

Knoxville Weekly Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY . . . NOVEMBER 6, 1872.

HIPPORHINORRHEA.

How it Affects Business in New York. A New York special, dated 29th, says: Clear and bracing weather to-day has produced more hopeful symptoms among the sick horses, but there has been but a slight increase in the number of vehicles in the streets.

The damage of business grows more serious each day. Meats, fish and other perishable articles can not be distributed, causing heavy pecuniary losses. Retail grocers and others have advanced prices. Merchandise arriving since last week remains on the docks, and some of it has been injured by the rains.

The number of deaths in New York and Brooklyn up to to-night from the horse distemper, is estimated at 150. Several hostlers have been taken sick suddenly, but probably from overwork. There are also doubtful reports of an epidemic lung fever among other domestic animals.

BETTING ON THE ELECTION.

How Bets Run on the Different States. The New York Times of the 30th, reports the pool sales at Johnson's Saloon, Broadway and 28th St., New York. After no bets could be had on New York for Grant against Greeley the Times says:

Mr. Johnson then commenced selling pools for first choice of the three competitors—Havemeyer, O'Brien and Lawrence. The sporting men backed O'Brien to start with, and made him slightly the favorite, the pools selling $130 O'Brien, $120 Havemeyer, $90 Lawrence. On the eighth pool Havemeyer and O'Brien sold for even money, $500 each, Lawrence fetching only $220. From this point Havemeyer forged decidedly ahead, Lawrence falling more and more into the background.

GENERAL GRANT.

His Characteristic Modesty.

A large and very enthusiastic Republican meeting was held at Croton on Wednesday evening, the 16th inst. Excellent addresses were delivered by Dr. Moore and the Chairman, Dr. P. C. Van Wyck. The latter, in the course of his remarks, related the following anecdote about the President:

"Meeting General Grant at Quebec, in the summer of 1865, I observed to him that the fact of his absence from our army, when it passed through the streets of Richmond, had been generally and pleasingly noticed by the press and otherwise, and in this respect differed from the practice in the time of the Caesars, when a triumph would have been demanded by the victorious General; or that of modern conquerors, in heading their army in its triumphal march through the fallen city. The General modestly replied that he had regarded the fall of Richmond as practically terminating the war, and it occurred to him that he had better go at once to Washington and stop the forwarding of supplies and further recruiting; which he did, remarking he had not thought at the time of the parade, and should have had but little taste for it in any event. The economy of President Grant's administration was thus foreshadowed."

A PUBLIC WHIPPING.—Mayor Trout, of Staunton, has gone to whipping thieves. The Vindicator of that city says: The Mayor, after patiently hearing all the evidence, and the prisoners having nothing to say except acknowledgment of their crimes, sentenced each to undergo ten months' imprisonment, and to receive ten lashes on the day they go into jail and ten more lashes on the day they come out; and, added his Honor, "I want this whipping to be public. An example must be made of these thieves for the benefit of others." Monday morning the convicts were marched out of jail to the court yard, and after divesting themselves of their coats and shirts, embraced a tree in the yard and received their ten lashes—an operation viewed with mixed feelings by the colored spectators who lined the fence. The more respectable colored men who work for a living thought it was a good thing, but the negroes who expect to steal for a living, and when caught to be transferred to comfortable quarters in the jail or penitentiary, seemed to think that the bill of rights had been infringed.

That old "Ex-Confed." who has been dating Johnson letters from every county town, and railway station in the State, was at Knoxville when last heard from. His identity is as unmistakable as a pole-cat's. —Athens Post.

KILLED IN THE ACT.

Tragic Result of a Kuxlux Enterprise Near Normandy.

The Nashville Banner has received the following particulars of an assault upon the house of a colored man, above Tullahoma, by a party of disguised men, and the killing of one of the assailants:

On Tuesday morning, a while before daylight, five disguised persons called at the cabin of a young colored man by the name of Crawford, on the farm of Barney Patterson, between Tullahoma and Normandy. They demanded admittance in a threatening and turbulent manner, and Crawford refused to open the door, he being in his cabin alone. The parties then commenced breaking open the door, which they soon succeeded in doing. As quick as the door opened, Crawford fired upon the foremost man and killed him dead in his boots. The other four fell back out of range of Crawford's pistol and begged the privilege of coming back for the dead man, which was readily granted.

The man who was killed turns out to be young Mr. Carr, a son of Esq. Thos. Carr, near Normandy, a citizen in good standing in the community. Mr. Carr says that the parties who brought his son's remains to his house were still in disguise and he failed to recognize any of them. Crawford succeeded in capturing two disguises and uniforms and one pistol from the marauders. The verdict of the community is entirely in Crawford's favor. Crawford has the name of being a peaceable, quiet, industrious boy and says that he regrets the occurrence, but that he don't intend to be run over by men in disguise. This bloody occurrence will probably end the Kuxlux business, that has been occasionally disturbing the citizens of Duck River for the last three or four years.

East Tennessee Notes.

An iron cylinder weighing four tons was cast by Mr. Webster, in Chattanooga, last Thursday. The Chattanooga Times proposes to vindicate Isham G. Harris from the combined assaults of Col. John Baxter and the Press and Herald. The Athens Post is enjoying a surfeit of large vegetables. The farmers are nearly done sowing wheat and the weather has been very favorable for the newly grown crop. We learn that more than the usual quantity of white wheat has been sown.

Our exchanges say that one-sixth more wheat has been grown this year than usual, and the foreign market for it is remarkably good. The result should be prosperity. The chestnut crop is unusually large this year. Persons who live near the chestnut orchards would do well to gather all they can as they find a ready sale for cash in town.

Mrs. Mary Y. Greeley, wife of Horace Greeley, was a native of New York, but was teaching school in Warrenton, N. C., when she and Mr. Greeley were married, on the 5th of July, 1836. Her maiden name was Cheney.
