From the Grand Rapids Eagle. December, &c., Etc.

Sweet Scale Brown! my pretty one!
Per sure you must remember—
If not for love, at least for fun— The aleigh ride in December; hen all the belies and all the beaux, In spire of frosts would go forth, and squeeze beneath the buffaloes, Each other's hands, &c.

How brightly streamed the north'n lights

Observed from country bridges!
Observed from country bridges!
Where 'toll' is sought with such address,
'Mid langhter, fun and flattery;
and lovers feel amid the press, Each other's hearts, etc.

'Tis very singular and queer, Of all most mad devices, Love's flame should burn so bright and clear On fuel formed of ices.

And yet we know its flame, indeed, Most brill intly will glow forth, When farned behind a flying steed, Hid under furs, &c.

Pm sure you mind the village inn,
The supper and the revel;
Bow in the general dine and din,
Love shot his arrows level.
And don't forget how Harry Kidd Embraced you in the buttery; Ton kissed his lips—I know you did-And he kissed yours, etc.

And when the forfeits were all paid, How one old maid resisted, Until the younger ladies said, A prude they all detested; 'Desist!' she cried—the ancient Ann— Her modesty to show forth, T'll never yield to any man, My virgin lips! &c.

The wintry winds, the homeward way,! Blew chilly in our faces,
But, underneath our furs, we lay,
All snagly in our places;
One girl, upon the forward seat—

The pretty Nelly Setterleeed Jack Frost had pinched her cheek, And Billy Frost, etc. Another, undergrath her robes, (The buff loes, not her dresse

Fair Putience with attendant Job,— Detected in caresses, Spring up with angry blushing face, Her innocence to show forth, But showed her curls were out of place, Her collar gone, &c.

And then the parting at the door! And then the parties at the door!

Its temper, mutual blisses!

Sweet lips, from their abundant store,
Gare to the poor—in kisses!

The parting word—the long embrace—
Cupid's most dangerous witchery,

Brought fire to many a boyis's face,
And raised sweet hopes, etc.

Dear Susie Brown, save you and I, Of all that load of merriment, No other pair are left, to try Love's latest, best experiment, And when the coming snows are spread, Our mutual hopes shall glow forth May Hyman bless our auptial bed, Increase our joys, &c.

Bread Without Yeast, Salera, State of Michigan tells how to make healthy bread of flour and water and a little salt, and no yeast, saleratus, cream of tartar, or any such vile soapmaking stoff. She says: "Take as much milk-warm water as you will want to make your batch of bread, and salt it about twice as salt as you would if you were going to mix the same quantity into saleratus bread. Stir in flour enough to make a paste about as thick as gridle-cake dome, but the saint flour enough to make a paste about as thick as gridle-cake dome, but the saint as pot of warm water on the stone. The same and salt in the same and salt in the saint salt is a pot of warm water on the stone. The same and salt in the stone and salt in paid, and set the paid into a pot of warm water on the stone. The salt is salt as you water of the case of the pendency of said petitions, and server the propose of the pendency of said petition, and set the paid into a tim paid, and set the paid into a tim paid the paid to t hearth, where the water in the pot will keep about milk-warm all the time.

This will give the paste an even temperature.

"In four or five hours the paste will raise and foam like yeast. Then turn it into your mixing and mix in flour enough to make your dough for breed, and mould it into your pans ready for baking, set the pans in a warm place, under or about the stove, and cover them with a clean cloth or paper, and let it rise, it will take about two hours, and as soon as it is fairly raised, put it into a hot oven and bake it quick and thoroughly.

Food por Horses.—Variety is an essential. Oats are not the only food that will fit a horse for labor or the road. Roots are oftentimes much superior. Of these, carrots are the best, and keep the horse sleek and in good health. Heavy horses, while fed on est corn stalks, together with a little corn and cob meal, will not show any symptoms of this disease.
