant Surgeon.

Advices to the National Board of Health from Pensacola are, that up to date, there have been in Pensacola 21 cases of yellow fever, 8 deaths, and 6 cases remain under treatment.

SAN FRANCISCO, September 7.—A dispatch from Bakersfield, California, says: Two car loads of sick Chinamen arrived here today. Several of them were in a dying condition, and one had died on the journey. They were from an advanced body of railroad laborers. The rumor that their disease was yellow fever caused so much excitement and fear that a coroner's jury could not be found to sit on the deceased. It is not known what the disease is, but the report of its being yellow fever is not authenticated.

Railroad Accident.

EASTON, Pa., September 7.—A freight train had shifting engine collided at Delaware Station late yesterday afternoon. Both engines and several cars were wrecked. Celeste Monte, one of the oldest watchmen on the road, who was riding on the freight engine, was jammed head foremost into the fire-box and burnt to a crisp.

Star Route Cases.

WASHINGTON, September 5.—A great crowd thronged the Criminal Court room today because of the announcement that R. G. Ingersoll's turn to speak for the defense had arrived. Mr. Ingersoll began by asking the jury to understand that he was as much opposed to official corruption as any man in the world, and that he had not one word to say in defence of any man who he believed had robbed the treasury. He wanted the jury to understand that he was not defending, nor excusing, nor endeavoring to palliate in the slightest, dishonesty in any public official.

WASHINGTON, September 6.—Mr. Ingersoll resumed his argument in the Star Route trial to-day, and after some desultory discussion with the Court, he addressed himself to the examination of Walsh's testimony, though he thought it had been ground to powder already.

Col. Ingersoll then went on to argue that, assuming Walsh's testimony to be true, it affected none of the defendants except Brady, and only went to show that he had received bribes, not that he was concerned in the conspiracy. The same line of argument would apply to Sierdell's confession. It bound nobody but himself, and was not a confession of his complicity in the conspiracy. He did not confess that he was guilty of a single overt act.

Col. Ingersoll then took up and replied to the arguments of the prosecution based on the subjects of extravagance in the Star Route service.

He closed as follows: I appeal to you for my clients because the evidence shows that they are honest men. I appeal to you for my client, Stephen W. Dorsey, because evidence shows that he is a man with an intellectual horizon and mental sky, a man of genius, generous and honest. Yet this prosecution, which represents the majesty of the republic, representing only real republicanism that ever existed, have asked you not only to violate the law of the land, but also the law of nature. They have mangled nature, they have laughed at mercy, they have trampled on the holiest human ties, and have even made light because the wife in this trial has sat by her husband's side. There is a painting in the House, a painting of desolation, of despair and love; it represents "Night of the Crucifixion." The world is wrapped in shadow, the stars are dead; and yet in the darkness is seen a kneeling form. It is Mary Magdalene, with loving lips and hands pressed against the bleeding feet of Christ; the skies were never dark enough, nor starless enough; stars were never flicker enough nor wild enough; quick bolts of heaven were never hurled enough, and the arrows of slander never flew thick enough to drive this noble woman from her husband's side. [Applause]

And so it is, in all of the human speech, the holiest word is "woman."

While Mr. Ingersoll was delivering this speech, several ladies burst into tears, and Mrs. Dorsey kept her handkerchief to her eyes for some minutes.

"Now, gentlemen, I have examined every charge in the indictment. I have shown you that indictment is one thing and evidence another. I have shown you that not a single part is substantiated against S. W. Dorsey; I have demonstrated that not one charge has been established against S. W. Dorsey; not one; I have shown you that there is no foundation for a particular in this case. I have spoken now, gentlemen, the last words that will be spoken in public for my clients, the last words that will be spoken in public for any of these defendants, the last words that will be heard in their favor until I hear from the lips of this foreman the eloquent words, "Not guilty." And now, thinking the Court for many acts of personal kindness, and for your almost infinite patience, I leave my clients, with all who love them, in your hands. [Applause]

At this point a recess was taken until one o'clock. During the intermission the court-room presented an animated scene, suggestive of the Gallean trial, many of the lady spectators producing lunches and eating them without leaving their seats. Some time before the reopening of the court the attorney-general entered, followed by a messenger carrying a large mass of notes and half a dozen law books.

WASHINGTON, September 7.—Attorney-General Brewster to-day concluded his argument for the prosecution in the Star Route trials, and the case is practically closed. The judge will probably deliver his charge to-morrow, and the case may go to the jury the same day. Brewster's argument was listened to with the same close attention as was given to Ingersoll, and his audience was so crowded that the judge was obliged to give orders to admit no more spectators to the court room. The closing part of the argument was well worth recording, but at its conclusion a feud occurred which was wholly unexpected to all except the immediate actors in it, and which dwarfed everything else that has occurred during the trial. The judge had announced that a recess would be taken, that the prayers of the court, counsel for instructions to the jury, should be argued before the Court alone and that the jury could be excused until to-morrow. Then ensued the scene of the day, and one which has few if any parallels in the judicial history of the country. The jurors were again on their feet and about to leave the box, and many of the audience were preparing to leave the court room, when Judge Wylie stated that he wished to devote a moment to another matter. The significant tone in which he said this warned the spectators that something important was to follow, and instantly there was a dead silence. "Several of the members of this jury," continued his honor, calmly, "have come to me with the information that they have been approached with propositions most manifestly of a corrupt kind. The first intimation I had of this kind was several weeks ago—several more—(interrupting himself)—I cannot tell all the intimations; they are square and direct information—given to me privately, for the purpose of asking me what they, the jurors should do. My advice was to say nothing about it. The Court did not want to interrupt the progress of the argument of the case by any such side question as this, but I advised them to be careful. This thing has grown (becoming more and more indignant as he proceeded), and within the last twenty-four hours it seems that these wolves which have been around this jury, have become fiercer and more determined. I felt so much indignation that I was almost ready to advise the jury to shoot the man on the spot. That is the way I felt about it, but I gave no such opinion. But why of this kind, scoundrelism of this degree, deserves no mercy. I do not say in what interest these suggestions have been made. I do not want to convey any information of that subject but I want to advise this jury to repel with scorn and indignation any base attempt of this character on their virtue and integrity. The insult is of an intense nature, and I do hope that when we get through this trial fairly, you may have information enough to enable the Court to lay its hands on men of this kind; on these men who have approached you in the way. I have called your attention to this subject with another view, to give warning to men of this kind of what they are about and that the officers of the law will do their duty. If it is possible to ferret out these scoundrels, I shall be glad to give them no quarter; spurn them with the end of your toes. No baser vermin infest the earth than the men engaged in this kind of business, and the insult to you is that they suppose that you are just as base, just as low as they are themselves. No man should allow a whisper of this kind to be made to him without spurring it with the utmost scorn and contempt. If he goes no further I do not advise violence at any time. Do advise I do not; but next to an insult that is given to a man's wife, is an insult of this kind to a juror. His honor should be as sacred and as carefully guarded as he would guard the honor of his wife. Having said this much collaterally, at this point, we can now take a recess.

GEN. BATE AT A HORN.

He Elicits a Much Interest to Put His Name to the Chronicle.

ATKINS, TENN., Sept. 7.

Gen. W. B. Bate, Democratic candidate for Governor, spoke here to-day to about 1000 people in a patriotic and cheerful Democratic of Mehan County. After frequent insinuations that Governor Hawkins had refused to meet him, and regretting very much, indeed, that he was not here to reply to him, he proceeded with a long and unintelligible harangue upon the State debt, in which he fully advocated the doctrine of repudiation. Great interest was evinced by a number of his listeners going to sleep, or leaving the room.

The New Bridges.

Mr. B. L. Miles, the representative of the King Iron and Bridge Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, is getting in some good work on the construction of the three new iron bridges over First Creek. The Cumberland street bridge was completed several days ago. Yesterday evening the finishing strokes were put on the Mabry street bridge, and it has been opened to traffic. The Third Main street bridge has been torn up and the abutments are being repaired. The forces will not be transferred there, as soon as that work is through, and the last of the bridges will be up in a few days.

Wanted Daily.

TENNESSEE POST-OFFICES.

Biennial Adjustment of Postmasters' Salaries.

Correspondence Nashville American.

WASHINGTON, August 27.—The adjustment of the salaries of the post-offices in Tennessee has been completed by the Post-Office Department. This work is required at the expiration of every two years, the last adjustment being in 1880. Of course, only the offices termed Presidential are included. They are so called because the salary is $1,000 or over, and, therefore, they receive the appointment direct from the President, after confirmation by the Senate. They are divided into three grades. The first class, those where the salary is $3,000 or over, the second class, those between $2,000 and $3,000, and the third class, those from $1,000 to $2,000. The most numerous class, the fourth, receive less than $1,000, and are appointed by the Postmaster-General.

There are 1,635 post-offices of all classes. At the time of the last adjustment the number was 1,323. The increase is 307, one of the largest in the country. Since the beginning of the year '84 new offices have been established.

The Presidential offices in the State number 16. Two are of the first class, Nashville and Memphis, each receiving $3,000 a year. There are also 10 of the second class, Chattanooga, Clarksville and Knoxville. One office, Humboldt, has been reduced from the Presidential grade to the fourth class, receiving $1,000 a year. Seven offices have secured $200 additional. They are Chattanooga, Gallatin, Jackson, McMinnville, and Shelbyville and Union City. Others get $100.

The following shows the Presidential offices in Tennessee, together with the salary as arranged for the next two years:

Table with 3 columns: Office, Class, Salary. Includes Nashville ($3,000), Memphis ($3,000), Chattanooga ($2,500), Clarksville ($2,500), Knoxville ($2,500), etc.

What funny names some people select for a post-office. It is like the peculiarity in regard to children's names that is occasionally seen. Tennessee has some of those queer names. One of the names in this County has an Aunt Blossie, a Decatur a Bob; Benton a Bustled and Jefferson a Dumplin; Carroll has a Family and Cooke a Help; Hickman, Clarksville, a Y. Y. Some admirers of Mahone in Wilson County have called a post office after him.

The people of Tennessee are going into the fall with business hearty, and have made application for the establishment of fifty-five new post-offices.
